Hard Blows Traded

By the Associated Press

London (Saturday), Aug. 3. The Bremen radio suddenly shut down late last night, indicating stern continuation of the sledge-hammer British air raids on Germany—raids which the British declare have scored smashing successes against supply dumps, ports, airdromes and war industries in more than 100 German cities.

With such raids the British hope to blight any Nazi blitzkrieg at its roots.

At the same time, German planes sped back to Britain, being reported over the northwestern area early today.

Shipping Attacked

Shipping off the southeast coast was attacked by bombers and spurts of water were seen around ships several miles out. Two German bombers also flew low over the southeast coast but turned back to sea in the face of defensive fire.

The German port of Hamburg, biggest in all Europe, was pictured in virtual ruins by authoritative British sources—the result of three months of intermittent Royal Air Force blasting.

The great Krupp arms works at Essen, supply depots, synthetic oil plants and airdromes in western Germany and Holland were the latest targets reported put under the bombsights and bomb racks of the R. A. F.

Arms Works Set Afire

The Krupp works, said the Air Ministry News Service, were pounded with bombs for five minutes.

The raiders, it was added, "scored several hits on the works and started fires which could be plainly seen by observers until at 11,000 feet our aircraft entered the clouds."

The Air Ministry said that R. A. F. raiders by day struck a hangar and strafed grounded German planes at the airdromes of Leeuwarden and Haamstede, in the Netherlands, yesterday.

By night, British squadrons swept in on western Germany and loosed bombs on synthetic oil plants at Gelsenkirchen, Kamen, Homburg and Reisholz; the Krupp works at Essen, supply depots at Hamm, Kre-

Hoot, Mon! Nazis Outdo the Duffers

Special Dispatch to The Post

Somewhere in Scotland, Aug. 2. Some of the most sacred soil of Scotland was desecrated today by Nazi airmen.

Several high explosive bombs and about 25 incendiary bombs landed on a golf course in this northeast Scotland area.

Craters 20 feet deep and 40 feet wide were blasted by the larger bombs.

The club rules committee had not decided tonight whether these craters should be treated as natural hazards or as ground under destruction, not subject to penalty strokes.

It was suggested that the proper punishment for the fliers who did the bombing would be to make them play the bomb-altered course, without niblicks.

Scotchmen who have taken the war rather calmly till now were especially grim after hearing about today's attack on Scotland's principal tourist attraction. They expressed satisfaction that one of the German raiders was brought down about a brassie shot offshore.

London Begins Reprisals Against Japan

Tokyo Businessman Seized in England; Trade Is Held Up

By Frederick Kuh
United Press Staff Writer

London (Saturday), Aug. 3.—The Japanese Embassy announced today that K. Makihara, prominent Japanese businessman, has been detained by British police "for unknown reasons" and that it is investigating reports from Singapore that a number of Japanese have been arrested by British authorities in the Straits Settlements.

The announcement was simultaneous with a statement in today's London News Chronicle that "the arrest of a number of prominent Japanese citizens in various parts of the British empire is expected."

[British newspapers have been demanding the arrest of Japanese residents of Britain in a number equal to those British residents of Japan held by Japanese military police on charges of espionage.]

News of Makihara's arrest came shortly after Japanese financial interests had revealed that British banks were refusing to discount Japanese bills or extend credit to Japanese banks.

More Tension Forecast

Japanese circles openly forecast an increase in British-Japanese tension which has been mounting as result of Japan's refusal to entertain requests of the British ambassador in Tokyo for immediate release of imprisoned Britons.

Nine British subjects in the Japanese empire now are under examination by Japanese military police.

A British spokesman, meanwhile, insisted that unless Japan frees the imprisoned Britons, action will be taken "beyond mere diplomatic representations."

Makihara is manager of the Mitsubishi Shoji Kaisha's London branch.

The Mitsubishi Shoji Kaisha is a unit of the giant Mitsubishi interests of Japan which control banks, steamship lines, mines and trading and manufacturing companies.

The Japanese Embassy said Makihara was arrested at 8 p. m. by Model Drowned While Swimming Nude at Party

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP).—The nude body of Ellen Legge Nash, beautiful New York model, was dragged tonight from a swimming pool on the estate of Neil Reed Andrews, wealthy cosmetic manufacturer.

Westchester County Medical Examiner Amos O. Squire said that the 27-year-old blonde was "accidentally drowned" during a pre-dinner swim.

Police attempted vainly for 90 minutes to revive the girl with artificial respiration. They, too, called the death accidental and closed the case.

Sumners Bill Action Due In 2 Weeks

Rules Committee Will Bring Measure Before House Soon, Poll Indicates

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

The House Rules Committee is expected to grant a special rule next week to bring out the Sumners national representation resolution for a House vote, probably the following week, a poll of the members indicated yesterday.

While a majority of the committee insisted on reserving a decision until after a hearing, key members predicted favorable action. Only one committee member expressed opposition to the resolution, and he added that he was "open to reason."

Chairman Sabath, who expressed himself as favorable personally to giving the District representation in Congress, said that a hearing will be accorded Representative Sumners when it is requested and that the matter will be given fair and sympathetic consideration.

Dempsey Pledges Support

Representative Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, sponsor of the Hatch bill in the House, enthusiastically indorsed the Sumners resolution and pledged his support of it in committee.

Another favorable vote was indicated by Representative Michener (Republican), of Michigan, who voted for the resolution in the House Judiciary Committee.

Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, said he would not oppose the rule because of his friendship for Sumners.

Favorable votes were expected from Representatives Clark (Democrat), of North Carolina; Delaney (Democrat), of New York, and Halleck (Republican), of Indiana, who are out of the city.

Decisions Reserved

Members who stated they would reserve their decisions until after the hearing are Representatives Fish (Republican), of New York; Lewis (Democrat), of Colorado; Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, and Nelson (Democrat), of Missouri.

Representative Colmer (Democrat), of Missouri, said he was opposed to the franchise for Washington, but was "open to reason."

Representative Allen (Republican), of Illinois, could not be reached.

Observers believed that the combination of the personal prestige and popularity of Representative Sumners and the promise of support by

Japanese Navy Seizes American Ship Off China

Shanghai (Saturday), Aug. 3 (U.P.). Seizure by the Japanese navy on July 31 of the Estelle, a small vessel belonging to the Robert Lang Co., an American concern, was revealed today.

The American Consulate has asked the Japanese to investigate.

The Lang ship had cleared from Shanghai and was en route to Hongkong when it was seized.

The vessel (not listed in Lloyds shipping register) is of small tonnage and was forced to hug the coast due to a typhoon. It was understood that because of this the ship entered the Japanese blockade zone around the Chekiang port of Wenchow.

Is This Diplomacy?

Welles' Son Refuses to Take Girl's Word They're Engaged

She Says He Did, He Says He Didn't Pop the Question

Maybe Mary heard it wrong.

Mary "Stuttering Sam" Dowell, Broadway showgirl, said in Fort Worth, Tex., yesterday that Benjamin Welles, son of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, had asked the question and she had replied "yes, maybe."

She was bothered about what the Undersecretary and Mrs. Welles would think of a girl called "Stuttering Sam."

Benjamin Welles, 24, a copyreader on the New York Times cable desk, said, "There's nothing to it."

He wasn't referring to what attitude the family might take. He spoke of the romance.

"I met her only once while interviewing Murray Anderson, the producer, for the Times drama section. I'm not engaged to anybody," Welles said.

Mary was flying East from Fort Worth yesterday. Of the Welles family in Washington, she said:

"So we've still got to face them and I'm not sure how it will turn out. I'm to meet them in September."

A butler at the Welles' Oxon Hill home said members of the family were not there.

Mary got the name "Stuttering Sam" from Murray Anderson when he heard her talk at Fort Worth's Casa Manana show in 1936. The proposal was said to have been made last spring in New York.

3 Probes Begun on Dying Man's Hour Wait for Ambulance

Victim's Wife, Called to Scene, Kneels in Street to Comfort Him

A triple investigation was under way last night to learn why the victim of a fatal accident at Twenty-second and Quincy streets northeast was forced yesterday to wait nearly an hour for the arrival of an ambulance which reportedly had been summoned by five different persons.

Police, the coroner's office and Casualty Hospital officials joined in the probe. The crash victim, William E. Greaves, 62, chief engineer for a local wholesale food concern, died in Casualty Hospital at 11 a. m. He was fatally injured at 7:30 a. m., when his car collided with a Capital Transit Co. bus.

Traveling east on Quincy street, Greaves' car struck the bus—which was proceeding north on Twenty-second street—almost in the center of the intersection. The impact hurled Greaves through the right front door of his auto and he was pinned beneath the wreckage.

He was pulled free by Joseph Bennett, 655 Maine avenue southwest, driver of the bus, and V. M. Claggett, jr., 1849 L street northeast, a passerby, and placed in the

Nazi Embassy Officials Scoff At Uproar Over Westrick

Hitler's Agent in U. S. Only to Promote Post-War Economic Amity, They Say

"What would you think if the German press got excited about an American diplomat's ordering ice cream in Berlin . . . called it mysterious when he lunched with a few German businessmen . . . if the neighbors took down the license number of all his visitors?"

This was the query yesterday of a German Embassy official who scoffed at "charges" against Dr. Gerhardt A. Westrick, commercial counselor of the German Embassy, and now the object of an FBI investigation.

The "mysterious G signal at Dr. Westrick's home in Scarsdale (N. Y.) is nothing but a sign furnished customers of a certain Good Humor Ice Cream company there, to put up in the window when they want ice cream," the diplomat asserted. "Rather harmless, eh?" he said. The question of the activities of Baroness Irmingard Van Wagenhein, secretary to Dr. Westrick, was not discussed at the meeting.

Willkie Asks Roosevelt to QuestionHim

'I Shall Be Glad To Answer' Queries On Public Affairs, Nominee Asserts

By the Associated Press

Colorado Springs, Aug. 2.—Wendell L. Willkie invited President Roosevelt today to ask him questions about public issues.

The Republican nominee, questioned at a press conference regarding military conscription, said he would express his views fully in his August 17 acceptance address at Elwood, Ind.

Willkie's aides made it plain that he would not be able to answer every question asked by a Senator or Representative and the nominee himself told reporters:

"I shall speak on conscription very clearly and specifically in my acceptance address. If the President of the United States wants to ask me any questions in the meantime I shall be glad to answer him."

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, has challenged the nominee to make known his views on draft legislation but Willkie has decided he will reply only to questions from the President. Aides said he felt that Mr. Roosevelt was the man he was running against and that he, therefore, would wait until the President questioned him.

"It Speaks for Itself"

Willkie, asked for comment on the selection of Edward J. Flynn as successor to James A. Farley as Democratic National Chairman, told reporters: "I understand that Boss Flynn of the Bronx has been appointed. It speaks for itself."

Willkie was questioned regarding reports that the New Deal Administration had asked him to approve the sale of destroyers to Great Britain. He replied that he had talked with many individuals about many subjects, but that he did not believe any of them had represented President Roosevelt.

Willkie received a telegram of indorsement during the day from Edmund M. Toland, general counsel of the Congressional committee investigating the National Labor Relations Board.

Toland messaged that he had always voted for Democratic candidates "with one exception." He did not specify the exception.

Willkie talked today with a delegation of Oklahomans, including E. H. Moore, of Tulsa. Moore was a delegate to the Chicago Democratic Convention. Bound by the unit rule, he voted for both Presi-

Daylight Bandits In Silver Spring Get $1,264 Pay Roll

Two holdup men took $1,264 in pay roll money from a Silver Spring, Md., contractor in a daylight robbery yesterday.

Milton A. Cramer, 32, a brick contractor, was entering his office to make out his pay envelopes, he said, when a white man pushed an object that felt like a pistol into his side and ordered: "Stick 'em up."

This man and a companion had apparently been waiting for Cramer's entrance at a basement door. Cramer told police he had only a vague impression of the men, because just as the first one accosted him, the second one grabbed him around the chest and squeezed him unconscious.

Draft Essential To U. S. Defense, Roosevelt Says

Ahoy! Franklin, Jr., Has Gone to Sea

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 2.—Aboard the destroyer Lawrence on Atlantic neutrality patrol tonight it's "Ensign Roosevelt"—not the President's son—for Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr.

The third son of the President sailed on the Lawrence from Newport, R. I., shortly after noon today for a two-week training cruise. It's an annual procedure to keep in force his commission as ensign in the naval R. O. T. C.

An executive officer of the third naval district here described the routine young Roosevelt would follow.

"His greatest problem," said the officer, "will be to cram his 6 feet 3 inches into a destroyer berth."

Roosevelt may have a room of his own or he may have to share his quarters with another ensign.

Senators Reject Recruiting Limit; Woodring Urges Voluntary System

(Woodring's Letter, Page 7.)

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Compulsory military service received the wholehearted indorsement of President Roosevelt yesterday while his erstwhile Secretary of War, Harry H. Woodring, maintained that it is unnecessary at the present time.

Meanwhile the Senate Military Affairs Committee, promising that the amended Burke-Wadsworth bill for compulsory training would be brought to a vote Monday, turned down several proposals designed to restrict the measure still further.

One would have limited to 900,000 the number of men to be called for training by October, 1941.

While he carefully avoided specific indorsement of the Burke-Wadsworth or any other individual bill, the President made his feelings unmistakably clear at his press conference by allowing the direct quotation:

"I am distinctly in favor of a selective training bill and consider it essential to adequate national defense."

Believes It Will Pass

The President, who has undergone some criticism for alleged hesitancy to express his views on the matter, declared unequivocally that he not only hoped but believed that Congress would pass such a bill.

On the other hand, former Secretary of War Woodring gave new encouragement to the opposition by writing Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, that the voluntary system of enlistment should be given fair trial before compulsory service is adopted. Woodring's letter was dated Thursday from Topeka, Kans.

The former Cabinet officer, who quit the President's official family a few weeks ago, suggested that the present bill be amended "so that it does not become effective until, and after, the Chief of Staff of the United States Army has first advised the Senate in writing that the voluntary system has completely broken down."

He urged increasing Army pay from $21 a month to $30, and added that "if the voluntary system fails, then I will join with others in obtaining the number of men, in the necessary time to defend this country, through a compulsory system."

Amendments Rejected

Possibly taking its cue from the President's emphatic statement, the Military Affairs Committee rejected at its executive session yesterday amendments to the bill that would have:

Limited the number of trainees to 400,000 between October, 1940, and April, 1941, and to 500,000 between April, 1941, and October, 1941—proposed by Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, and defeated, 8 to 4;

Postponed the effective date of the bill to December 1, 1940, to permit establishment of a 90-day period for one-year voluntary enlistments in an effort to meet the Army's need for increased manpower without compulsion—proposed by Senator Lee and defeated, 7 to 2, before the Woodring letter was made public;

Suspended operation of the compulsory service provisions of the bill until Congress declares war—proposed by Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, and defeated, 6 to 2; and

John R. McCarl Dies of Heart Attack at 60

Alert 'Watch-Dog' Of U. S. Treasury Stricken at Desk

John Raymond McCarl, 60, the benign looking man who guarded Uncle Sam's purse for 15 years as Comptroller General, died unexpectedly yesterday in his Washington law office.

Alone in his office in the Transportation Building when he was stricken with a heart attack, Mr. McCarl was found slumped over his desk by an aide at 3:30 p. m. Dr. Luther W. Gray, who was summoned, pronounced dead the mild-mannered Nebraskan who had been engaged in law practice here since his 15-year term as Comptroller General expired in 1936.

The body lay last night in the Gawler funeral home, 1750 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. It will be shipped tonight to Mr. McCarl's home town, McCook, Nebr., and will be accompanied by Mrs. McCarl. The McCarls had no children.

Funeral services and interment will be in McCook on Monday.

Enjoyed His Golf Game

Mrs. McCarl spent last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Richardson, 2740 Thirty-second street northwest. Golf was the former Comptroller General's favorite diversion, and his most frequent partner was Richardson, who occupied an adjoining law office in the Transportation Building.

Besides his wife, the only immediate survivors are two sisters, Mrs. George Thomas, of Washington, and Mrs. G. L. Burney, of McCook.

McCook also is the home town of Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, whom McCarl served as secretary from 1914 to 1918, and who was a principal sponsor in his appointment to the Comptroller Generalship.

John Raymond McCarl occupied a unique niche in the Federal service. He was the first to hold the post of Comptroller General and during his incumbency he figured in any number of controversies over expenditure of public funds, ranging from the size of tips to Pullman

Tale of a Shirt, Or 'Mr. Smyth Goes to Washing'

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—The Long Island Railroad, a spokesman said tonight, is perfectly willing to wash Thomas J. Smyth's dirty shirt—either with or without Smyth in it.

Smyth claimed his white shirt was mottled by soot and dust on a Long Island train. He sent the shirt to the railroad to be laundered.

A railroad spokesman said that when the shirt arrives the railroad will wash it and Smyth, too, in the main concourse of the Pennsylvania station, if Smyth wants.

Smyth countered: "If that's the railroad's attitude, then it ought to install showers in Pennsylvania station."

6,000,000 Middle-Income 'Independents' Hold Balance of Power in Fall Election

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 2.—As the American people enter another Presidential campaign, a Nation-wide test by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicates that neither the Democrats nor the Republicans possess sufficient "regular" party members at this time to capture the Presidency.

DR. GALLUP

Whichever party wins the election next November will probably owe its victory to the so-called "independent vote," the survey reveals.

Both Roosevelt and Willkie have indicated that they will appeal to the independents, and since the size of this group shifts from time to time the American Institute will measure sentiment on the question throughout the campaign.

At the present time, the latest Institute survey shows, one voter in every five considers himself free of regular party allegiance. Voters in a cross-section of the 48 States were asked:

"In politics do you consider yourself a Democrat, Republican, Socialist or Independent?"

The answers were:

Democrat	41%
Republican	33
Independent	20
Socialist or other	1

Only 1 voter in every 25 (4%) failed to list himself in one of the above categories.

As previous Institute tests have shown, the great majority of those who consider themselves Independents voted for Roosevelt in 1936. How they will decide to vote this fall is a question of the greatest importance to both major parties.

On the basis of a voting population of 60,000,000, the survey points to a bloc of independent voters throughout the United States numbering 12,000,000.

Sectionally, moreover, the largest number of them are distributed throughout the crucial States of the East and Middle West. Independent voters play the smallest part, the survey shows, in the 13 States of the Democratic South:

	Per Cent Regarding Selves As Independents
New England	30%
Mid-Atlantic	21
East Central	23
West Central	21
South	10
West	21

Of equal importance from the point of view of party strategy is the fact that more than 6,000,000 of these independent voters—or about half of them—are to be found today in the income group which earns between $20 and $40 a week. Every Institute measurement in the last four years has indicated that this is the income group which may do most to decide the next election.

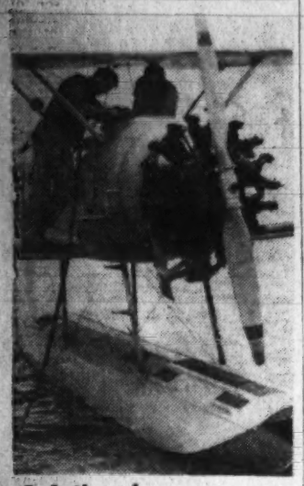

TOMORROW—Read The Washington Post for the first complete State-by-State survey of the Gallup Poll on the present standings of President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie. For an exclusive report on how many States are Democratic, and how many are Republican, read tomorrow's Washington Post.

Over Our Shoulder

Aviation in Washington

That the Nation's Capital should become a center for all phases of aviation (with the characteristic exception of manufacturing) was to be expected. You may be surprised, though, to find how much a part of Washington flying has become, how many and varied are aviation's local phases.

Do you know the difference between the functions of the Navy's air base at Anacostia and the Army's at Bolling Field? Do you know how a parachute rigger graduates? Would you like to take a CAA course and become a civilian pilot yourself—or do your ambitions extend to the Army or Navy air forces or to a transport pilot's job? "Our Town in Pictures" tells—and shows—you all about it in Sunday's Post.

Then there's the work of the Civil Aeronautics Authority: checking up on an accident, the scientific division, air traffic control, handling an application for an air mail contract.

And something about the stream of air traffic flying in and out of Washington Airport daily.

Learn about aviation with "Our Town in Pictures!" (And in the roto section there's a page on making planes at Hagerstown.)

Nation-Wide Poll

The first individual State polls on Roosevelt vs. Willkie have been seized with avidity by everyone. But what Washington has really been waiting for is Sunday's complete round-up of every State in the Union. Don't miss this Gallup Poll in Sunday's Post!

Coincident with this Gallup Poll, showing which way the political tide is turning, comes an important new book, "The American Presidency," by Harold J. Laski. It's reviewed on the Sunday Post book page by Walter Millis, author of "Road to War" and "Why Europe Fights."

"How the Americas Keep From Fighting" might well be the title of Barnet Nover's special article in the Sunday Post. Mr. Nover just returned from Havana and the Pan-American meeting. Did Secretary Hull really get what he had hoped for? Did the Argentines sign with mental reservations? What part did Nazi pressure play—if any? Nover gives you the whole story.

Otto Strasser, Hitler's former ally and now his bitter enemy, is said to have been caught in the Nazi net thrown around Paris. But before the Nazis got him, if they did, he wrote his views on Hitlerism. On June 1 Strasser finished an article giving his views of the Munich bomb explosion, for which the Nazis say he's responsible. You'll find this article in Sunday's Post.

Glimmer & Glamour

Pretty Hollywood girls smile at you from magazine covers, from ads, from publicity stories. Why don't they ever get into a movie? Sunday's Post brings you the story of the girls who glimmer and fade, [illegible] of the outstanding exception, [illegible] Sheridan.

[illegible] more movie material Sunday: [illegible]uella Parsons on Hollywood's part [illegible] the war. Hedda Hopper's intimate picture of Walt Disney, the man, his associates, his plans.

U. S. to Build Big Guns for Planes

Negotiation With Auto Firms Started, Gen. Wesson Says

Copyright by New York Times

Negotiations are being carried on by the War Department with the General Motors and Chrysler Corporations for operation of two plants to be constructed by the Government within a year for the manufacture of heavier guns for aircraft. The cost of the two factories, to be constructed in the Midwest away from possible air attack by an enemy, would be $14,000,000.

This was revealed yesterday with the publication of testimony before House committee on the $4,800,000,000 second deficiency defense appropriation bill. The testimony was given by Maj. Gen. C. M. Wesson, chief or ordnance.

Similar to Antitank Guns

Declaring experience in Europe has shown that 37-mm cannon are necessary for American fighting planes, which now use .30 or .50 caliber machine guns, Gen. Wesson testified it was necessary to build two new factories to get the heavier guns for the 30,000 Army planes in existence or to be ordered. The 37-mm gun is similar to the antitank gun used by the Army.

"We have been putting machine guns on them and we still intend to put machine guns on them," Gen. Wesson explained, "but the information from abroad indicates that they are building planes more ruggedly all the time and putting armor on them. In some cases, you have go to hit them with a larger projectile."

Expects Start by September 1

Gen. Wesson said that he expected contracts on the two new plants to be let by September 1. Meanwhile, he said, the War Department is getting some of the 37 mm. guns built by the Bendix Corporation at Bendix, N. J., but the Army preferred that additional plant space be constructed in the Midwest rather than on the East Coast. An order also is being placed with the Chrysler Croporation at once, he said.

Some 37 mm. guns now are being made by the Colt Arms Co., the general asserted. This company received an additional order for $2,000,000 this week, but its facilities were limited, he added.

It would take two or three years to build all guns of this type necessary for the expanded air corps, officials estimate.

Wallace, Jackson as They Started Fateful Boomerang

News Photographer 'Beaned' As Boomerang Shot Backfires

With five stitches in his head and a headache of no mean proportions as well, Rollins will bear a scar inflicted by the world's most unique weapon, hurled by someone high in national affairs. He was socked by a boomerang, but who tossed it was still a matter of conjecture as Rollins' head ached slowly back to normal.

It is a matter of general knowledge among Washington news photographers that Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture and Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, is an expert boomeranger. So, too, is Attorney General Robert H. Jackson. So a photographer asked Wallace to toss a few boomerangs for a picture.

Wallace agreed, but told a lot of other photographers about it and asked Jackson to go along. When they arrived at Potomac Park Polo Field, plenty of photographers were on hand and assumed sundry professional attitudes as Wallace and Jackson swung out the first pair of boomerangs. Rollins was kneeling in front of them.

"They threw at the same time," said Rollins afterward, "and I made a shot when the boomerangs left their hands. I saw one land off to the side and I reached for another plateholder when—socko!"

Wallace and Jackson rushed to the tottering Rollins and the Secretary of Agriculture mopped the photographer's injury with a pocket handkerchief. Rollins insisted on continuing the boomeranging until complete pictures were made, then went to his office and developed his own.

Not until then did he go to Emergency Hospital, where five stitches were made to close the wound. Then he hied himself home for the rest of the day.

Willkie Invites Roosevelt Queries

dent Roosevelt and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Sitting near Willkie at the nominee's afternoon press conference, Moore told reporters the Democratic meeting "was probably the all-time low for political demagoguery and trickery in the history of American political conventions."

Indorsed by Mrs. Morrow

Eugene Lorton, publisher of the Tulsa World, who also attended the press conference, said his paper would support Willkie "as a Democrat."

"We can still be Democrats and support Mr. Willkie," he asserted.

Willkie made public a message of indorsement from Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother-in-law of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Mrs. Morrow telegraphed:

"Your nomination was a heartening thing in these difficult days. May your courage and wisdom serve us in the White House."

Bess Streeter Aldrich, novelist, and Moris Ryskind, producer, also telegraphed messages of support, the former from Elmwood, Neb., and the latter from Beverly Hills, Calif.

Willkie told his press conference that organization of the Willkie-for-President clubs was progressing and that an organization of Democrats supporting him would start functioning soon.

He said he would go over Republican organizational problems in a conference over the week-end with Chairman Martin, of the national committee and other party leaders.

Address Nearly Done

He virtually has completed his acceptance address but still is working on his campaign itinerary.

The nominee said he was gratified that former Gov. George White of Ohio had announced his support.

"Gov. White has been one of the outstanding and influential Democrats in Ohio for years," Willkie said.

D. C. Republicans To Open Absentee Vote Campaign

Washington Republicans will turn the heat on the not inconsiderable absentee vote here to help the Willkie-McNary ticket win.

An absentee voters bureau will form a major adjunct to a campaign headquarters to be established next Wednesday in the Woodward Building.

Announcement of the opening of the headquarters was made yesterday by James Wilkes, chairman of the District Republican Committee, at a luncheon meeting of the District Willkie-McNary Campaign Club, at the Ambassador Hotel.

It was estimated that possibly 25,000 persons who reside here now are eligible to vote elsewhere.

ABC Board Suspends Two Liquor Licenses

Liquor license of the Madrid Grill, 1001 H street northwest, was suspended yesterday by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board for the period August 6 to August 31. The proprietor was charged with a violation relating to labeling of beer.

The license of Leon Kuritzky, 231 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, was suspended for selling alcoholic beverages to an intoxicated person. This suspension begins August 7 and ends August 28.

Subcommittee Questions NLRB Members in Secret

The three members of the National Labor Relations Board are understood to have been closely questioned yesterday by a House subcommittee on the alleged failure of the board to carry out the "mandate" of Congress that it abolish its Division of Economic Research.

In executive session the subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, which handles the annual grant for the NLRB, reportedly followed up the lead taken the previous day by the Smith committee investigating the Labor Board.

With NLRB Chairman Madden on the stand, the majority members of the Smith group charged that the board had evaded the intention of Congress to eliminate the Economic Research Division which is headed by David J. Saposs.

The NLRB subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee had recommended the division be abolished at the time it brought forward the Labor Board's appropriation for 1941. Reductions in the figure asked in the budget were intended in part to insure abolition of the division.

Although the Senate restored the funds, they were stricken out again in conference and remained out of the bill when it was signed by the President. However, the measure contained no language specifically eliminating the division.

Maintaining that Saposs' division was doing necessary work, the board retained its functions — though changing its name.

It is understood that the board was warned by the subcommittee members yesterday that specific restrictions would be written into the law if the agency continued to ignore suggestions contained in the report to Congress that accompanied the appropriation bill.

Subcommittee members reportedly stated that these suggestions are normally observed by Government agencies, but that if they were not, the funds might have to be 'earmarked for specific purposes.

House Unit Favors Ships for Refugees

The House Rules Committee granted legislative right of way yesterday to a measure which would permit American ships to transport war refugee children, provided the ships were granted "safe conduct" by all warring nations.

Any vessel on such a mission could carry no cargo, would be unarmed and could not be convoyed by war vessels. Only children under 16 years of age could be transported.

Railway Discontinues Service in 3 Counties

Richmond, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—An order of the State corporation commission today authorized the Washington & Old Dominion Railway to discontinue all passenger service on its line through Loudoun, Fairfax and Arlington counties.

The same order authorized the abandonment of the passenger station at Dunn Loring. The changes are effective August 18.

Defense Work Delay Denied By Roosevelt

Commission Data Belie Claim Program Is 'Bogging Down'

President Roosevelt and Congress struck back with words and action yesterday at charges that the defense program is "bogging down" because of uncertainty over future taxes on profits.

The Chief Executive branded as false reports published in New York and Chicago that very few contracts for planes, tanks and other equipment had been signed and that many types of military equipment were not being produced at all.

The President followed this up by having a spokesman for the Defense Commission tell newspapermen that manufacturers are "generally" going ahead with production of arms, without waiting for signed contracts from the Army and Navy.

Agree on Controversial Points

At the same time, the President announced that Congressional leaders had reached agreement on the points that have been delaying the signing of some contracts—the excess profits bill and previsions for allowing manufacturers to charge off the cost of expanded plants in five years.

President Roosevelt said it was the hope of Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee to pass a three-ply tax bill in a month. The bill would contain an excess profits tax, provision for five-year amortization and a suspension of Vinson-Trammell Act limitations on profits from naval vessel and military aircraft contracts.

Spurred by this Presidential indorsement of the profits tax, a House tax subcommittee agreed tentatively on a formula containing the five-year amortization plan. The group also decided to recommend that the Ways and Means Committee write a single bill containing the charge-off clause, the tax on excess profits and the lifting of the profit ceilings, which are now 8 per cent on competitive bidding contracts and 7 per cent on negotiated contracts.

Taking issue with reports of a slow-down in signing of contracts and in production for defense, the President delegated Robert W. Horton, information director of the Defense Commission, to answer these charges.

Horton, meeting reporters in the Cabinet room at the White House, said that $80,000,000 in aircraft contracts have been cleared by the commission, but not signed.

Meanwhile, he insisted, firms are going ahead with plane designing, plant construction and purchase of materials. North American Aviation Corporation, he said, already is producing training planes and storing them for delivery upon the execution of contracts.

Horton said that the defense program calls for 25,000 planes—18,000 for the Army and 7,000 for the Navy—by July 1, 1942, but that defense authorities are concentrating at first on production of training planes.

Countering charges of "red tape," Horton said that the American Car & Foundry Co. is producing two and one-half to three tanks a day under contracts calling for 1,156. Production will be doubled shortly.

Big Plane Contracts Let

Among contracts actually awarded, the Defense Commission spokesman said, was a Navy contract for $7,000,000 worth of Grummann fighting ships and another for $900,000 worth of training planes to be built by the Cessna Aircraft Corporation, of Wichita, Kans.

The tax agreement reached by the House subcommittee was unanimous, Chairman Cooper (Democrat), Tennessee, said.

The five-year amortization plan, allowing charge-offs at the rate of 20 per cent a year, would apply on new plant, plant expansions and equipment completed after July 10, 1940, Cooper said.

Certification by a defense agency would be needed before a taxpayer could take the deduction as a cost of doing business.

Cooper said the amortization would be optional and that concerns might choose to continue with the present plan of deducting so much for depreciation.

Noting that the proposed plan applies to "emergency facilities," Cooper gave the following definition, of that term:

"Any land, building, machinery or equipment, or part thereof, the construction, reconstruction, erection or installation of which was completed after July 10, 1940, or which was acquired after such date and with respect to which a certificate (by the Defense Commission and Navy or War Department) had been made."

Sugar Growers Criticize Wallace As Responsible for Low Prices

By the Associated Press

Donaldsonville, La., Aug. 2.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, the Democratic nominee for Vice President, was criticized today at a sugar - rate hearing as being partly to blame for the low price of sugar.

WALLACE

Cane growers and processors, giving testimony before Department of Agriculture examiners, criticized Wallace for his Louisiana sugar quota restrictions and said processors would be unable to bear the proposed 1940 scale of cane prices and wages because it would require them to pay 8 per cent more per ton to producers.

Wallace was blamed by speakers for the record low price on raw sugar posted yesterday by New Orleans refiners. George L. Billeaud, sugar processor, of Brossard, La., who represented his plant and 59 other processors, charged that Wallace had promulgated "unwarranted high estimates on sugar consumption" which he said lowered the price of raw sugar to such an extent that the domestic sugar producer was "practically deprived" of conditional payments authorized by Congress to compensate him in part for lowering the tariff.

In addition, Billeaud complained, Wallace fixed "excessively high quotas" for offshore sugar allowed to enter the United States in competition with Louisiana sugar.

The 200 sugar industry representatives were largely from the Third Congressional District where David W. Pipes, jr., sugar refiner of Houma and previously aligned with the Democratic Party, is running for Congress on the Republican ticket with the statement that "the Democratic Party has deserted us."

Senator McNary, of Oregon, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, said yesterday the return of Senator Shipstead, of Minnesota, to the Republican Party would help strengthen the party in the Northwest.

In a statement commenting on Shipstead's action in filing as a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination, the Oregon Senator said: "The Senator's counsel is much sought in the Senate and his return to the Republican fold will be a source of strength to the party throughout Minnesota and the Northwest States."

Shipstead has represented Minnesota in the Senate for 18 years as a Farmer-Laborite.

Although Congress has been debating vigorously the conscription bill, "it has been kind of lonesome and strange around the Senate the last two weeks."

The absence of Vice President Garner, now at his Uvalde, Tex., home, has been the cause, Senator Wiley (Republican), Wisconsin, wrote the Texan yesterday.

Wiley wrote Garner to come back to Washington because "some of us would feel just a little surer, a little more safe and far more happy if you would just come back . . . I believe this country needs you here."

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 2 (AP).—Kentuckians will climax the dullest political campaign in many years tomorrow by selecting party nominees for one United States Senate post and the State's nine seats in the House of Representatives.

Senator A. B. (Happy) Chandler, now serving by appointment, is running for nomination for the unexpired term of the late M. M. Logan. Observers believe his nomination over five opponents is assured.

Bell County Attorney Walter B. Smith, of Pineville, apparently held the inside track over four opponents in the Republican senatorial contest.

The nine incumbent representatives—one Republican and eight Democrats—were expected to win renomination.

A Republican, appointed in 1921 by President Harding, he had served under Harding, Coolidge, Hoover and Roosevelt and, as a lone wolf independent of political shackles, told them all where to "get off" on numerous occasions where fiscal policies were concerned.

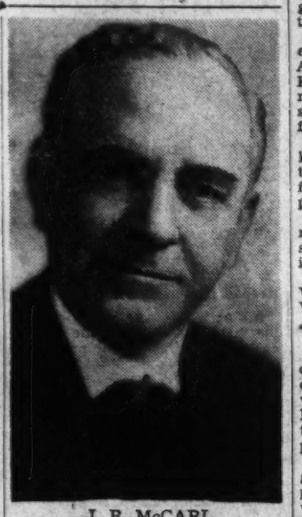

McCarl could have made a sinecure of his $10,000 job—the President does not have the power to remove the Comptroller General—but he went over Congressional acts with a fine-toothed comb, made his own decisions and, in short, took his work with a seriousness rarely observed in the Capital.

His job became more important and complicated with the advent of the Roosevelt Administration in 1933 and it was during the ensuing three years, ended with his compulsory retirement, that the force and frequency of his "No's!" were felt most.

Blue Penciled Pet Projects

The McCarl blue pencil struck at Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes' (then PWA administrator) pet $100,000,000 slum clearance plan, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's scheme to buy up surplus lambs with drought funds and a myriad other projects which, according to his interpretation, were not meant to be undertaken when Congress passed the enabling acts.

House May Get Sumners Bill Soon

House leaders would insure a rule on the resolution.

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, said he would call a meeting of his judiciary subcommittee on Monday to decide what course to pursue in the Senate on his companion resolution while awaiting House action.

The King resolution is identical with the original Sumners resolution but is different from the measure reported by the House Judiciary Committee because of the Reed amendment eliminating District representation in the Senate as one of the proposals in the constitutional amendment.

Hope that Senate representation will be restored to the resolution was expressed meanwhile by Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and John Russell Young. The District heads expressed appreciation, however, of the action taken by the Judiciary Committee in reporting the measure.

Junior Board Begins Drive

The Junior Board of Commerce of Washington announced that it was launching a campaign to enlist support of nearly 1,000 similar organizations throughout the country in support of the national representation legislation.

The support of these local organizations will be sought, according to A. Z. Wood, president of the Washington board, not only in solidifying Congressional opinion in favor of national representation, but also in organizing a long Nation-wide educational representation but also in anticipation of action by the Legislatures on the proposed constitutional amendment.

The United States Junior Chamber of Commerce has a total membership of approximately 110,000 men between the ages of 21 and 35 years. At its convention in Memphis in 1936 the organization went on record in favor of national representation for the District.

Paul Lesh, vice president of the citizens committee on national representation, will speak to the Washington board on the subject at a luncheon meeting next Thursday.

Canal 'Foreign Agents' Prove To Be Refugees

Some of 81 May Be Secret Operatives, Says War Department

The War Department said yesterday that the 81 aliens being held for deportation at the Canal Zone, who were called 'foreign agents' Thursday by Secretary Stimson, are European refugees.

An Army spokesman, explaining why the department corrected Secretary Stimson's use of the term "foreign agents," told The Post that there might be some real foreign operatives among the refugees, but that the group was thought to be made up of Europeans fleeing from the havoc and persecution of the Old World.

The little group being held at the Canal Zone Immigration Station, following a Zone-wide investigation of all residents, is made up of Germans, Yugoslavs, Poles, Spaniards, Italians and Czechs, it was learned.

Report Is Clarified

Secretary Stimson, interviewed after a Cabinet meeting yesterday, was asked why the "foreign agents" of Thursday were the "refugees" of Friday. He replied:

"No, they are foreign agents. Who told you they were refugees?"

Informed that the War Department statement to the press had described the 81 as refugees, Secretary Stimson said:

"I haven't heard anything about it."

The War Department published its clarifying statement after Leopoldo Arosemena, Panama's minister of interior and acting foreign minister, said at Panama that the 81 persons held for deportation at the Zone were mostly European "refugees."

Some Given Employment

In its formal statement yesterday on the matter the War Department said:

"The 81 aliens now awaiting disposition in the Canal immigration station are part of a large number of refugees who entered the Republic of Panama several months ago, where they were permitted by the Panamanian government to remain temporarily. Some were given temporary employment in the Canal Zone. The papers of all refugees so employed have been examined and it has been found that 81 have no legal status whatever. They have been discharged and have since been held in the Canal immigration station awaiting disposition."

Meanwhile, as precautions tightened around the canal lifeline, Rear Admiral Frank H. Sadler, of the Fifteenth Naval District, confirmed reports yesterday that four destroyers had arrived at the canal for special duty.

Their task, he said, would be to keep shipping out of mined entrances, a statement constituting the first official admission that the approaches to the big cut are mined.

The admiral qualified his statement with the explanation that personnel was being trained in the laying and sweeping of mines.

The destroyers are the W. C. Wood, Abel P. Upshur, Herndon and Welles.

"Underground Railway" Seen

Detroit, Aug. 2 (AP).—Immigration officers received orders today to find out whether an "underground railway" has been operating across the Detroit River for aliens fleeing to the United States from the European war zone.

John L. Zurbrick, district immigration director, said his order was prompted by the apparent ease with which three Polish sailors, charged with deserting a ship carrying German prisoners to Quebec, crossed from Ontario to Trenton, Mich., the night of July 25.

The seamen, Michal Sochul, Alexander Turkiewicz and Karol Plonka, are being held under $1,000 bond each on charges of illegal entry.

"These sailors got across the border so easily that they must have had help," Zurbrick said. "It looks like there might have been an underground railway operating, not only in this, but in other cases, and it has probably been built up into a profitable machine since the war.

Information on the sailors' entry and all similar cases has been furnished the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the immigration director added.

Defense Sidelights

Knox Urges Naval Contractors Not to Lure Skilled Labor Away From One Another

Secretary Knox urged naval contractors yesterday to do all they can to prevent "pirating or scamping of labor."

KNOX

This practice of enticing men from one employer to work for another, "both of whom may be engaged on work of equal importance," Knox said, always leads eventually to uneconomical and disastrous results."

Knox made the plea in a statement which also said that some skilled labor shortages obviously would exist. He called on private industry to make use of a large reservoir of unemployed men and to start apprentice courses to train workers.

Sault Canal Locks Are Closed by Army

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 2 (AP).—The War Department today closed the Sault canal locks to all visitors, effective August 12, as a matter of "military necessity."

No other reason was given for the closing, which restores a restriction that existed from the outbreak of war in Europe last September until June 15 of this year.

Sault Ste. Marie businessmen planned a plea to Washington to delay the effective date of the order until after Labor Day.

Navy Awards Contracts For Four Air Bases

A start on construction of the farthest outpost of the United State's Alaskan defenses, facing Russia and Japan, was authorized by the Navy yesterday in awarding $8,914,500 in contracts for work at four insular naval air stations.

Already engaged in work on the air station at Kodiak Island in the Gulf of Alaska, a syndicate of three firms was given the order to begin preparing aviation facilities at Unalaska Island, first big link in the Aleutian Islands, which string down and out from the southern tip of Alaska.

Contracts also were let for work in Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands and Midway Island.

Women Would Work In War, Roosevelt Says

President Roosevelt, saying he had talked the matter over with Mrs. Roosevelt, gave women an idea today of the Administration's plans for their part in national defense.

Generally, he said, this country would follow those of Europe, where women back home were organized to help in every way they could. For example, in case of a defensive war, he explained, the country would need a certain number of trained nurses.

He was talking with Mrs. Roosevelt the other day about this, the President continued, and it was mentioned that some registered nurses would have to be taken from his home county hospitals (Dutchess County, N. Y.). Their places, he said, would be filled by practical nurses.

U. S. Navy Takes Over Twelve Fishing Trawlers

Boston, Aug. 2 (AP).—Twelve of the most modern trawlers in the Boston fishing fleet have been taken over by the Navy Department, or will be as soon as negotiations can be completed, for use as minesweepers, fisheries officials disclosed today.

Edward J. Cooley, manager of the Massachusetts Fisheries Association, estimated that $2,500,000 was involved.

This national defense move meant loss of berths to approximately 250 fishermen.

Spokesmen for the companies said they wished to build new trawlers, but found this impossible because yards were crowded with naval and merchant shipping. They said they probably would build a fleet of draggers, smaller craft, to replace the trawlers.

G. O. P. Opens Fire on Flynn

Democrat Chief Hit; Hiram Johnson No Liberal—President

Republicans last night opened fire on the Democrats' new national chairman, Edward J. Flynn, of New York, shortly after President Roosevelt had rejected Senator Hiram Johnson, California Republican, as a liberal or progressive Democrat.

Through the Republican National Committee, Representative Halleck, of Indiana, who placed Wendell Willkie's name in nomination at the Philadelphia convention, declared in a statement that selection of Flynn "is in keeping with the character of the big city machine support that was chiefly responsible for giving Mr. Roosevelt his alleged draft nomination at Chicago."

Job With Walker Cited

"We learn," Halleck said, "that Tammany Hall, New York's notorious political machine that dominates both city and State politics, is thoroughly satisfied with the choice, as well it may be. Christopher D. Sullivan, boss of Tammany, declares, according to these reports, 'The choice is a splendid one. Ed Flynn is qualified in every way for the job. He has a good record of experience.'

"This experience includes a term as sheriff of Bronx County, N. Y. Thomas E. Dewey, New York prosecutor, recently called attention to the fact that Mr. Flynn appointed as a deputy sheriff the late Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer, slain gangster and policy racketeer. Dutch Schultz, it will be remembered, was an associate of Jimmy Hines, convicted Tammany district leader and Roosevelt patronage dispenser in New York.

"Mr. Flynn has the distinction of having served as city chamberlain under the Tammany administration of Mayor James J. Walker, an administration that smelled so high to heaven that Mr. Walker resigned and made himself a temporary expatriate abroad."

Halleck expressed belief that the choice of Flynn would be equally pleasing "to the Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago and to Joe Guffey in Pennsylvania," and other "politicians of their ilk" who are supporting the third-term ticket.

The President's comment on Senator Johnson, who supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1932, came at his press conference when a reporter pointed out that Johnson is seeking nomination on the Democratic, Republican and Progressive tickets. Asked whether he regarded the Senator as a Democrat, Mr. Roosevelt replied with a flat no.

He said he did not think anyone would consider Johnson a liberal or progressive Democrat in the year 1940.

He is still very fond of the Senator, he said, but added that the Californian certainly has changed a lot in the last four or five years.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, took issue with the President, saying:

"I consider Hiram Johnson one of the great liberals of the country. His speech in 1932 did more to help President Roosevelt carry the Western States than anything that happened during the campaign."

Favors Draft Plan, Roosevelt Says

crat), of Pennsylvania, and defeated, 7 to 1.

The committee did, however, modify the preamble to the bill by striking out such phraseology as "the integrity and institutions of the United States are gravely threatened." The title had previously been changed to eliminate a similar clause and also the word "compulsory."

President Roosevelt made his observations on selective training when a newspaperman suggested to him that some members of Congress thought he wasn't so "hot" about the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

Avoiding the "Must"

If he had sent to the Capitol a recommendation for a particular measure, observed the President, he would be accused of ordering Congress to pass his bill, and charges would be heard of Old Mr. Dictator.

Recalling that in the early days of his first Administration he had sent ready-made bills to the Hill, the President observed that he had been criticized for that, and soon dropped the practice.

Later Senator Vandenberg remarked:

"He has a convenient memory. Only this week, he wrote the National Guard bill (a measure giving the President authority to call up the National Guard and Reserve Officers Corps for training) and attached it to his message."

The lessons of this war, the President added, show very clearly that defense means total defense and means a great deal of equipment which the Nation does not have. In this connection, he observed that contracts have been signed or work has already been begun on $1,800,000,000 of national defense materials.

In the last war, said the President, the Nation did not get into military action for 13½ months from declaration of hostilities. Noting that the country was completely free from any attack, the President suggested that that was sheer luck and would never happen again in the history of the United States.

Factory workers require training just as much as the armed forces, he said, adding that trained personnel can't be obtained by merely passing a law on outbreak of war—or by the voluntary system. He said that the draft is the fairest way.

Asked if women should be included in the draft, the President replied not at the present time, although he thought they might be used in home defense.

In his letter to Senator Vandenberg, former Secretary Woodring wrote: "How any fair-minded member of Congress could say that we have given the voluntary system of enlistment for the U. S. Army a fair trial and that it has broken down, and therefore we need the compulsory service, is beyond my understanding."

Woodring pointed out that the Navy and the CCC give higher pay than the Army, and that when he urged seven months ago that base Army pay be boosted to $30, he was informed such a move would be "inconsistent with the financial program of the Administration."

"Whether that inconsistency holds good today, I would be willing for the Senate to decide," he said.

The effort of several Democratic Senators to persuade the President to advocate postponement of the draft bill until after the election collapsed with his press conference statement.

"There's our answer," one of them ruefully observed, adding that he thought the bill would get a "pretty good majority" in the Senate.

At hearings of the House Military Affairs Committee on the draft proposal, Representative Secrest (Democrat), of Ohio, said a million men would enlist voluntarily if the period were shortened to one year from the present three-year limit.

Former Representative Baldridge, of Nebraska, said, however, that volunteer recruiting had failed and that conscription was "the only logical answer."

The Rev. Owen A. Knox, of Washington, representing the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, said peacetime conscription was "utterly abhorrent to free men," while the Rev. Charles Boss, of Chicago, secretary of the Methodist Churches' Commission on World Peace, said that "the United States cannot beat Hitler by being like him."

The first "compelling fact that will give the aggressors pause is compulsory military training," said Capt. Gill Robb Wilson, Washington, president of the National Aeronautical Association.

Milwaukee, Aug. 2 (INS).—Contending conscription either for military or industrial service would defeat gains made by labor and upset economic conditions, the Wisconsin Federation of Labor tonight stood opposed to any form of compulsory service.

Henry Ohl, president of the federation, said a copy of the resolution decrying conscription would be forwarded to Congressmen.

Dr. Dillard Dies in Virginia; Famous Educator Was 84

Awarded Gold Medal for Promoting Good Relations Between Races; Began Career Teaching Mathematics; College Bears Name

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—Dr. James Hardy Dillard, 84, nationally known educator, died shortly after 7 o'clock tonight at his home here. He had been ill for some time.

Dr. Dillard, the father of Hardy C. Dillard, director of the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs, was president of the Jeanes Foundation for Negro Rural Schools from 1907-31 and also a director from 1910-17 and president from 1917-31 of the John F. Slater Funds now known as the Southern Education Foundation.

Headed Church Clubs

His activities also have included the vice presidency of the Phelps-Stokes Fund in 1923, the presidency of the National Conference of Church Clubs, 1901-02, and membership on the General Education Board.

He was awarded a gold medal and $300 in 1928 by the Harmon Foundation of New York for the promotion of good relations between the races and for boosting colored youths' educational facilities in the South. He also received the Roosevelt Medal in 1937.

Dillard University, for colored, in New Orleans, was named for him.

Career Began in 1875

Dr. Dillard was born in Nansemond County in 1856 and educated at Washington and Lee, Tulane, University of the South and Harvard.

His educational career began as assistant professor of mathematics at Washington and Lee in 1875-77. He also served as principal of Rodman School in Norfolk and Norfolk Academy, later going to Washington University, St. Louis, and then to Tulane as dean of academic colleges from 1904-07. He received the LL. D. degree from Tulane in 1908. Washington and Lee conferred the D. Litt. degree upon him in 1899.

Funeral services for Dr. Dillard will be held at 3:30 Sunday afternoon at Christ Episcopal Church here.

Planning Board Approves Five D. C. Changes

Details of Fourteenth Street-Maine Avenue Overpass Unsolved

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission approved a variety of proposed changes in Greater Washington's contour yesterday and then adjourned until September.

With Chairman Frederic A. Delano, uncle of President Roosevelt, in the presiding chair, the planners:

Approved construction of a $500,000 grade separation project at Fourteenth street and Maine avenue, but decided to wait until September to make up their minds as to the design for relieving traffic congestion at this downtown bottleneck.

Widening Plan Approved

Approved plans submitted by Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst to widen Massachusetts avenue between Wisconsin avenue and California street to 42 feet. It is now 38.

Approved plans submitted by the Office of National Capital Parks for straightening the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway below the new Massachusetts avenue bridge.

Approved contracts for acquisition of additional land for the George Washington Memorial Parkway along the Virginia and Maryland banks of the Potomac, between the District Line and Great Falls.

Center Park Recommended

Approved a scheme, originating with the Public Roads Administration and National Capital Parks Office, to streamline the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway Circle on the north edge of Alexandria for the purpose of speeding up traffic entering the town.

Took under advisement a recommendation by Jay Downer, highway consultant, that Fort Drive, now in process of development, be decorated with a center parking motif.

According to Thomas S. Settle, secretary, the commission and District Building are agreed that Fourteenth street should overpass Maine avenue, but details of the scheme present many perplexing problems. One is: How and where would north or southbound traffic wishing to cut into West Potomac Park make the turn?

Ambulance Delay Starts 3 Probes street beside his car.

The first police car to reach the scene arrived at 7:32 a. m., according to police records. Policemen G. H. Swearingen and E. E. Devey, the Twelfth Precinct scout car crew, were told that an ambulance already had been called by passersby.

Subsequently, it was reported, four more calls were made for an ambulance before it arrived at 8:23 a. m.

Meanwhile, Dr. Frank Shea, 4100 Twenty-second street northeast, summoned by witnesses, arrived and rendered first aid. He advised police not to remove Greaves in a police car.

The man's wife, Mrs. Emma Greaves, was called from their home at 3819 Twentieth street northeast. She kneeled beside her injured husband, offering comfort, for 40 minutes. Their son, Clifton E. Greaves, who came from a downtown office building, was at the scene 15 minutes before the ambulance arrived, it was reported.

The first call for an ambulance apparently was made by W. F. Cusick, 2228 Quincy street. He said he called police shortly after 7:30 a. m. and thought he talked to the radio dispatcher. He was told, Cusick said, that he must call the Twelfth Precinct. "That's your job," he said he replied.

"Emergency" Number Called

After a preliminary investigation, Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, acting superintendent of police, said the radio dispatcher on duty, Pvt. C. E. Riley, received no call for an ambulance. Edwards explained that calls from citizens are never put through to the radio man.

Another call, apparently soon after Cusick's, was made by S. P. Bailey, 2224 Quincy street. He said he called the "emergency" number listed in the front of the telephone book. Whoever answered the phone—and he thought it was a hospital—said an ambulance would be sent, Bailey reported.

The "emergency" number connects directly with the switchboard at police headquarters. Two police operators—Mrs. Edna Murray and Private W. N. Cook—were on duty. Inspector Edwards said he intended to talk to both of them this morning to learn which one received calls about the accident. Both work from midnight to 8 a. m.

Both Mrs. Murray and Cook, when they came on duty last night, said they would reserve comment until they reported to Edwards this morning.

Dr. J. Rogers Young, chief of staff at Casualty Hospital, reported that only one call for an ambulance was received. This, he said, came in at 7:56 a. m. The Casualty telephone operator, H. V. Kuder, said that was the only call he received and it was from a policeman asking why the ambulance hadn't been sent.

Ambulance Receives Radio Call

"That call," said Dr. Young, "was the first we knew of the accident, and we immediately dispatched an ambulance. I am certain that any other calls which may have been made either went to some other hospital or to police—I am positive we didn't receive any others."

Dr. Young added, however, that a radio call was received by his ambulance just as it drew up to the scene of the accident.

Bennett, the bus driver, gave a statement to Capt. Oscar Letterman, commander of the Twelfth Precinct. At 7:33 a. m., he said, he saw Policeman D. J. Slattery, one of the first officers to arrive, go into a house at 3823 Twenty-second street with the announced intention of calling an ambulance.

Bennett said he heard Ernest N. O'Brien, Capital Transit Co. inspector, say he (O'Brien) had already called before Slattery went into the house. Policeman Devey also was heard by Bennett to ask his partner, Policeman Swearingen, to check on previously reported call to Casualty.

Inspector Edwards announced that the Twelfth Precinct received a call from a citizen at 7:38 a. m. requesting an ambulance. The precinct immediately called Casualty and was told that an ambulance was on the way, Inspector Edwards said.

Heavy traffic, said Dr. Young, explained the lapse of time from 7:56 when he said the first call was received until 8:23 when the ambulance reached the scene.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said he was conducting a careful inquiry and set an inquest for 11:30 a. m. Monday. Assistant Health Officer Daniel J. Seckinger, said he asked Casualty Hospital for a complete report.

Police officials pointed out that there are at least five ambulances on emergency duty at all times. These include: Two at Casualty, one at Emergency, one at Freedmen's and a Fire Rescue squad ambulance. All but the last named carries a doctor.

Mr. Greaves was the city's forty-second traffic victim of the year. The toll at this time last year was 49.

An automobile operated by Joseph Trorian, 48, of Pittsburgh, was damaged last night in collision with a Casualty Hospital ambulance at Seventh and M streets northwest. The ambulance, responding to a sick call, was operated by William Gary, colored, 30, of 221 F street northwest.

Charles Town Woman Leaps To Death Here

SCENE OF DEATH LEAP—Window (arrow) of the McReynolds Apartment, 705 Eighteenth street northwest, from which Mrs. Julia W. Potts, 42, leaped yesterday to her death, striking the sidewalk at X

D. C. Relatives Assert Victim Was in Ill Health

Mrs. Julia W. Potts, 42, a visitor to Washington from Charles Town, W. Va., was killed instantly yesterday when she leaped from a sixth floor window of the McReynolds Apartments, 705 Eighteenth street northwest. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Mrs. Potts was the guest of Mrs. Rosa Hankey, the apartment house manager. She had driven here yesterday from her West Virginia home to spend several days. With her was a sister, Mrs. Mary Lucas.

Mrs. Potts was alone in the living room of the Hanky apartment when she plunged from the window. Mrs. Lucas and Mrs. Hankey, who were in an adjoining room, knew nothing of the tragedy until notified by a telephone operator in the lobby.

The woman's body struck several awnings in its descent and landed on the sidewalk in G street.

Mrs. Hankey told police that her guest had been in ill health for some time and only recently was released from a hospital in West Virginia.

Mrs. Potts also leaves a husband, Llewellyn Potts, of Charles Town.

House Committee Expected to Ditch Slum-Housing Bill

By the Associated Press

Informed Congressional sources predicted yesterday that the House Rules Committee would ditch a slum clearance-housing bill which is before Congress with Administration backing.

The measure would authorize the annual appropriation of $5,000,000 to release $150,000,000 which the United States Housing Authority is authorized to lend, but for which it lacks rent subsidy funds.

The original Housing Act authorized a $800,000,000 program and provided $28,000,000 for rent subsidies. The USHA has reported that the $28,000,000 was sufficient to service only $650,000,000, leaving $150,000,000 unusable under present conditions.

O'Donald Child Buried in Oakwood

A sad chapter in the life of the Stephen O'Donald family, 1606 Thirty-third street, was closed yesterday morning with the burial of 3-year-old Winona O'Donald in Oakwood Cemetery, Falls Church, Va. There is still a drab future before the parents, the brother and five sisters of the child who was fatally injured Monday, when struck by an automobile near her home.

Two in Snake Cult Start Hunger Strike

Father, Cleric Face Murder Charge if Bitten Girl Dies

By the Associated Press

Adel, Ga., Aug. 2.—Rejecting food and water, two members of a "snake-handling" religious cult went on a hunger strike today, protesting arrest in connection with the poisoning of 6-year-old Leitha Ann Rowan at rites a week ago.

While overalled followers shouted encouragement from the dusty, sun-baked square, gaunt Rev. W. T. Lipham and his tenant-farmer adherent, Albert Rowan, clasped Bibles and paced separate cells in Cook County Jail, praying aloud for Divine deliverance. Both sent word to Sheriff W. I. Daughtrey they would "fast a while."

Meanwhile, Sheriff Daughtrey said he was asked by Sheriff N. N. Hughes of neighboring Berrien County to detain Lipham pending investigation and possible action on the year-old death of Mrs. Jettie Smith, a cult member who succumbed after snake-handling rites.

Lipham and Rowan, Daughtrey related, refused their breakfast of sausage, grits, egg and biscuit, asking the sheriff to bring them no more food.

"They said when they wanted some, they'd let me know," he said.

On the progress of the Rowan child, whose relatives claimed she was responding to the cult's "faith" cure without medical treatment, hinged the extent of legal action which may be taken against her father and Lipham. Both remained in jail on charges of assault with intent to murder.

Sheriff Daughtrey said the two men would be allowed freedom on bond when the girl is pronounced out of danger from the copperhead moccasin's bite inflicted more than a week ago as the snake was passed around in religious rites at her farm home.

Missing more than 72 hours as her mother sought to prevent treatment, the girl was rushed to the sheriff's office by relatives who insisted Leitha Ann had practically recovered, but Dr. H. W. Clements disagreed. He said her condition remained serious and ordered another examination Monday.

It is the cult's belief followers can handle poisonous snakes "when the power is upon them" and that their faith will counteract venom. Actual medical treatment for the girl was refused, but relatives permitted examination after Superior Judge Smith ruled yesterday Lipham and Rowan would have to face murder charges if the child died.

So dexterous is Westrick in the use of his wooden leg that many of his closest friends were unaware of the artificial limb until it was revealed in newspaper stories of the past two days, he declared.

Meanwhile the German Embassy reiterated a statement of Hans Thomsen, the charge d'affaires, on Westrick's arrival here June 6: "He is here to investigate the possibility of a satisfactory post-war relationship between Germany and the United States."

"Germany, of course, is confident of an early victory . . . after that victory there will be several difficult problems affecting the economy and relationship of both Germany and the United States."

Gives Up Auto License

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Aug. 2.—In response to an order from Commissioner Carroll E. Mealey, of the State motor vehicle bureau, requiring Dr. Gerhardt Alois Westrick to surrender his automobile license plates and driver's license pending a hearing on his right to retain them, the commercial counselor to the German Embassy visited the commissioner this morning.

In the course of a half hour's conference it was learned that the Nazi counselor insisted on standing on his diplomatic rights and argued that, as an attache of the German Embassy, he was immune to any local legal proceeding and that the bureau lacked jurisdiction.

Commissioner Mealey, however, held that when the counselor signed the application for a license he placed himself under the jurisdiction of the bureau. The counselor agreed to give up his plates and licenses pending the outcome of a hearing, for which a date has not been set, but which is expected to take place within a week.

Surrounded by newspapermen as he came out of the commissioner's offices, Dr. Westrick said he "was not allowed to make any statement."

Asked what he had discussed with Commissioner Mealey, he insisted it had nothing to do with the license matter, but that it included "many things."

Pressed for some comment, he remarked, "I would like to make a statement. If I could have made a statement all this would not be necessary. That business about the 'G' at my window—that is all nonsense."

Dr. Westrick was referring to a placard with the letter "G" on it which appeared intermittently from the second-floor window of his home at 188 Mamaroneck road, Scarsdale, and which is thought to be a signal for the delivery of certain ice cream products.

Upon continued urging the counselor said, "My sole duty in this country is to prepare the way for better trade between Germany and the United States after the European war."

Richard B. Ely Dies Serving In British Army

RICHARD B. ELY

Former Virginia U. Athlete Enlisted In Royal Engineers

Richard J. Ely, 26, former athletic and fraternity leader at the University of Virginia, died somewhere in England while serving with the Royal Canadian Engineers, it was learned here yesterday.

He was a brother of Mrs. Richard T. Glass, wife of Lieut. Comdr. Glass, of the Westchester Apartments. Comdr. Glass said yesterday that Mr. Ely left Washington May 15 to enlist in the Canadian army, are arrived in England June 20.

Word from England said only that he died July 12 after an abdominal operation in a new Canadian base hospital "somewhere in the British Isles." It was not known whether he was wounded or was operated upon for an illness.

Mr. Ely, it was said, left the University of Virginia in 1938. He was president of Sigma Alpha Upsilon Fraternity and played in the backfield of the football team. Before attending the university, he studied at the Danville (Va.) Military Institute and Long Beach Junior College in California. He took military training three summers at Quantico.

He was born in Pago Pago, Samoa, while his father, Clarence F. Ely, was stationed there with the Navy. A brother, Chester D. Ely, resides in Philadelphia.

Lord Beaverbrook Joins the Inner War Cabinet

London, Aug. 2 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill has invited Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, to join the inner war cabinet.

An announcement tonight said that the publisher, known in Fleet street as "Beaver," would continue for the time being at the head of aircraft production—a task at which his flair for originality led him to ask housewives to give up their aluminum to make planes.

His elevation means the formation of a powerful sextet—Churchill, former Prime Minister Chamberlain, Viscount Halifax, Arthur Greenwood, Clement Attlee and Beaverbrook—to direct the war.

two members of Scotland Yard who called at his home. Makihara had been in London about one year, the embassy said, adding that up to 10:30 p. m. no other Japanese residents had been seized.

Prior to Makihara's arrest Japanese informants here had expressed conviction Britain would take no retaliatory action against Japan because of her desire to avoid complications in the Far East while the British fleet is occupied in the Mediterranean and the defense of the homeland.

The Japanese admitted, however, that the British government "might not remain passive" so long as British residents of Japan continue in prison on what the British insist are vague charges.

Ambassador Mamoru Shigemitsu asked an early appointment with Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax to obtain details of the arrests.

British circles described Makihara's arrest as a "detention" and said the fact it followed the detention of Britons in Japan was a "coincidence."

The situation thus appeared to be moving rapidly toward a new crisis as reliable Japanese informants here said that the government in Tokyo could not interfere with the examination of the imprisoned Britons in Tokyo even if it wanted to. The government, it was explained, has no jurisdiction over military police who act directly under the war office which is responsible only to Emperor Hirohito.

Col. Longstreet, Son of South's General, Dies

Godson of Lee Taken Ill While Vacationing At Princeton, W. Va.

Lieut. Col. Robert Lee Longstreet, 77, eldest surviving son of Lieut. Gen. James Longstreet, commander of the First Corps of the Confederate Army of Northern Virginia, and a godson of Gen. Robert E. Lee, died Thursday at Princeton, W. Va.

Col. Longstreet was born at Petersburg, Va., in the winter of 1863, a few months after the Battle of Gettysburg whose climax was Pickett's charge, launched by his father. Named for Gen. Lee, he appears often in Longstreet's letters to his commander as "your little namesake."

Served in Cuba

He was educated in preparatory schools at New Orleans, where his father settled after the war, and was graduated from North Georgia Agricultural College at Dahlonega, Ga. In the early 1880s he came to Washington as a secretary to Senator Lucius Q. C. Lamar, of Mississippi.

During the Spanish-American War he served in Cuba on the staff of Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, and entered service of the War Department upon his return. He was quartermaster of the Eighty-first (Wildcat) Division in the World War, winning the Silver Star citation for bravery in action. Since the war he lived in Washington, engaging in the real estate business. He was on a vacation at Princeton at the time of his death.

Funeral Monday

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Louise Longstreet Whelchel, of Washington; a brother, Randolph Longstreet, of Gainesville, Ga.; four nephews, Maj. James L. Whelchel, of Fort Belvoir, Va.; Commander John Esten Whelchel, U. S. N.; Lieut. David Lee Whelchel, U. S. N., and William Longstreet, of Washington, and three nieces, Mrs. John Morgan and Mrs. Raymond Stone, both attached to the State Department, and Mrs. Paul Doolin, of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at Fort Myer Chapel on Monday at 9 a. m., with burial beside his brother, Lieut. Col. James Longstreet, in Arlington National Cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers will include Judge Fulton Lewis, sr., Maj. Gen. Henry Gibbons, Col. W. Lawrence Hazard, Col. Ralph W. Crain and Arthur Clarendon Smith.

Dr. Frischkorn, Physician in D. C. 30 Years, Dies

Dr. R. W. Frischkorn, 64, of 1338 Monroe street northeast, a practicing physician in Washington more than 30 years, died yesterday at Providence Hospital of a heart ailment.

Born in Lawrence County, Pa., Dr. Frischkorn was graduated from George Washington University and the New York Postgraduate Medical School and Hospital. He entered practice here in 1904 and served on the local draft board during the World War. He was a veteran of the Spanish War, a member of the American Medical Association and of the Knights of Columbus.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. O. W. Frishchkorn, of Dover, Del.; two sons, Ralph W. Frischkorn, of Baltimore, and Paul Frischkorn, of Detroit; a daughter, Mrs. H. B. Keeler, of Norristown, Pa.; four grandchildren, five brothers and four sisters.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 8:30 a. m. at the home, followed by mass at 9:30 a. m. at St. Anthony's Church, Brookland. Burial will be in Odd Fellows Cemetery, Smyrna, Del.

Comedy, Romance and Music Spice 'My Love Came Back,' at the Earle

Popular Cast Makes Trite Screen Tale Palatable Diversion; Skelton on Stage

Brothers picturization of a story by Walter Reisch, adapted to the screen by Ivan Goff, Robert Buckner and Earl Baldwin, costarring Olivia de Havilland and Jeffrey Lynn, with Charles Winninger, Eddie Albert, Jane Wyman, Spring Byington, William Orr, Ann Gillis, S. Z. Sakall, Grant Mitchell, Charles Trowbridge, Mabel Taliaferro, Sidney Bracy, William Davidson and Nanette Vallon. Directed by Kurt Bernhardt. Previewed Monday, July 29. At the Earle Theater.

Numerous variants of the same theme have found their way to the screen frequently in the past. It is the familiar fable of the gifted young violin virtuosa, harassed by domestic difficulties and the need of money, who succumbs to the temptation to sacrifice a classical career for the quick rewards of a new type of "swing" that brings novel rhythms to her favorite compositions and outrages the directors of the Brissac Academy of Music, where she is a scholarship pupil. Nevertheless, "My Love Came Back," the current screen attraction at the Earle Theater, affords enough new twists and is sufficiently well performed to take an honorable place among the lighter and more amusing of the summer's romantic comedies.

BELL

The trouble starts when the wealthy Julius Malette accepts the presidency of the Brissac Academy, prompted principally by the charm of its prize student. It is multiplied when Eddie Albert devises a sacrilegious version of what Jane Wyman designates Liszt's "Second Hungarian Raspberry" and further compounded when the senior Malette becomes a little too generous in his endowments and attempts to conceal them as unexplainable items on his general manager's expense account. It would have to develop, of course, that both the owner of the Monarch Music Co. and his general manager fall in love with the same girl. At a swanky party, at which Mr. Albert's band makes its debut, Mrs. Malette intuitively senses the disturbing contretemps and maneuvers all concerned, including her old man, into calmer waters, where Olivia de Havilland's love comes back, in the person of Jeffrey Lynn, the innocent John Alden of the proceedings.

This genial and thoroughly innocuous business has been agreeably executed by a cast who find no great tax levied upon their abilities. Miss de Havilland and Mr. Lynn are the ostensible stars of the goings-on and each fulfills the modest requirements of his featherweight role with what might be called aplomb. In fact, we'll call it that. Scarcely less conspicuous—and at times considerably more amusing—are Charles Winninger as the harmlessly solicitous elder Malette, and Eddie Albert as the revolutionary young orchestra leader. Jane Wyman and Spring Byington are pleasantly cast in routine roles, but little Ann Gillis, who has "grown up" since "Tom Sawyer," furnishes a genuine surprise by the expertness of her portrayal of a high school kid with social and romantic aspirations a trifle beyond her years. S. Z. Sakall as the musical martinet and Grant Mitchell as the head of the Brissac Institute are the only others in the cast who matter—unless one counts William Carr as a mildly contemptible office trouble-maker.

The new stage bill at the Earle brings back that inimitable clown, "Red" Skelton and his charming associate, Edna Stillwell, for a final fling before "Red" begins a picture with Robert Taylor, for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, on August 9. The irrepressible Skelton headlines and emcee's the revue and does it with his accustomed vim. His individual lunacies include a gallery of motor-car drivers, a string of mates at a manicurist's table and impressions of the speechmakers up against the "mike" for the first time. This last struck this loge-lizard as the high point of Master Skelton's tomfoolery.

Among those glibly introduced by the stellar buffoon are Gil and Bernie Mason, ostensible dancers, who have fun with a troupe of beautifully untrained trained dogs—if you get the idea. One word from their master and they do as they please. Another novel act is that of Franklin D'Amore and a partner who supplies the surprise of a clever gymnastic stint. But next to the Skelton at yesterday's first performance, the hit of the show was provided by Yvette, a songstress who delivers her lilting melodies with extraordinary finesse and an extremely pleasant mezzo voice. Next to Bonnie Baker, I should say that for sheer distinctiveness of style Yvette ought to come first. And they are so little alike that maybe she ought to come first, anyhow.

The Roxyettes, for once not risking their necks in some bizarre stunt or other, score most emphatically in "swinging" the "Orpheus" overture in a clever exhibition of pickin' 'em up and layin' 'em down.

Eileen Ritter's all-request program for the "Sing-a-Song-with-Mike" interlude—which yesterday turned up a solo whistler who had what it took—and the new issue of the newsreel complete a bill that is easy to take at this lackadaisical season of the year, when the main idea is to relax and have fun.

Hectic Role

William Powell played one of his most active roles in "I Love You Again." His activities included a rescue at sea, two fist fights, a crack over the head with a platter of scrambled eggs, a chase by the town's police force, and an excursion with a group of juvenile Rangers.

The Artiste Who Went Swingeroo!

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND costarred with Jeffrey Lynn in the Warner Brothers production of "My Love Came Back," this week's major screen attraction at the Earle Theater. Eddie Albert, Jane Wyman, Charles Winninger and Spring Byington lead the supporting cast in this romance with music

Hitlerism Is Pummeled Again In 'Man I Married,' at Capitol

By Richard L. Coe

"THE MAN I MARRIED." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of the magazine story by Oscar Schisgall, adapted to the screen by Oliver H. P. Garrett, with Joan Bennett, Francis Lederer, Lloyd Nolan, Anna Sten, Otto Kruger, Maria Ouspenskaya, Ludwig Stossel, Johnny Russell, Lionel Royce, Fredrik Vogeding, Ernst Deutsch and Egon Brecher. Directed by Irving Pichel. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

Now that it's no longer financially profitable to remain mum about the Nazis, Hollywood belatedly is facing the facts. "The Man I Married," which opened yesterday at the Capitol, is the latest in an ever-increasing anti-Hitler caravan.

It differs from "The Mortal Storm" and "Four Sons" in that it views Mr. Hitler's setup through the eyes of two "show-me" Americans. A third visitor from New York falls for the little runt's pompous minions and it's a degrading spectacle to watch. There are out-and-out warnings about Nazi intentions toward this country in the form of relentless efforts to keep the United States neutral and aloof, much of which might have been more sensational had they not been deferred until the German film market was closed to the California studios anyway.

As it is, the story is interesting and credible. An American girl has been married, quietly and happily, to a young German for several years. He has taken out his first citizenship papers—their young son is an admirer of the Lone Ranger and they like their Yorkville settlement in New York. It is 1938 and they go to Germany purely on a visit to look after the property of his failing father.

Some Theories Are Exploded

The now-familiar cruelties of the tyrannical regime come into her ken slowly but surely. She meets an American reporter, played with capital vitality by Lloyd Nolan, who takes her to watch the Czechs gather up garbage which the Gestapo has dumped for that very purpose. She observes the fear in everyone she meets, the terror of spilling what one is really thinking. The fallacy, now being so cruelly spread in this country, that radios and automobiles cost less money than at home, is exploded when she learns that $1 to us is $10 to the unhappy Germans. But, worst of all, she sees her husband fall for the guff.

He's thrilled by the busybody air of it, the wanging of the drums, the heiling of it and the feeling that, as a German, he's part of a great new order. He falls, too, for a priestess of that new order and decides to remain for the kill that he feels is bound to come. She aids a wounded prisoner and gets popped in the Gestapo clink for her pains and unless she were a lass of spirit would be there yet. Thanks to her reporter friend, she is freed and determines to leave her husband and return with their boy to America. But the now thoroughly converted Nazi vows that his son is a German and must remain.

Anna Sten Returns

Joan Bennett, as the wife, and Nolan both lend such healthy American frankness to their roles that the story has an exciting and realistic pace. There is no doubt about their feelings on what they see around them; consequently their roles gain in natural quality. Francis Lederer, who was the snake in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," is the Nazified husband, while Anna Sten is particularly effective as the Nazi priestess. Otto Kruger, as the father; Maria Ouspenskaya, as a widowed victim of the regime, and Johnny Russell have the other important roles.

The Capitol stage revue is titled "Hollywood Horsefeathers." George Beatty, whose humor concerns "Gone With the Wind," girdles and lady drivers, is the headliner. Jimmy Lackore, a blond chap with a harmonica, offers a musical tour of the world including France, Spain and China; Saul Grauman and his four young ladies, whose inventiveness includes running up musical stairs that play the "1812" Overture; and Martin and Allen, two muscular chaps, whose tumbling has the distinct advantage of novelty, and several routines by the Rhythm Rockets are other attractions.

Sam Jack Kaufman openly deserts the classics for an applauded swing at the popular hits and Ilka Chase enlivens a color fashion short with her bicarbonate-of-soda diction. A Terrytoon and the Fox Movietone News complete the bill.

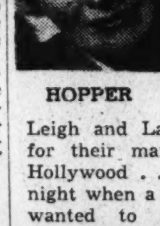

In Hollywood

—With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Aug. 2.

Don't be surprised if Alice Faye furnishes Tony Martin's bachelor apartment.

Tony arrives on the first, after doing sensational business on one-night stands. The women and kids are nerts over him . . . And September 20 is the date set by Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier for their marriage. Place? Hollywood . . . The other night when a gang of comics wanted to introduce Bob Hope, Bob said, "No, introduce Milton Berle first—I just want to see myself as others see me." People are saying Berle's nose is the best cutting job in town. Now, if he could only match his accent to it.

HOPPER

Margaret Tallichet, when she was under contract to Selznick, was one of the most over-publicized girls in town. Was given nothing to do, so she bought off her contract, fell in love with and married Director Willie Wyler, they had a baby. And now she's really starting her career in "Stranger on the Third Floor," without any publicity at all, and is doing a swell job.

Lots of people take credit for discovering Lois Andrews, but it was George White who persuaded her to go to New York after she worked at Earl Carroll's. There Lois met and roomed with Betty Allen, and was called the Peggy Hopkins Joyce of our day—what with jewels, furs, and apartments. Her pal, Betty Allen, has been playing in "DuBarry Was a Lady," fell in love with Benny Baker, and as soon as their mutual divorces are out of the way, they'll wed.

George Jessel, writing for Hal Roach, was in court in a lawsuit when Hal was yelling at the studio, "Where's Jessel? Isn't he around?" Then two days later, when Jessel tried to find Roach, he was told, "Haven't you heard? He's in court, fighting a lawsuit."

Even at double the money, Terry Kilburn's father wouldn't allow Terry to play a midget with a full beard. Do you blame him?

Kay Francis is trying to look prettier in "Little Men" than Katharine Hepburn did in "Little Women." And for what? Elsie's going to steal the picture . . . When a yacht salesman approached Gene Towne and tried to sell him one of those fancy gadgets, Gene asked, "Have you got one that floats at Ciro's?"

Family notes: Now that Mother Caroline Cagney is out of danger, she's recuperating down at Newport Beach with her two New York doctor sons, Harry and Edward, producer Bill, actor Jimmy, and actress Jean. Well, that's the Irish for you!

When Republic couldn't get Benny Goodman for their "Hit Parade of 1941," they took Patsy Kelly. Now, one of them should be insulted and I don't know which one.

On theater marquee, "Spencer Tracy in 'I Take This Woman' and 'The Farmer's Daughter'" . . . Shouldn't he have played "Brigham Young"?

The New Yorker

New York, Aug. 2.

ROMANCE: George Jessel told Lou Holtz about the expenses he incurred in his courtship of Lois Andrews—of the jewels and flowers and hansom rides through Central Park . . . "That was so silly and wasteful," Holtz told him. Before I was married, whenever I'd take out a girl, I'd say good-night to her, and give her 50 cents taxi fare. If she lived further uptown, I'd give her 75 cents. But if she lived very far away—then I gave her a nickel subway fare."

ENTERPRISE: Phil Silvers, the burlesque comic who went to Hollywood, was introduced to an agent who tried to get his signature to a contract. Silvers refused, explaining that he's contented with the work his agent has been getting for him . . . "But I have great influence out here," the other spieled . . . "First of all," asked Silvers, "Do you know Zanuck?" . . . "Who's Zanuck?" the agent answered . . . "First of all," Silvers explained.

PROOF: Harpo Marx lunched at the 21 Club, where a socialite entered and was introduced to the other people in the room. When he reached Harpo's table, and was introduced, he extended his hand, and said, politely: "How are you, Mr. Marx" . . . Harpo immediately arose, unbuttoned his shirt, removed his undershirt, and, thumping his chest, said: "I'm fine. See?"

ARRIVAL: Mike Romanoff, who went to Washington to secure a decision concerning his status here—because of his desire to become an American citizen—baffled the immigration experts. Some of them insist that Ramanoff really is Harry Gerguson, born in America. In that case, they must declare him an American. But Mike insists he's a Romanoff—which complicates the matter . . . In any event, this is the way Mike arrived in America—in 1934, on the Europa: He was in a Paris jail, as "Dr. Michael Romanoff." A newsreel man went to see him, passed his card in first, and discussed a deal to take newsreel shots of Mike . . . Romanoff saved that newsreel-card, and when the Europa was about to sail, he presented the card to a guard, said that he was boarding the vessel to examine some films, and remained on board.

LAMENT: Jack Pearl decided to try summer stock this season—a new experience for him—because he is dissatisfied with his current existence . . . receiving handsome weekly checks from the annuity funds he had amassed during the long years in which he was a star . . . "I don't like this kind of life," Pearl explained. "Believe me, I'd rather have people say about me, 'There goes a great actor,' instead of 'There goes a rich man.'"

ART: Ethel Barrymore told this story to Tallulah Bankhead—of the time when her father, Maurice Barrymore, was panned by the drama critic for the Police Gazette . . . Barrymore went to a bar, where he met the critic. "Good evening, Mr. Barrymore," greeted the Police Gazette's drama-reviewer, "did you see my review of your play yet?" . . . "No," replied Barrymore. "I always shave myself."

DANGER: Dorothy Hall, the star, owns a 54-foot yacht named "Hall by Herself," which was smashed against the rocks at Larchmont, and sank . . . Just before it went down, the captain rushed aboard . . . "Get off, get off," Dorothy shouted to him. "Never mind that routine about a Captain-must-go-down-with-his-ship" . . . "Routine nothing," the alarmed captain answered. "I'm looking for my citizenship papers."

ENTERPRISE: Charles Michelson, veteran publicity director for the National Democratic Committee, received a number of offers from large corporations as soon as the Democratic convention was over, and it became known that Michelson expected to retire from politics. One steel corporation offered an inviting proposition, where Michelson could name his own salary, but he refused. "Men can be made popular," he explained, "but not corporations."

SWANK: When Moss Hart employed his first butler, he gave him specific instructions about the type of service he expected. The first test came when George S. Kaufman phoned . . . "Mr. Hart's residence," the butler repeated . . . "I'd like to speak to Mr. Hart," said Kaufman . . . "Who?" asked the butler.

'I Married Adventure' Pictures Thrilling Life in Wilds, at Met.

"I MARRIED ADVENTURE." Columbia release, produced by Osa Johnson and starring Mrs. Johnson, with narration by Don Clark and Albert Duffy, narrated by Jim Bannon. Film from previous releases by the Johnsons and from Mrs. Johnson's private collection not previously made public. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Metropolitan Theater.

A real refresher, this "I Married Adventure"—especially considering the present disheveled state of the universe. It offers the weary public a beauteous escape from 1940 jitterbugs, Nazis and oratory into an untrammeled world of happy devil doctors, monkey men, cannibals and man-eating lions. Yesterday's audience at the Metropolitan was large and very pleased with the whole business.

Dangerous camera work is implicit in dozens of spots. Such vicious customers as charging rhinos and lions plough right up almost on top of the lens. Osa Johnson is shown in open country giving the coup de grace to a big rhino, one of the most treacherous brutes in the world. She waited until he was only a few feet away before she let go at him with her big game rifle. Even if other guns were trained on the rhino, it was still a touch-and-go business.

The sportiest lion hunt ever pictured is shown. It's not a matter of white hunters with rifles. No, sir! The African black boys go after Mr. Lion armed with nothing but spears and shields. The lion is huge, heavily maned and charges like a projectile. But you see the actual kill made with spears with the king of the jungle looking like a pincushion before it's over. One boy is badly mauled.

Osa and Martin Johnson must have had a great knack for getting along with all sorts of natives. There are a dozen or so of hilarious native dances that indicate the enthusiastic cooperation of the hillbillies of the South Seas and the rugcutters of darkest Africa.

Comedy is present in large gobs, too. There's the African pygmy and his struggle to light a huge cigar, the big fight that the pet chimp puts up when he has to take a bath, the antics and queer mugs of a dozen varieties of monkeys.

Impressive Air Shots

Highly beautiful and impressive are the air shots of jungle citizens taken over wide terrains. Nothing could so clearly indicate the richness and profusion of animal life in a continent untouched by civilization. You see a herd of hundreds of elephants accompanied by literal clouds of white cranes. Another African shot made near a waterhole shows myriads of varied game—wildebeest, lance-horned oryx, zebras, antelope, gazelle. It's like a primitive Eden.

Threads of a story run through the picture. They're not important, sometimes seem unconvincingly dramatic in a picture so impregnated with the natural drama of the wild.

The Three Stooges are at it again in rough-and-tumble comedy. Their current one shows them at their best in capturing kidnapers. The sports short is devoted to baseball and Pinkey Tomlin and his band prove diverting in an expose of the kinds of music favored in various sections of the country. The news reel indicates that America is preparing very earnestly for something—we hope for nothing.

MARY HARRIS.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 2 (INS).—Mary Pickford is reading "The Life of Dolly Madison" and reading it with interest for it was submitted to her by Mitzi Cummings, Louis B. Mayer's niece. With American historical plays so popular, this should be a natural for Mary. I would like to see M.-G.-M., or some other company, make the picture with Mary concentrating on the role of the lovely and vivacious Dolly, mistress of the White House, and forgetting the production end.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

I don't know why there wouldn't be great interest in bringing America's sweetheart back to the screen. The American public isn't as fickle as most people think, and Mary, remember, was the most famous motion picture actress in the world. She doesn't feel that she wants to undertake the responsibility of producing so lavish a picture on her own, but she is definitely interested in playing Dolly.

With all the published obligations of two daughters, a son, ex-wives and various creditors, John Barrymore's $5,000 a week is spent almost before he earns it. But he has plenty of jobs in the offing and one that is particularly interesting right now is Warner Bros., who have asked him to play his uncle, John Drew, in "The Lady With Red Hair." This story, which is the life of Mrs. Leslie Carter, famous Belasco star, deals with an interesting period in Drew's life, and John could certainly do justice to that role. Miriam Hopkins will be starred in the Carter part, and Kurt Bernhardt will direct. There were rumors that Bernhardt and Warners had battled over the script, but this is denied by all concerned.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Norman Krasna, youthful writing genius, wired fans that he eloped with Ruth Frazee, of the Frazee sisters. They are now in New York; 'tis rumored that Helene Costello (Mrs. Lee Lebranch) has made a date with the stork; Virginia and Lew Wertheimer are taking a matrimonial vacation, and she has moved into a new apartment; the romance between Maureen O'Hara and Will Price is flourishing these summer days; Alice Faye and Sandy Cummings, coolish these last few weeks, at a ringside table at Slapsie Maxie's; also Una Merkel and her entire family.

Brenda Frazier left her Santa Barbara retreat long enough to attend the Lily Pons concert; Mickey Rooney writes it has rained constantly at Lake Louise so he is heading for New York to spend his vacation; Sonja Henie is studying ballet in New York which she will later transfer to skating routines. Sonja and the bridegroom, Dan Topping, return September 1; K. Hepburn buys ice cream for the cast and crew of "Philadelphia Story" every day, making heavies out of the writers who say she is ritzy.

Ann Pennington, just as attractive as she was when her dimpled knees were one of the Ziegfeld "Follies" prime assets, is visiting Fannie Brice; Ty Power is sending his pal and secretary, Bill Gallagher, to New York to bring Annabella home. Ty can't get away; Bill Lundigan, who was in the hospital for a few days, is back on the Warner lot.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Russians Accuse Finns of Assaults

Soviet Sympathizers Beaten by Police, Moscow Press Says

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Aug. 2.—The Soviet press charged that Finnish police were clubbing pro-Russian workers across the border as the Russian Parliament tonight undertook formal incorporation into the U. S. S. R. of three Baltic states and two provinces obtained from Rumania.

The Supreme Council (Parliament) with Joseph Stalin in attendance, unanimously adopted a resolution creating the Moldavian Union Republic—the U. S. S. R.'s thirteenth member—out of the larger part of Bessarabia, seized from Rumania, and most of the old autonomous Moldavian Republic.

The council gave the remainder of Moldavia and Bessarabia, plus the territory of northern Bucovina gained from Rumania, to the Ukrainian Republic of the U. S. S. R. It adjourned until tomorrow, when the incorporation of the Baltic states might come up.

Tass, the official news agency, declared Finnish police used batons on women and men to break up a meeting in Helsinki where demonstrators carried slogans reading "Long live Soviet-Finnish friendship."

Finns Warned

That dispatch followed yesterday's warning by Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff that Finland must abandon anti-Soviet trends if she expects good relations with Russia.

[In Helsinki, Finnish President Kyosti Kallio, striving to maintain good relations with the Soviet, which obtained part of Finland after the Russian-Finnish war last winter, issued a decree banning public gatherings without official permission.

[He directed police to dispel illegal assemblies which might threaten public order or "injure the state."

[Groups of from 200 to 300 youths described by the influential Social Democratic Party committee as "dubious characters and provocateurs," have been demonstrating in the capital during the past few days.

[Dissatisfaction with war compensation to the transplanted population from territory ceded to Russia, has caused a split in the Social Democratic Party with a minority faction withdrawing to organize its own wing.]

Now Has 193,000,000

Incorporation of the Baltic states and Rumanian territory occupied by the Red army will give the Soviet Union the "powerful voice" of more than 193,000,000 people, Molotoff told the Supreme Soviet.

In less than a year Russia has added more than 23,000,000 people and considerable territory by the joint German-Russian partition of Poland, the Finnish-Russian war, the occupation of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina ceded by Rumania in June, and the Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, whose new Communist governments voted for the union.

Almost all of the people in those areas once belonged to Russia "but had been forcibly torn from the U. S. S. R. by western imperialist powers when the U. S. S. R. was militarily weak," Molotoff said.

With her acquisitions of territory Russia now has access to important ice-free Baltic ports and to the Danube River, transport gateway to southeastern Europe.

Men From U. S. Land in Britain With Canadians

By James M. Minifie

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Aug. 2.—The news of the arrival in Great Britain of units of a second Canadian division in Britain was released today.

Hundreds of Americans are incorporated in this contingent, one regiment having more than 200 Americans on its roll.

They came on huge liners in convoy which steamed into a British port with a band of Canadian Scottish pipers skirling aboard the leading ship.

First Units Already Over

In the words of their commanding officer, Maj. Gen. Victor Odlum, they have come overseas "to get right in among the Germans and give them more of their own medicine than they can stand."

The first units of the First Canadian division came over last December and since then have been in training in England.

Private John McMichael, born in Glasgow, but until lately resident in the United States, is with the Second Division. He is believed to be the first man to enlist from the United States. "I crossed the bridge into Canada on September 4," he said. "I was on duty at 10 o'clock that morning, I fought in the last war, too."

Private McMichael's home is not allowed to be given, but reference to "crossing the bridge" leaves little doubt that it was either Detroit or Niagara Falls.

Mayor Croll a Private

Another American is said to have formerly been a member of the Michigan Legislature.

One private with a claim to notice is David Croll, Mayor of Windsor, Ontario, who was formerly Ontario's minister of labor. Responsible for establishing the trust for the Dionne quintuplets, he received a decoration from King George last June.

The percentage of Americans among this contingent cannot be precisely ascertained, as the authorities are reluctant to allow names to go out. But one American said that "about 40 per cent of our brigade are from the States, and there would have been lots more if we had not persuaded them to stay home and look after their families."

Japanese Sees U. S. Friction Over Rubber

General Will Visit Dutch Indies, Talks Of 'Emancipation'

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, Aug. 2.—Friction may develop between the United States and Japan over the rich rubber resources of the Dutch East Indies, Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, who is expected to head a Japanese mission to the Indies shortly, told Japanese reporters today.

Koiso, until recently overseas minister, former garrison commander in Korea and a powerful exponent of Japanese expansion, has been asked by the government to undertake the mission to the Dutch islands and interrupted a trip through the northern island of Hokkaido to start back to Tokyo for consultations.

Interviewed at Sapporo, capital of Hokkaido, Koiso said that "the rubber of the East Indies is indispensable for the industry of the United States and therefore the question may give rise to friction."

"The solution of this problem depends, however, on our decision," he added.

"The East Indies as a colony (of Holland) long have been oppressed and exploited," Koiso said. "We cannot tolerate such a condition in view of the principles on which we are establishing the new order in East Asia.

"It is necessary to emancipate the Oriental races and we are destined to solve this problem.

"It may be said that the ail, rubber and tin produced in the East Indies control the world markets. We do not intend to monopolize these natural resources, but it is necessary to make sure that they are disposed of impartially."

The Dutch Indies now are governed by a local colonial administration which has little contact with the government of the German-occupied homeland.

Soldiers Use 'Bingo' For 'Amen,' Priest Says

London, Aug. 2 (U.P.)—The Rev. Father C. G. Hepburne, formerly of All Saints' Catholic Church, in Ottawa, who has just arrived in England with the second Canadian division, said they were "a fine bunch of boys who are very regular in their church attendance," but that he had one slight complaint to make.

"Occasionally," he said, "the boys would absent-mindedly end their prayers with the word 'bingo.'

"You see, I had charge of the bingo games on the way over and we played lots of bingo. It must have been habit."

Tokyo Reported Trying to Thwart U. S. in Mexico

Mexico City, Aug. 2.—Agents of the Japanese government have established "close contact" with the opposition party headed by Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan and have offered "any assistance that may be necessary to lessen United States influence in Mexico," it was reported tonight by a source which should merit confidence.

This source did not deny the possibility that Tokyo might also have made overtures to the Mexican Revolutionary (Government) Party which supported Almazan's appointment, Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, in the still undecided Presidential election of July 7.

New German Laws Tighten Vise on Jews

Jewish Hospitals Forbidden Use of Red Cross on Roof

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 2.—Jewish telephone subscribers received notices today canceling their services save in the cases of doctors, nurses and hospitals.

Jewish hospitals have been forbidden to paint the red cross on their roofs.

These orders were a part of a general tightening of restrictions against Jews which was illustrated by regulations to male immigrants forbidding them to carry out of the country more than two suits of clothing, one pair of overalls, one sweater and one overcoat.

For Jews unable to emigrate—and very few can make the grade now—further restrictions are ordered. Jews here may purchase their necessties only between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Before the present hostilities began, Adolf Hitler stated publicly that another war would mean the elimination of the Jews.

This dictum, apparently, is being made true with unrelenting persistence.

The German radio said today that anti-Jewish demonstrations were reported to have occurred on a large scale last night at Nice, France.

Rumania to Begin Territorial Talks

Bucharest, Aug 2 (AP).—Rumania will open territorial concession talks with Bulgaria Wednesday when Ivan Popoff and Dobri Bojiloff, Bulgarian foreign and finance ministers, arrive here, diplomatic sources said tonight. Conversations with Hungary on the return of Transylvania are expected to follow.

British Sub Rammed, Sunk, Italians Claim

Battleship Hit By Planes in Great Battle, Rome Says

By Herbert L. Matthews

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Aug. 2.—An important battle between Italian planes and a large British naval squadron was fought just south of the Balearic Islands yesterday, according to today's Italian war bulletin. Some of the British units were hit, it is claimed.

At the other end of the Mediterranean last night an Italian destroyer ran down and sank the British submarine Oswald, taking prisoner 52 members of its crew of 55, says the communique.

"The enemy naval squadron, coming from Gibraltar and composed of two battleships, two aircraft carriers and smaller ships, was reached by our air formations south of Formentera Island in the Balearics and subjected to a violent bombing despite intensive anti-aircraft fire," the bulletins read. "Some units, among them a battleship, were certainly hit by bombs of large caliber. One of our machines did not return.

"Last night the destroyer Vivaldi sank by ramming and then torpedoing, in the center of the Ionian Sea, the English submarine Oswald of 1,500 tons armed with eight torpedo tubes. The Vivaldi saved and took prisoner 52 of the 55 members of the crew, including the commander, Capt. David Frazer."

Despite Berlin's silence about the matter, the Italian press is still contending that the offensive against England has already begun and will continue along its present lines. Today's Telegrafo, the Ciano family newspaper, makes fun of the British for expecting to see a German expeditionary force any day.

Arms Dump Blown Up

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, Aug. 2.—Flames rose 500 feet and smoke 7,000 feet when Royal Air Force bombers yesterday exploded a large Italian ammunition dump at Bardia in Libya.

When the British were 40 miles away on their homeward journey, flames and billowing curtains of smoke were still visible. There were no British casualties.

On the Eritrean front a small formation of R. A. F. bombers swooped down on the Accico oil refinery at Massawa, firing a large petrol tank.

Former French Leaders to Go On Trial Aug. 8

De Gaulle Already Condemned to Death By Military Court

By the Associated Press

Vichy, France, Aug. 2.—France's historic trial of the old military and political leaders now blamed by the new regime for her disastrous defeat in the war will begin at nearby Rion on August 8, before a quasi-civil, quasi-military national supereme court.

This was announced today almost simultaneously with the action of a wholly military court in Clermont-Ferrand in condemning to death Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who refused to join in the surrender ordered by the government of Marshal-Premier Philippe Petain.

[In London, Gen. de Gaulle said, "I consider the act of the Vichy men as void; I shall have an explanation with them after the victory."]

Names Not Disclosed

Gen. de Gaulle, who has formed a provisional French committee in England to carry on the struggle against Germany, was tried and convicted in his absence.

The names of those who must face the court of Rion were not disclosed officially. But among those who have been charged with responsibility for France's spectacular defeat are former Premier Edouard Daladier, Former Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi, former Minister of Education Yvon Delbos and former Minister of Interior Georges Mandel.

Others at whom bitter cries have been raised are former Premier Paul Reynaud, head of the last French government before the surrender, and former Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin.

Secret Societies Dissolved

The Petain government meanwhile granted to Frenchmen serving in foreign armies an extension until August 14 to retire from such service. Failing so to retire, they will be subject to the death penalty.

[In England there are thousands of French troops who, although not actually enlisted in the British ramy, are continuing the war with their old ally.]

The Council of Ministers ordered the drafting of a law to dissolve all secret societies such as Free Masons.

Berlin Hails Soviet Pledge Of Friendship

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 2.—This capital rejoiced tonight over reaffirmation of Russian friendship for the Reich, new exploits of Nazi air and sea raiders and the reassurance of an antiaircraft defense credited with destruction of 1,230 planes since the war began.

The foreign policy address yesterday by Soviet Premier Molotoff was declared to leave no doubt that any attempt to create a strain in Russian-German relations was doomed.

Raid "Successful," British Say

The high command took increasing note of British air force incursions over the continent, but minimized the results.

All eight planes of a British bomber squadron which attempted to raid the German-held airport at Querville, near Cherbourg, yesterday afternoon were reported shot down by Messerschmitt pursuit planes and anti-aircraft batteries.

[The British announced a "successful" raid on the Cherbourg airport and acknowledged loss of three planes.]

The Royal Air Force repeated its almost nightly attacks on western Germany last night, but the high command said the bombs "caused no military damage to houses in the vicinity of Cologne, killing and injuring a number of civilians."

Submarine Commander Cited

Two British planes were reported downed in a fight over the Netherlands yesterday, bringing hte August 1 losses for Britain to ten planes against one acknowledged missing by Germany.

The high command credited a submarine commander, Lieut. Capt. Wilhelm Rollman, in two recent trips to sea, destruction of a British submarine, a British destroyer and 12 armed merchant ships totaling 74,338 tons.

[The sinking of the destroyer, the Whirlwind, had been reported earlier both by Germany and Britain.]

The daily communique also reflected the continuous pressure of the air force against British shipping and inland objectives, claiming that "big fires and several explosions" resulted in a raid yesterday on an airplane factory in Norwich, England.

Windsors' Ship To Make Stop At Bermuda

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—The American Export Lines said today "it is the company's understanding that the liner Excalibur, carrying the Duke and Duchess of Windsor to New York will make a stop at Bermuda."

It is likely they will get off there. The company said it could not amplify this statement.

The Excalibur sailed from Lisbon yesterday afternoon and was due to arrive in New York August 9.

If the duke and duchess leave the Excalibur at Bermuda, they could go by sea or air to Nassau, where the duke will reside as governor of the Bahama Islands.

Diversion of the ship to Bermuda will add 405 miles to her regular New York-Lisbon route.

Home Ransacked While Rogge Is Away

The home of Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge at 3105 McComb street northwest has been thoroughly ransacked, it was discovered yesterday. A patrolman making a routine inspection noticed the condition of the house and found a broken window, but an estimate of loss must await Rogge's return from a trip out of town.

One-Man Command of Nation's Armed Forces Recommended by Maj. Gen. Parsons

Officer Addresses Men Completing Ft. Meade Training

Command of United States armed forces by one man was urged yesterday by Maj. Gen. James K. Parsons in an address to 231 business and professional men completing 30 days of military training at Fort George G. Meade, Md.

He critcized conscription of "ungainly numbers" and told "alarmists" that "we are not open to attack." For conscription, Gen. Parsons recommended registration of men 18 to 31, only those of 21 to be called at once for two years of training. This, he said, would give the Nation 500,000 recruits, as many as it "truly needs" and can "train carefully."

"Crying Need for Plan"

"If we are going to stretch (and I think it is a long stretch) the Monroe Doctrine to include Singapore and Shanghai and South America, we will need an Army of millions," he said. "If we are going to defend our own Nation, a relatively small but well-trained force will be more than adequate.

"The crying need is for a national defense plan complete in every detail. Such a plan must be directed by one man and must have as an integral part a statement of just what area we want to protect.

"We need criticism of our defense plans. We need attacks on the general staff . . . often its opinions are the only ones heard in Washington. There is a danger that a small group may dominate defense preparations. It is right that the staff should decide much and have the ears of Congress. It is not right that it should be the only voice. It is not infallible."

"So long as men like you are willing to shoulder the burden of protecting the nation," he said, "our country has little to fear. You have worked hard, without complaining and with high intelligence."

Health of the trainees improved markedly during their 30 days of rigorous field service, Lieut. Col. John J. Madigan, medical director, reported. He said 20 men gained 1 to 14 pounds and 10 lost 1 to 8 pounds.

King Gustav Opens Session on War

Hamburg in Ruins, British Claim

feld and Mannheim and several airdromes in northwestern Germany.

"The damage inflicted on the oil targets is believed to be considerable," the ministry communique said.

All the night raiders returned, it was said, but one plane was missing from the daylight attack on the two Holland airdromes.

French airmen took part in the attacks last night on German objectives, their chief objective being the oil plant at Kamen, said a communique from Gen. Charles de Gaulle, whom Britain has recognized as the leader of all "free" Frenchmen.

De Gaulle was condemned to death in absentia by a military court in Clermont-Ferrant, France, today.

The damage at Hamburg, a city of more than 1,000,000 population which handles an annual peacetime port traffic of 17,000,000 tons, is only a sample of destruction wrought by British bombs dumped by day and night on hundreds of objectives, authoritative sources said.

The lesser port of Bremen, home of huge shipyards, miles of docks and its big Focke-Wulf airplane factory; the Kiel and Wilhelmshaven naval bases, and Cologne, continental traffic center, have drawn a large share of attention from British airmen carrying the war to Germany.

In all, the British reported more than 1,000 German objectives bombed in more than 3,000 raids "of genuine weight and importance" to date.

This, they asserted, is the answer which is being given with increasing vigor to Adolf Hitler's threat of invasion.

At the same time the British said all their harbors remained intact despite unending German forays, although casualties and damage have resulted inland.

Nevertheless, many of Britain's prewar Channel and North Sea ports have been closed because of the danger to shipping in the mine and submarine-infested Channel waters.

Typical of reports from coastal points was that from the correspondent at Dover, nearest port to France and logical landing place for any invader.

"You might have thought from the size of that big raid last Monday by 80 German planes that a lot of damage has been done. But that's not so.

"They aimed almost altogether at shipping. I went around the harbor after the raid, but no part of it or the harbor walls were hit . . . There has been no damage to the town itself."

The aerial warfare surging back and forth across the Channel tapered off somewhat today to sporadic forays.

German raiders bombed scattered points in Wales, eastern Scotland and East Anglia during the night.

British bombers reported the bombardment of a wireless station and the crippling of a German supply ship off Norway and a "successful" daylight attack on Cherbourg, France, yesterday. Three British planes were reported lost.

Scots Bring Home Wreckage

The little coastal steamer Highlander arrived at Edinburgh with the wreckage of one of two German Heinkel bombers downed by her merchant sailor gunners in an early morning fight off the northeast coast. The other fell in flames into the sea.

Britons studied almanacs for a clue to the launching of the expected German invasion. Based on the periods when the tides will be highest, the almanac says if it is coming this month the best times would be next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings.

The next best times to take advantage of the tides for landing troops would be from the second to the seventh of September; third choice would be October 1-8, then October 30-November 4.

Ireland lodged a protest in Berlin and claimed compensation for the aerial bombing of a British ship in Irish waters last week.

The Irish information bureau here said a German bomber damaged the small British steamer Kerry Head near the entrance of Oyster Haven, County Cork, last week in the first action of its kind in those waters.

Sidelights on the War Scene

Relations Strained as Britain Rejects New Rumanian Envoy

By James B. Reston.

Copyright by New York Times

London, Aug. 2.—Normal diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Rumania have virtually come to an end. This was made clear by a foreign office spokesman who said Britain has refused to accept the appointment of Basil Stoica as the new minister here in view of the Rumanian anti-British attitude.

A week ago Britain protested to Rumania about its sudden pro-Axis policy. This protest, it is now stated officially, said that, unless Rumania satisfied Britain on three points, "resumption of normal diplomatic relations would be impossible."

The three points referred to were Rumania's virtual expropriation of the British-Dutch owned Astra Romana Oil Corporation, one of the largest in Rumania; expulsion of British officials who have been prominent in building the Rumanian oil industry and detention by Rumania of British shipping in the Danube.

If Rumania reconsidered these three acts, the British protest declared, Britain would be prepared to discuss a resumption of normal relations, but not otherwise.

France Tightens Ration Restrictions

Vichy, France, Aug. 2 (AP).—A series of new decrees today rationed numerous products all the way from milk, butter and cheese to coarse laundry soap as the government took increasingly strong steps to control prices and supplies.

One decree gave the secretary of state for agriculture authority to establish maximum prices of all farm products.

Epidemic Forces Menton Evacuation

Berne, Switzerland, Aug. 2 (AP).—Italian troops occupying the war-damaged French Riviera city of Menton ordered the entire civilian population to leave recently, due to an outbreak of typhoid fever and dysentery, the newspaper L'Eclaireur de Nice reported today.

The famous resort near the Italian border was shelled and bombed during the biggest Italian-French battle of the war, just before the armistice, and the city's water supply was cut off and its sewer main blasted.

French Song Writer Killed in Airplane

Paris, July 29 (Delayed), ((AP) via Berlin).—Charles Trenet, one of France's most popular singers and song writers, has been killed in an airplane, the newspaper, Paris Soir, said today. There were no details.

His songs, including "Boom" and "I Sing," were played in many countries.

Paris Also May Have It's 'Vatican City'

Berlin, Aug. 2 (AP).—A "Vatican City," peopled by French government officials, surrounded by the German-occupied remainder of Paris is likely to emerge from the stalemated parley between French and German authorities over the site of the French capital.

The French government desires to return to Paris but so far only certain technical ministries such as labor, finance and public works, have returned.

Bourse Reopens; Deliveries Are Few

Paris, July 30 (Delayed), ((AP) via Berlin).—The Bourse reopened today (Tuesday) in a burst of enthusiasm, with the coal mining stock of northern France showing particular strength.

Very little actual business was transacted due to the fact, said financial sources, that many would-be sellers were unable to deliver securities taken out of Paris during the evacuation of mid-June.

Extension Of Remarks

Nazi planes, flying over England and Wales last Thursday night, dropped so many leaflets that some parts of the countryside were as littered with paper as an American city park on a midsummer Monday morning. The leaflets contained generous excerpts from Herr Hitler's recent speech, wherein he offered the British their choice of "honorable peace" or annihilation.

Thus the Germans are now employing against Britain the very tactic that the British employed against Germany during most of the "sit-down" phase of the war. It was a long time before the British government could be persuaded that these leaflet bombardments were both futile and wasteful, but persuaded it ultimately seems to have been.

There is of course one interesting difference between the German and British method of assault by the printed word. The Royal Air Force dropped tons and tons of propaganda into Germany before releasing so much as a single bomb. The Nazi leaflets appeared in England as a kind of postscript to a series of intensive and destructive bombing raids.

Offhand this last seems the less intelligent sequence, and, therefore, scarcely the work of the wily Dr. Goebbels. The procedure also seems at variance with widely prevalent conceptions of British psychology. It is generally supposed that a people so hard to convince of the necessity of making war will be even harder to convince of the necessity of making an unsatisfactory peace.

Possibly, then, the leaflet storm represents nothing more Machiavellian than author's vanity on the part of Herr Hitler. Perhaps he has really persuaded himself that the British people were prevented by their government from listening to his speech and that only garbled versions were given to them by the B. B. C. and their press. At any rate, more than one of our Congressmen here in Washington must envy him the magnificent franking power that permits this aerial distribution.

Another possibility, and one worth pondering, is whether the efficacy of these propaganda bombardments, both German and English, has not been considerably underestimated. Though the Nazis have waited until now to employ them against the British, they did use then extensively and constantly in France. Little was heard in this country about the numberless Nazi leaflets strewn across the Maginot Line, but there is now some reason to believe they were not an utter waste of paper and ink.

Need For Prompt Action

The House Ways and Means Committee has reached tentative agreement to deal with amortization allowances of defense-plant expansion in connection with the excess-profits tax bill. The committee also proposes to incorporate in the tax bill a projected repeal or suspension of the drastic restrictions on ship and aircraft contract profits imposed under the Vinson-Trammel Act. This method of procedure is entirely logical, since these issues are related. But, in the present emergency, it is not the happiest procedure.

Uncertainty regarding amortization allowances and limitations on profits are said to be seriously retarding the placement of defense contracts. If the defense program is to proceed at full speed, it is essential to remove these uncertainties without further delay.

Although the Ways and Means Committee has promised to rush the excess-profits tax bill to completion, there are a number of difficult problems waiting to be solved. The question of the basis for computation of taxable profits is especially knotty and the matter of schedules has to be determined.

In view of the drastic and discriminatory nature of profit restrictions in the Vinson-Trammel Act, their immediate repeal would be in order. Definite provision should also be made in respect to amortization allowances for defense-plant expansion. This should not wait for completion of the bill for taxation of excess profits.

In that way, the pressure to dispose of the tax bill without adequate study of its provisions would be lessened. However, every effort should be made to obtain prompt action on the tax bill also, to remove uncertainties which necessarily hamper the carrying out of defense plans.

Build Up Or Break Up

The antitrust division of the Department of Justice recently recommended that suit be brought against 22 major oil companies for the purpose of separating their pipeline and marketing facilities from the production of oil. Fortunately, action has been delayed to permit the National Defense Commission to decide whether the contemplated suit would interfere with execution of the national defense program.

In an explanatory statement, Attorney General Jackson indicates that he fully realizes the inconsistency of threatening an industry with disintegration while simultaneously urging expansion of its operations as an aid to national defense. "I am informed," the Attorney General said, "that there are specific problems relating to pipeline transportation, the manufacture of synthetic rubber and other matters in which the commission may find that defense requirements can be met only by the investment of additional sums in properties as to which this action seeks divestiture."

It is patently absurd to expect the oil industry to put new capital into plants which might subsequently be taken from them by adverse court decisions. The antagonizing effect of this prolonged and costly litigation would not be conducive to whole-hearted cooperation of industrial leaders with the defense authorities. A major antitrust drive at this juncture would also spread doubt and confusion among other industries fearful that their turn would follow.

In the present emergency, calling for the prompt and enthusiastic mobilization of the Nation's resources, it is essential for the Government to stop harrassing industry. Indeed, positive encouragement is needed to speed up operations by eliminating existing obstacles to progress.

That does not mean that the Government should flash a green light and permit protective laws to be ignored. To grant complete immunity from the provisions of the antitrust laws, for instance, would do more harm than good. The national emergency must not be invoked as an excuse for exploitation of the Government and the public.

The antitrust laws, however, are subject to varying interpretations. Many of the suits launched by the Department of Justice are of an admittedly exploratory character, and do not imply that those proceeded against are either intentional lawbreakers or public enemies. That is particularly true of suits against concerns subject to attack because of their size and the diversity of their operations.

Whatever one may think about the ultimate desirability of enforced disintegration of large and powerful industrial units, it is obvious that efforts to change the industrial pattern for that purpose call for reorganizations that would impede the smooth functioning of the industrial machine.

To select a basic defense industry such as oil for an experimental assault during the present crisis would be incredibly bungling. All the overadvertised "Fifth Columnists" could not devise a better scheme for spreading confusion.

In Hot Water Again

The NLRB is in hot water again because of failure to abolish its Economic Research Division after Congress had deleted an appropriation for its upkeep, in accordance with a recommendation of a House Appropriations subcommittee. This committee had expressed the view that "no need exists for a division of economic research and it is expected that this section will be entirely eliminated."

Instead of following this suggestion the Labor Board rechristened the division, slightly changed its functions, dismissed some employes, and, crowning act of defiance, retained Dr. David J. Saposs as chief investigator. It is the failure to fire Dr. Saposs, long under attack for his left-wing views, that is the real reason for the latest outbursts from members of the Smith committee and the slighted House Appropriations Committee.

It was evident from the debates on the House floor last spring that the real purpose behind the move to abolish the research division was to get rid of Dr. Saposs. The Post pointed out at the time that his qualifications ought to be a matter for separate determination. "His fate," it was stated editorially, "should not be decided by the deletion of an appropriation item. Furthermore," we said, "if the Division of Economic Research is to be eliminated . . . it should be done directly."

However, Congress did not expressly abolish the Research Division. And as the board considered its services essential and, according to Mr. Leiserson, believes Dr. Saposs to be "invaluable," it ignored the broad hint from the Hill. Under the circumstances the NLRB can hardly be accused of defying the will of Congress, since this was not embodied in a positive legislative command to spend no money on research work. And Congress would itself have been trespassing on executive ground if it had gone so far as to order the board to fire a subordinate because a majority of Congressmen dislike him.

The latest clash grows out of Congressional efforts to achieve an objective by indirect approach. The plan miscarried because the Labor Board resorted to another subterfuge to circumvent the Congressional plotters. The result is an increase of ill will toward an agency which depends on public support if it is to function effectively.

Mr. Farley's Successor

Edward J. Flynn, who succeeds James A. Farley as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is not well known to the country at large, but to New Yorkers his name means a great deal. It is recalled, for instance, that some years back he appointed the notorious "Dutch" Schultz as a deputy sheriff of Bronx County.

As head of the powerful Bronx political machine, Mr. Flynn has done yeoman service for President Roosevelt. In 1932 he broke with Tammany to lead the fight for Roosevelt's nomination and was abundantly rewarded for his services to the New Deal. Today Tammany leaders are expressing gratification at the choice of so splendid a man for the chairmanship. That, too, is a tribute to the ability of this comparatively youthful, yet veteran, politician who has ruled in the populous Bronx for 18 years.

The management of a national campaign may present some new problems to a New York City political boss, but Chairman Farley was also fairly new to the national scene when he took up the duties he now lays down. Despite his modest deference to the superior wisdom of his predecessor, Mr. Flynn will doubtless need little coaching in the game of practical machine politics, which he has been called upon to play under the banner of a high idealism.

One may at least be certain that Mr. Flynn's conscience will be immune to any qualms about a third-term candidacy.

Robust Music

Harmony is not dead in America; not the barber shop variety. This week, at the National Press Club, a privileged 300 heard the champion barber shop quartet of the United States—the Flat Foot Four, of the Oklahoma City Police Department.

The leadership achieved by the Flat Foot Four was not gained without a struggle. This quartet was adjudged the best of 1,250 teams which, last week at the New York World's Fair, poured out their coordinated souls in such tested vehicles of self-expression as "Annie Laurie" and "When You and I Were Young, Maggie."

It is good to know that there are still so many uninhibited lungs. The Nation will never become effete so long as music retains those robust characteristics generally associated with the good old days. Yet this contest may have unfortunate results. It is an American weakness to select experts in sports or more serious endeavors and thereafter leave the performance to them, relegating the less talented to the position of spectators.

This must not happen to harmony. It is to be hoped that all who hear the Flat Foot Four will listen well, and be inspired to emulation.

"The moon is wobbling in its orbit," declares an astronomer. Well, no wonder—the moon's getting old. As far back as anybody can remember, it has been hanging around in the sky. By now it probably has hardening of the arteries, dizzy spells and perhaps a touch of the pip.

Seven of the larger nations report declining birth rates. No doubt a number of the unborn are sensibly postponing their debut into this world until general conditions become more stable.

Roughing It In New York

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch

They do the strangest things in New York. Twelve boys are "camping out" on the roof of a building. They had been lighting fires on street corners to roast potatoes and hot dogs. People complained and the police stopped them, so a kind-hearted man built them a fireplace on the top of his nearby building. From that the idea of a camp took form, and now there are tents, a miniature lake with six carp, and Swift Eagle, an Indian from New Mexico.

The scene these details bring up is both brave and pathetic. What do the boys drive their tent stakes into? What takes the place of the katydid's song? What do they do for strange sounds to wake them up, hair on end, at night? With as much of America's great out of doors across the Hudson and a few miles away in Connecticut, there should be some way to get these country-hungry urchins of New York closer to the soil than a hot city roof.

A Union View

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Local Union No. 30, United Construction Workers Organizing Committee, C. I. O., at its last meeting instructed me by unanimous vote to inform you of our complete opposition to the Burke-Wadsworth Bill for military conscription.

We oppose this bill and others like it because such measures are unnecessary for defense; because conscription causes serious disruption in the lives of thousands of our working people; because the type of forced labor and military training established constitutes an alarming danger to the wages and conditions won by the American labor movement; because the placing of thousands of conscripts under martial law constitutes a blitzkrieg against the civil rights of these men; and because the very existence of such a large number of men under military rule furnishes a handy instrument to those in high places who seem anxious to use our man-power for aggressive and imperialist aims in Europe, South America and the Far East.

Finally, we should like to point out that conscription is no solution to the problem of unemployment, our No. 1 problem.

Petain Government

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Shades of Hitler! Ambassador Bullitt is urging the President to give aid and grant full recognition to the Fascist Petain government in France. He urges this friendly attitude on the grounds that the Petain government forestalled a Communist uprising in Paris.

At this time it would be well to remember that in building his powerful military machine Hitler, too, got the aid of every country which he has crushed, as well as of England and the United States, on the basis of his claim that he was saving the world from communism.

Are Americans going to allow themselves to be fooled again?

Party Vs. President

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We are told that the nomination of Wendell Willkie for President was a defeat for the Republican old guard. But if the Republican Party is the same as it has been since 1860, and Willkie is elected, the result will be what it has always been when a Republican got into the White House.

It was said that the people spoke when Abraham Lincoln was nominated for the Presidency, yet when President he was fought by a large element of his own party, and only an assassin's bullet stopped the criticism and malignity. The old guard dominated both of Grant's administrations, with all their abuses. Rutherford B. Hayes, although elected as a Republican, was thwarted at every turn by Republican leaders in his efforts toward reform, particularly civil service. Following Hayes, James A. Garfield, another Republican, also tried his hand at civil service reform and was shot by a disappointed office seeker. Theodore Roosevelt, after having been overwhelmingly elected in his own right in November, 1904, was set upon by his Republican Congress, which convened the next month, and which buried his policies and went home in rebellion. At first the old guard did not favor Herbert Hoover, yet once he was President it rammed the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill through Congress and Hoover signed the bill!

I don't think the powers that be in the Republican Party are losing sleep over any reverse they may have suffered. The old guard has always had the situation well in hand no matter what Republican became President.

More On Rumania

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. George F. A. Boian, in his letter to the Editor of The Post on July 21, makes another vain attempt to justify Rumania's claims to her provinces on ethnical and historical grounds. He admits that in 1878, after the Russian-Rumanian War against Turkey, Russia acquired the southwestern districts of Bessarabia in exchange for northern Dobruja. He tries to justify the occupation and annexation of these districts and the rest of Bessarabia by Rumania in 1918 by quoting Prof. Mosley of Cornell University—"that the Council of the Land voted for the union of the province with Rumania." Prof. Mosley's assertion corresponds with the official Rumanian version, but the truth of the matter is that this petitioning of the Council of the Land to the Rumanian government for union is similar to the travesty enacted a few days ago when the parliaments of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia voted to petition the Soviet Union for membership therein.

The facts are as follows: The situation in Russia during 1918 was chaotic because of the Bolshevik revolution and the war between the Bolshevik regime and Poland. Taking advantage of this situation, the Rumanian government (in trying to give some semblance of legality to the invasion and annexation of Bessarabia) with the aid of certain Rumanian and other elements there, staged the farce of petitioning which, under normal circumstances, would have been tantamount to high treason.

In regard to Bukovina, I wish to submit the following data from "Bukovina" a handbook prepared under the direction of the historical section of the (British) foreign office, No. 5 (1920), page 9, which gives the ethnical distribution of the population according to the official census of 1910:

Ruthenians or Little Russians	38 %
Rumanians	34 %
Germans (including Jews)	21 %
Poles	4½ %
Magyars	1½ %
Others	1 %

Transylvania, according to Mr. Boian's own quotations, never belonged to Rumania; it was a part of Hungary until 1918, at which time it was ceded to Rumania by the Versailles Treaty.

Southern Dobruja, predominantly Bulgarian, was annexed by Rumania in a rather inglorious manner. In 1913, during the Balkan War, after Bulgaria defeated Turkey in alliance with Serbia and Greece, and was at war with her former allies for the division of the spoils, Rumania invaded and annexed southern Dobruja without the slightest resistance. On Land Taxes

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In view of increased revenues needed to meet necessary defense measures, and realizing that every tax on individual or corporate earnings is, in its very nature, repressive, may we suggest a taxable substitute—one which will not reflect itself in a hardship on any business, but which will tend to benefit the whole community.

We refer to the site value of unimproved or under-improved land. To even double—as a beginning—the charge already assessed against this unimproved value would not only yield a large revenue, but could not react against any business or industry.

As land is the basic source of all opportunity, those who withhold it from use, for prospective speculative gain, render their communities a disservice, and should be discouraged.

Friends Of Norway

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have noted, with great interest, reference to Norway on your editorial page of The Post of July 10. Because of the evident concern of your readers for the subject, may we add some additional facts to your comment?

The American Friends of Norway were founded to crystallize American public opinion in support of Norway's aspirations again to become a free, democratic nation. The exertion of a strong moral force in the United States will lend strength to these aims of Norway, it is believed. The American Friends of Norway will devote themselves to informing and enlightening American and world opinion toward its objectives.

They believe that it is important to Americans, as well as to Norwegians across the seas, that Americans know all the facts in the situation, and that on the basis of the facts, they make up their minds as to what their attitudes and actions should be on the future status of Norway.

Norway was a free, independent country, her people democratic in spirit and ideals. Her contributions to music, in such geniuses as Edvard Grieg; to literature, through world-famous writers like Bjornson, Hamsun and Undset; to the drama in the society-shaking ideas of Ibsen; to exploration and science in the achievements of men like Nansen and Amundsen, have brought her admiration from civilized men and women all the world over. The United States, familiar with the sturdy, hard-working Norwegian farmers, miners and lumbermen in her own Northwest, honors the intrepid pioneering spirit which first brought Norwegian immigrants to this country in 1821, to give so much of value to the American way of life. Americans everywhere respected Norway's democracy, a microcosm of our own, which was practiced so successfully before the invasion. The fact that the great part of Norway's expenditures for years had been for national betterment—for world-renowned schools, for agricultural improvements, for better housing, for amelioration of such social problems as unemployment and delinquency—and that only 10 per cent of her national budget had gone for defense—is proof of her intrinsically peace-loving character, her desire to put first things first.

When, as suddenly as lightning, the most savage war of modern history blazed over them, the Norwegians, lacking supplies, lacking training, lacking arms, struggled to the death in their own fierce courage, against an invader whose force rendered them nearly powerless. And though they went down fighting—they were conquered.

But the Norwegian spirit will still not give up the struggle. Norwegian men and women continue to battle with every means in their power.

The Post Impressionist

Purely Fiction

(AUTHOR'S NOTE: The characters and events herein are entirely fictitious. Any resemblance to persons, living or dead, is pure coincidence.)

How do you know you can't write? (For that matter, how do you know you can?) Charles Dickens once pasted labels on shoe-blacking bottles. O. Henry was a land-going freebooter and literary hack. Therefore, if you happen to be a pretzel-bender, a blacksmith on a merry-go-round, or even a Government worker, and feel the urge to write without knowing how? where or why to begin, do not lose courage. Aid lies close at hand. Why be a defeatist when, with a simple little gadget just put on the market, you can conduct a blitzkrieg into the land of literary opportunity?

This about covers the printed sales argument that caused me to invest in what, to avoid free advertising, I shall call the Petrie Plotmaker.

You doubtless know there are only seven basic plots in fiction. At least, that's what was drummed into the denizens of Eng. Lit. I in my day on campus. I have forgotten what they are. Which probably is just as well.

Now, the Petrie Plotmaker, by means of a number of magic circles presided over by indicator-spinners and augmented by a profuse list of names of persons, places and events, is intended to convert these seven planked steaks of plots into a variegated mass of fictional hash.

So you want to write a story? First, you need a plot. You haven't the faintest notion of one, perhaps. Very well. Get out your Petrie Plotmaker.

With your right index finger make a quick, circular movement behind the metal indicator. Wait till it stops spinning. Get your pencil and pad. Your story plot is going to evolve.

The spinner comes to rest. You bend forward. It points to a name: "Fanny Yingling."

There's your heroine—Fanny Yingling! Original, what? And promising, too! Come to think of it, I never knew of a heroine named Fanny who wasn't a sweet, trusting, innocent young thing perpetually subject to the wiles and blandishments of all sorts of city slickers.

But—what about Fanny Yingling's home terrain? Let's get back to the Plotmaker. Another movement of the index finger, another spin of the indicator and we find it pointed to one word: "Ozarks."

Very good, indeed! Fanny Yingling of the Ozarks is our heroine. Now, let's cast about for a hero.

Two more spins of the Plotmaker indicator brings us a hero named Horace Murgatroyd, whose home—of all places!—is Washington, D. C.

What Horace Murgatroyd, of the Washington, D. C., Murgatroyds, is doing in the Ozarks must be left to the author to puzzle out. Perhaps he's a mineralogist connected with Harold Ickes' Bureau of Mines. Or perhaps he's just up there to get away from it all. We shall see.

The Petrie Plotmaker spins merrily on, uncovering character after character. It develops that Fanny's father, John Yingling, is a broker; her mother, Florence, a dressmaker. In John Yingling's employ is a tall, dark and handsome young man entitled Graham Mitchell. As most villains are tall, dark and handsome, Mr. Mitchell probably will do.

It develops—with more spins around the Plotmaker dial—that Horace Murgatroyd is a man with a past to live down. This is interesting, because if the personnel division of the Bueau of Mines is satisfied with Horace's background, whatever crimes he committed couldn't have been too heinous.

Anyway, Horace and Fanny meet beside a rippling brook in the Ozark Mountains woodland, and it's a case of love at first, second and third sight, with a few side glances thrown in for good measure.

To the pure and sweet Fanny, first love is ecstasy. She goes skipping blithely homeward to her one-room shack, after Heart-Interest Horace has coaxed her into making another tryst at the wooded brookside—home to the Ozark shack where Father Yingling is busy reading the ticker tape, answering phones and wiring orders to the New York Stock Exchange. Mother Yingling is at her sewing machine, eking out a bare existence. Did you ever know of a dressmaker or seamstress who wasn't?

The next afternoon, Fanny and Horace keep their rendezvous. After desultory tossing of pebbles into the brook, the lovers get down to the serious business of falling more deeply in love. Horace urges Fanny to marry him at once and return with him to Washington, where they will either set up housekeeping across the river in Virginia, or build a small manor in Bethesda or Mount Rainier.

Just as the beautiful Ozark belle is about to capitulate, there is a terrific crashing of underbrush. A 20-ton German Panzer tank comes roaring into view, to bring us with a snort beside the rippling stream where the two lovers, now terrified, await the worst.

Out of the tank steps tall, dark Graham Mitchell. He stares aghast. "Fanny Yingling!" he cries, unbelievingly. "What are you doing here?"

But that's just incidental dialogue, to be filled in as we go along. The essential thing, you know, is the plot. I hesitate to think of the literary heights which Charles Dickens and O. Henry might have scaled if they had a gadget like the Plotmaker to fool with.

I'll let you know how Fanny and Horace came out. And, also, what became of the German Panzer tank? And how long a time elapsed before Mrs Yingling ceased to eke out a bare existence?

What! No Union!

GEORGE SPELVIN'S son, the one they call Dummy, has been asking the old man some questions about Army life, pay and working conditions.

"Paw," he asked, "How much pay does a colonel get?"

"Oh," the old man said, "I think it is up around $90 a week."

"What are the hours he has to work?"

"Hours" the old man said. "A colonel doesn't have any hours. He is on duty all the time whenever there is anything he has to do."

"Doesn't he get extra pay for overtime?" Dummy asked.

"No, of course not," the old man said. "They don't have any union in the Army."

"They don't have no union?" said Dummy. "Why not? Why wouldn't it be a smart idea to start an Army union? All those guys without no union. It seems crazy that some smart operator hasn't started a union. Like if a colonel gets $90 a week and steady work we could charge them at least $500 initiation fee, and it would be ridiculous to charge less than around $25 a month dues. And what about corporals and majors and all them? How much do they get?"

"IT VARIES," Mr. Spelvin said. "But it is no use talking about a union for the Army, because it is the Government."

"I don't see why not, anyway," Dummy said. "Don't they need protection the same as if you were on the WPA? Ain't that the Government? But they got to join the union just the same."

"Now, Dummy, don't be a dummy," said Mr. Spelvin. "In the Army your boss is the Government, and you don't need no protection from the boss."

"Well, but ain't the Government the boss of the WPA," Dummy insisted. "If you don't need protection from the Government what for do you have to join the union in the WPA?"

"Because," the old man said, "The Army is national defense."

"Ain't it national defense if you are working in a factory where they make them tanks and airplanes and all? You got to join the union there, don't you? And, furthermore, paw," the Dummy said, "if you don't pay the dues, the union won't leave you do no work. I wonder how much they pay the ordinary soldiers. There's a lot of them."

"They only pay them about $21 a month," said the old man.

"Why, that's outrageous," said the Dummy. "Only $21 a month and work all kinds of hours when you can work easy hours in a factory or WPA, with five days a week, and if you don't get your rights the union calls a strike."

"STRIKES in the Army! You are nuts," the old man said. "You try to start a strike in the Army and they will slap you in the can for 20 years."

"What about this Labor Board, then?" the Dummy asked. "Do they stand for that? What about the La Follette Committee?"

"Makes no never mind about the Labor Board or the La Follette Committee," Mr. Spelvin said. "You try to picket the Army to prevent them from fighting the enemy and they will slap you in the can if they don't kill you first. The Army is patriotism."

"Well, that certainly is the damnedest nonsense I ever heard," the Dummy said. "If you mess up a factory where they are making soldier tools for good wages, that is all right; and if the boss gets the boys to shove you around, you can get them arrested. But if you try to help the poor soldier boys and colonels to improve their conditions they can bat your brains out."

"The Army is to protect our American rights," Mr. Spelvin said.

"Well, ain't the right to organize unions and strike part of the rights they are protecting?" the Dummy asked.

The New America And Her Crew

AS THE GREAT LINER America steamed majestically up the North River during the luncheon hour Monday, the thousands of New Yorkers who watched her triumphal progress must have realized that they were witnessing a very significant event in the maritime history of their country. And the first appearance in her home port of the largest and finest passenger vessel ever built in the United States was unquestionably an occasion meriting all the gay and noisy reception accorded by a city where noble ships are no novelty.

Constructed at Newport News, whence she had steamed on this maiden voyage with some 900 invited guests, including the writer, the contract for the America was signed on October 21, 1937. This ship was thus the first, as well as the biggest and fastest, of all the vessels laid down under the building program sponsored by the United States Maritime Commission. So far 160 merchant ships have been ordered under this program, which calls for a fleet of at least 500 during the first ten years of operation. Of these 40 are already operating over regular trade routes, for the smaller cargo vessels and tankers of course take much less time in building than was needed to complete the America.

Although the Neutrality Act now closes the ports of many nations to American shipping, this has not caused the dislocation which might reasonably have been expected. Increased demand for American bottoms has more than counterbalanced the effect of war-zone curtailments. The rearrangements with respect to the America are a case in point. She was originally planned to work with the Manhattan and the Washington in maintaining a weekly express service to England, France and Germany. For the time being the America will now be used in cruises to the West Indies while her somewhat smaller sisters are operating to the Pacific Coast, via the Panama Canal.

This is a good illustration of the intelligent direction, and the elimination of confusion and duplicating services, provided by the supervision of the Maritime Commission, one of the most efficient and well organized of all the governmental agencies established in Washington under the Roosevelt Administration. In establishing the commission the Merchant Marine Act of 1936 gave it wide authority to coordinate and supervise American shipping, in return for the open and straightforward subsidies which have replaced the old ocean mail payments.

There is now a subsidy for construction and one for operation, calculated in each case on the difference between domestic and foreign competitive costs. The construction subsidy for the new America was one-third of her contract price of $15,750,000, increased to something over $17,000,000 by fittings and decorations.

II

SUPERLATIVES lavished upon the Normandie, the Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth are out of place for the America. This product of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. has a gross tonnage of 26,454, which makes her a big rather than a gigantic vessel. Her top speed of 24 knots will never win the mythical blue ribbon for a record Atlantic crossing. Her length of 723 feet is only about two-thirds that of the huge French and English liners; the deck space and dimensions of the social rooms are scaled down in proportion.

To those who like dignity rather than pretentiousness, comfort rather than display, all this will seem no drawback. Having traveled on the ships named above, excepting the still untested Queen Elizabeth, I can testify that the slower and smaller American competitor is also easily the most attractive, both in decorations and in that indefinable element of personality which every ship possesses.

As a matter of fact it is the settled policy of the Maritime Commission not to subsidize the construction of huge passenger ships. The commission early asserted that "the United States should not attempt to compete in the luxury liner field." And this makes rather amusing some of the publicity about the America issued by her owner, the United States Lines, which in almost every paragraph refers to "the new United States luxury liner."

She is not that, but a well-designed, good-looking, comfortable ship, with perhaps an unduly large proportion of inside cabins in which there is likely to be a lot of sweltering during the forthcoming West Indian cruises. I had one, and know what I am talking about, though on this paradoxical maiden voyage with only one woman aboard and she the ship's nurse, it was easy to drag a mattress out and sleep in blessed nakedness beneath the stars.

"Instead of superliners," said the Maritime Commission in its thorough Economic Survey of the American Merchant Marine, submitted to Congress at the end of 1937, "the American contribution to North Atlantic travel should be fireproof, vibrationless, attractive and economical vessels of reasonable size and speed, distinguished by the utmost in safety and comfort, suitable for business or pleasure travel, available for national defense and manned by competent, resourceful and disciplined personnel."

In every respect except the last the America fulfills to the letter the criteria laid down by the Maritime Commission nearly three years ago. So far as Capt. Giles C. Siedman, his officers and a large proportion of the crew is concerned, nothing but praise and admiration would be in order. Just as certainly the discipline of some of the personnel aboard this ship was noticeable primarily by its absence on this first trip with passengers.

III

I HAVE WORKED on ships, have long been interested in them, and spent much of my time aboard the America exploring the crew's quarters and talking with the men off watch. All of them are members of the National Maritime Union, a C. I. O. organization headed by Joseph H. Curran, who was also among the guest passengers. Perhaps the presence of Mr. Curran encouraged the men to grumble.

In any case, grumble many of them did—about the amount of work, about their accommodations, about the heat, about anything toward which a sympathetic ear was cocked. I do not know how many of this inaugural crew left the America at New York not to return. I do know that if threats mean anything, it was a substantial number.

The weather, as already indicated, was anything but agreeable, even well out at sea, for passengers as well as crew. There was all the inevitable disorganization of a first voyage and there was an undeniably difficult crowd of deadhead passengers, with a disposition to tip obvious services lavishly and to ignore completely the unseen labors of cooks, engine room force and deckhands. There was also the tragedy of a death on the first night out and the possibility that the heat between decks had something to do with the passing of this unfortunate. cook will explain some of the comments of his mates.

Even so it was something of a shock to be told quite seriously by one of the oilers that the company ought to provide air-conditioned sleeping quarters for the crew. The observation seemed very different from the spirit of the clipper-ship days, when this country held the sea supremacy it is now seeking to regain. And the crew's quarters, light and clean and spacious, with individual lockers, plenty of showers, cheerful mess rooms and seldom more than four occupants to a cabin, would have popped the eyes out of a traditional Yankee bucko mate. Even Mr. Curran was quick to say that his constituents aboard the America enjoy "the finest crew accommodation ever built in an American ship."

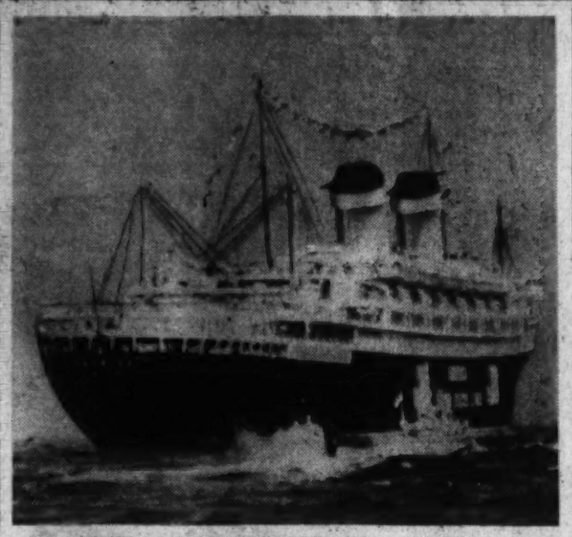

IV

IF THE RANK and file of American merchant seamen can really be dissatisfied with their accommodations on this splendid new ship, then they will always be dissatisfied with life at sea. And dissatisfaction of that character is likely to prove a serious obstacle to developing the "competent, resourceful and disciplined personnel" which the Maritime Commission rightly regards as essential to the permanent regeneration of our Merchant Marine.

There is a long story of repression and wretched treatment behind the present insolent and quasi-insubordinate attitude of many American merchant sailors. The members of the Maritime Commission are inclined to blame the past policies of shipowners as much as the present policies of the unions for the existing problem of morale. But the real issue is not so much the apportionment of blame as the best line of solution.

This the Maritime Commission seems to have found in an energetic training program, both for licensed and unlicensed personnel, inaugurated two years ago with the cooperation of the Coast Guard. There has been union opposition to this program, on the unjustified charge that it discriminates against union membership in the selection of applicants. But this opposition is apparently declining. It may be hoped that this is the case, for otherwise the regeneration of the merchant marine will last for only as long as the war eliminates the competition of nations where seamen are better trained and more professionalized.

The finest ship is only a hulk if it is not well manned. Amid the proper pride aroused by the new America it is well to recall the warning voiced by the Maritime Commission three years ago. Unless order and discipline are firmly established in the American Merchant Marine, said the commission, it will be "only a question of time before disgusted shippers and worried travelers turn to the vessels of our competitors."

THE AMERICA IN NEW YORK HARBOR

Union Chief Joseph H. Curran praised the crew accommodations, Felix Morley relates in telling of the ship's maiden voyage. But there was grumbling aboard, and an oiler wanted air-conditioned quarters

Woodring Draft Text

Letter Upholds Volunteer System

The letter from former Secretary of War Woodring to Senator Vandenburg regarding conscription, follows:

MY DEAR SENATOR:

In answer to your inquiry on the compulsory military bill now before the Senate, I cannot see the need of compulsory military training at this time, and I should like to see the bill amended so that it does not become effective until, and after, the Chief of Staff of the United States Army has first advised the Senate in writing that the voluntary system has completely broken down. The voluntary system is traditional, and I believe is as important factor in the American way of free government as is free speech, the will to worship God as one's own conscience dictates, free assembly, and other American principles. If through the influence of increasing tendency toward paternalism, we have broken down the moral stamina and fiber of the American youth, and made him a regimented atom, rather than a free individual, and thereby broken down the voluntary instinct to serve in a patriotic way, we then unquestionably will have to adopt a compulsory system for the defense of this country. But we must be assured when we adopt the compulsory system that we have unquestionably left the American principle based on the individual's freedom of action and have adopted a bill that smacks of totalitarianism.

I BELIEVE it is the duty of Congress, and particularly the Senate, to be certain that the voluntary system has not failed for these reasons, but because it has had disadvantages for which our Government itself is to blame. For instance several years ago, and also several months ago, I proposed to the Administration the increase of the basic pay of the enlisted soldier of the U. S. Army from $21 to $30. The reply was that it was inconsistent with the financial program of the Administration. Whether that inconsistency holds good today, I would be willing for the Senate to decide. I believe the voluntary system is at a great disadvantage. We go out over the country and propose to the American youth that he enlist in the Army for a period of three years at $21 per month basic pay. That young man knows that 95 per cent of such enlisted men receive the $21 per month during the full three-year period. And he also knows that the youth that enlists at the same time in the U. S. Navy at $21 basic pay is advanced in grade, through their custom, approved by, and money appropriated therefor, by the Congress of the United States—is advanced within 60 or 90 days to $30, and in many instances soon thereafter to $36 per month. In fact, there is a letter addressed to Chairman Sheppard, bearing my signature, before the Senate Military Affairs Committee, written only six or seven months ago, bearing fully on this question of inequality of pay between the two services. I have not the figures before me, but I believe it is safe to say that within a year over 66 2-3 per cent of the youth that enlist in the U. S. Navy receive over $30 per month or more.

THE SAME YOUTH that is asked to join the Army at $21 pay for three years sees his neighbor join the CCC for one year at $30 per month, and in many instances the CCC camp and the Army post are side by side. How any fair-minded member of Congress could say that we haven given the voluntary system of enlistment for the U. S. Army service a fair trial, and that it has broken down, and therefore we need the compulsory service, is beyond my understanding.

I also think the Senate should ask if our present quota of enlistments as outlined by the War Department have failed to be reached in any instance. Perhaps we of the War Department several months ago did not place the quota high enough. That is not the fault of the voluntary system. If we need a million, or two million, young men for trained service in the U. S. Army, let's first give equal advantages to the voluntary system of raising this quota, and if necessary let's provide for one year voluntary service at $30 per month. I am for a trial by voluntary system before changing to the compulsory system. If the voluntary system fails, then I will join with others in obtaining the number of men, in the necessary time to defend this country, through a compulsory system.

Four U. S. Armies Begin Greatest Peace Maneuvers

By the Associated Press

AT PEACETIME peaks in training and equipment, units of four United States armies were moving by rail and road today toward imaginary front lines on theoretical battlefields.

Mobilizing for the most extensive field exercises since the World War, 301,000 Regular Army, National Guard and reserve troops prepared to give a preview of mass maneuvers which, if Congress approves, may become a regular practice.

Extending its former policy of holding maneuvers in only one Army area each year, the War Department has ordered exercises in all four areas this summer. They will be a prelude to possible mobilization of all or part of the National Guard for a full year.

The length of the maneuvers has been extended from 14 days to 21 days, on top of an extra week's field training which was given to the National Guard during the last year.

Although there are still bothersome shortages in modern weapons and supplies, the War Department said that the troops would go into mock action with more complete peacetime equipment than ever. All Regular Army troops and many guardsmen will carry new semiautomatic rifles. New antitank guns will be employed. An increased number of motor transport units will be used.

Markedly absent, however, will be the thundering tanks of the armed forces. Two divisions in process of organization will continue to train as units rather than be scattered among the four armies.

TRUCKS AND CARS will be used in the maneuvers to simulate tanks, lanes also will be limited, to avoid hampering the Air Corps expansion.

More than three-quarters of the mobile ground forces will be concentrated in the four Army areas, giving a practical test of troop-movement facilities, including 486 special trains, buses, trucks and automobiles.

Largest of the concentrations already is well under way in northern New York, where 91,000 officers and men of the First Army are assembling in the Plattsburg-Watertown area for maneuvers August 5 to 25.

Second Army, 65,000, Sparta, Wis., area, August 11 to 31; Third Army, 83,000, Sabine River-Alexandria, La., area, August 4 to 24; Fourth Army, divided between Fort Lewis, Wash., and Camp Ripley, Minn., August 4 to 24.

More than 500,000 regulars, reserves, guardsmen, students and businessmen have received two weeks to a year of training since July 1, 1939.

The maneuvers will get under way just as the training camps for 75,000 C. M. T. C. and R. O. T. C. students are being concluded.

'Not Possibly Before 1946'

BECAUSE the United States is separated from all the other great powers by the two oceans, not only the first line of defense but the whole defense of America depends upon naval power. This country cannot be attacked by the armies and air forces of Europe or Asia as long as the American Navy can prevent them from making a landing and establishing bases within striking distance of this hemisphere. Against a superior navy, it is impossible to make a landing overseas.

But with a superior navy, it is entirely feasible to make a landing overseas; in our own history European armies have been landed in this hemisphere again and again. During the colonial period French and British and Spanish armies fought in this hemisphere whenever there was a European war. Since the United States became an independent nation, there have been two important invasions. Thus in 1812, because we had no navy to stop it, a British army landed in Maryland, marched on Washington and burned the Capitol. In 1861, because we had no navy available to stop it and because our army was involved in a civil war, Napoleon III landed a French army in Mexico and set up Maximilian as Emperor of Mexico. It is, therefore, not true that the oceans as such are a barrier to invasion. Everything depends upon whose navy controls the oceans. In 1917, because we and our allies controlled the Atlantic Ocean, we ourselves landed an army of two million men not only in France, but also in England, Italy and even in Russia. If in 1917 two million Americans were able to go to Europe under naval convoy, how can it be argued that two million Europeans can never come to the Americas if, by obtaining naval supremacy, they can convoy their troop ships and their supplies?

IT IS, therefore, indisputable that American security depends upon maintaining naval supremacy as against its potential enemies. That is why the Congress has within the past month authorized the expenditure of ten billion dollars in order to enlarge the navy by 70 per cent. Every senator now opposing the conscription bill, every senator who is issuing statements about "war hysteria" supported this gigantic increase in the navy. Why? Because the Senate unanimously, and the House with only one dissenter, Mr. Marcantonio of New York, accepted the conclusion in the Report of Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, the chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee:

"The changes in the international situation which have taken place recently are well known. The possibility confronting the nations of the world today, including those of the Western Hemisphere, are of a most serious nature. Our present navy, including the vessels and planes now authorized, may be inadequate to meet successfully possible or even probable international situations which may occur in the near future. The committee are of the opinion that we should face the fact that we may have to defend ourselves in both oceans at the same time, and that a further expansion of our navy is essential if we are to make our naval defenses sufficiently strong to insure success in case we are attacked. Our navy must be ready for complete freedom of action against any opposition in either ocean while carrying on effective defensive operations in the other ocean. Anything less than a naval strength to meet this requirement leaves the United States in a position of insecurity. The committee feel that the United States should make clear to the world its intentions to meet immediately those defense requirements and recommend a 70-per cent increase in the authorized combatant strength of the navy, a 50-per cent increase in the number of useful naval aircraft, and an increase in the number of auxiliary vessels, patrol vessels, and miscellaneous craft. The committee also recommend that the expansion authorized by the bill be made at the earliest practicable date under emergency building conditions and that additional shipbuilding and airplane building facilities be provided, whenever by so doing the completion of the vessels and planes of the expanded program will be expedited.

"It is realized that the keels of the new vessels authorized cannot be laid down immediately; nevertheless the preparation of material can parallel the rapid development of new construction facilities. This will enable the new vessels to be completed at the earliest possible date.

"Our navy, including our naval air forces, must always remain the first military line of our defense forces. To be an effective deterrent or, failing this, to be equal to its war mission, it must be ready and be stronger than potential aggressors. To be second best is not only an invitation to war, but to utter disaster. All history proves this contention, and the defeat of the French offers a classic example. The timely expenditure of $10,000,000,000 for national defense might have maintained intact both the French and British Empires. Compared to their dissolution, this would have been cheap. Not only may the French have lost the empire but all their time, effort, and money spent in protection, because they did not go far enough. In the committee's opinion the lesson is plain—halfway measures will not suffice and we must now build up our navy (including our naval air force) and make it impregnable."

ONLY ONE QUESTION was asked in the Senate which bears upon the naval policy explained in the Walsh report—namely:

Mr. Vandenberg—Will the Senator yield?

Mr. Walsh—I yield.

Mr. Vandenberg—The Senator says the result to which he refers is to be achieved in the near future. Can the Senator indicate when we may hope to complete the program to which he now addresses himself?

Mr. Walsh—Not possibly before 1946.

Mr. Vandenberg—So up until 1946 it would not be a bad idea to maintain in the Far East a diplomatic attitude as reasonably friendly as possible?

Mr. Walsh—I agree with the Senator.

This little exchange was all that was said on what is in fact the heart of the whole defense program. Everyone was agreed that an "impregnable" navy is necessary. Everyone knew that "not possibly before 1946" can such a navy be constructed. But no one discussed what is to be done in the six intervening years. Mr. Vandenberg could only suggest that we try to be friendly with Japan; he has more recently concluded that though we need another navy which we cannot possibly have until 1946, we shall be safer if we do not conscript an army than if we do. And Senator Walsh, who put through the authorization for another navy and knows it will not exist for at least six years, is firmly convinced that if we take the risks of helping the British navy to continue to exist, we shall be in greater danger than if we take the risk of letting the British navy be sunk or captured.

HOW CAN SUCH contradictions as this be maintained by statesmen? If we need another ten billion dollar navy, and they all have gone solemnly on record that we do, is it not indisputable that we shall need it before 1946? For if Britain is to be defeated, it will be before 1946; is it then conceivable that the victors—Japan, Italy, and Germany—would wait patiently for several years while we built the new navy? Their shipbuilding capacity would be at least four or five times as great as our own. Would they fail to outbuild us, or to force the issue before we were ready? It is plain as day, and no one will, I think, deny it, that only if Britain wins, will we be granted the six years time to build the new navy; if Britain loses, we shall need the new navy long before we have it.

That being the case, no one who voted to build the new navy is in a position to deny that the support of British naval resistance is indispensable to the American navy. Otherwise he is arguing that we need a new navy but that we can get along quite well without it. That does not make sense, and nobody can make it make sense. Nor is anyone who voted for the new navy in a position to deny that since it cannot be built until 1946, the Americas may be open to invasion because they do not control the seas. And if they do not control the seas, then they must be defended on land and in the air by a large army. And if there is anybody who seriously thinks a large army can be recruited and equipped without conscription, he is denying the lesson of all experience in all countries.

HAVING VOTED that a two-ocean navy is necessary, no one can escape answering the question: with what do you propose to defend America in the six long years while the other navy is being built? For if in those six especially perilous years, no extraordinary measures of defense are needed, then why is another navy needed in 1946?

The Third Term

("Roosevelt consents to run as a sacrifice."—News item.)

The Presidency is a strain—
It tears down any man;
I view a further stay with pain—
A third term I would ban.
I hate to see traditions go—
(In fact they're rather nice)
But, just the same I can't say "No"—
I love to sacrifice!

II.

Two terms have been long enough
Through all our history,
But there's a call for sterner stuff
In times like these, you see;
I long for Hyde Park's simple cheer,
Where idle days suffice,
But since the call is very clear,
I'll make the sacrifice.

III.

The White House it is full of cares,
It gives a man no rest;
The burden that a ruler bears
Applies a killing test;
Two runs are such a fierce ordeal
I would not make it thrice . . .
But you know how it is to feel
The need for sacrifice.

IV.

Eight years of being President
Are all a man can stand;
They leave him feeling weak and spent—
The simple life seems grand;
No President should ask for more,
No third term should entice,
But on it I can't slam the door;
I welcome sacrifice!

V.

My two terms have been very hard,
With crises everywhere;
No President can hold a card
To what I've had to bear;
Hyde Park now offers peace and bliss,
Both something I would prize—
Except that at a time like this
We all must sacrifice.

VI.

I've borne the brunt of eight tough years
And rest I now deserve;
I'm tired now of all the cheers—
From public life I'd swerve;
I know that there are others wise
And for the job quite fit—
But when it comes to sacrifice
I am the man for it!

Roosevelt's Dilemma

By Mark Sullivan

Conscription Bill

IN EVERYBODY'S mind was the conscription bill. It had been made public some days before (as a tentative draft in the Senate Military Affairs Committee). Some of its provisions had aroused opposition. There had been a deluge of protests to Congress—mail, wire, and in person. As a result, the bill had been trimmed down to where it was little more than a skeleton proposal.

Meanwhile, a question had come up. What was President Roosevelt's position on the bill? He had been asked the question at a press conference and had avoided answering—saying he did not wish to comment on legislation pending in Congress. That answer had not been convincing; it had merely made members of Congress and others more determined to make the President take a position. Also, the President's reluctance to avow support of the measure had weakened it with the country. The measure had slipped to where it was said the whole idea of conscription might die, unless Mr. Roosevelt came to the rescue.

THAT WAS the situation on the morning of the Friday press conference. Mr. Roosevelt began by saying he had nothing important to announce. He went on with something about going to Hyde Park over the week-end. Then he paused, as if this was all he had to tell the newspapermen.

The ball was started rolling by one of the older correspondents, Mr. Fred Essary, of the Baltimore Sun. He said: "Mr. President, the attitude of the country about this conscription bill seems not so hot."

Instantly Mr. Roosevelt responded. He said that depended on what newspaper you read. He had himself read two and got two contrary impressions. To that, Mr. Essary replied, genially, that for himself he depended on his own "Sun-paper" and concluded the conscription bill was languishing seriously.

THAT STARTED Mr. Roosevelt off in a mood good-humored though serious. He said, as to his attitude on the bill, that he was in that position of universal blame phrased by the adage, "damned if I do, and damned if I don't." If he sent a specific conscription bill to Congress written out in advance, the newspapermen right there in the room would write about the executive office "dictating" to Congress.

From this text, Mr. Roosevelt went on with a comprehensive review of his relations with Congress, about legislation. He said that during the first 100 days or so of his Administration, in 1933, and to some extent in 1934, it was true he had sent ready-made bills to Congress. At that time, he said, Congress was glad to have him do so—it was a period of emergency, and speed was necessary. But for doing this, Mr. Roosevelt said, he had been "panned." Newspapers and others had invented a phrase, "must bills." So, he said, he became scrupulous. He decided never to send a ready-made bill to Congress, even though Congressional leaders requested it.

IN RECITING all this Mr. Roosevelt told the newsmen he was talking to them from the heart, and very simply. And he was—his mood was engaging. All that he said was quite true—except that he put the date of his change too early. It was in February, 1937, that Mr. Roosevelt sent his bill for changing the Supreme Court to Congress, written out with minute exactness. It was his unfortunate experience with that measure, one guesses, that caused him to stop sending ready-made bills to Congress.)

With this introduction, Mr. Roosevelt went into the subject of conscription. Again his mood was admirable. His information was extensive and minute; his expressions of judgment cool and well phrased. His analysis of the military situation, abroad and as it affects us; his comparisons with our experience in 1918, his analysis of the nature of modern wars—all was admirable. His conclusion, he stated strongly: You must have trained men—on that he was clear and firm. It will not do to wait for an Act of Congress after war actually breaks out. And it will not do, he said, to depend on a volunteer system. As to one detail of the present measure that has caused objection, registering elderly men up to the age of 64, he was not so firm; he merely thought it was desirable.

AFTER HE HAD stated his conclusions, Mr. Essary, with a good newsman's art of ingratiation, told Mr. Roosevelt that one sentence he had just uttered was very quotable—would he let it be put in quotation marks? That usually allures Mr. Roosevelt. He had the sentence read by the stenographer, added a few words to it, and said it could be quoted. As I got it down in longhand, it was: "I am distinctly in favor of a selective service training bill, and I consider it essential to adequate national defense."

Reflectively, one went back to Mr. Roosevelt's opening statement that no matter what position he took, he would be "damned if I do, and damned if I don't." That is Mr. Roosevelt's tragedy and the country's. There is a present reason for it. If Mr. Roosevelt were not trying for a third term, he would not need to care whether he was damned, for any position, on any subject. He would be free to tell the country what he thinks. And, also, the country would accept what he says—no one could harbor suspicion about his good faith. If he were not trying for a third term, he would be free to give the country disinterested leadership, which all would recognize as disinterested. He could give disinterested leadership not only about the conscription bill but about other aspects of the war, concerning which, most of us think, Mr. Roosevelt has some very definite views which he seems reluctant to utter.

Newport Set Flocks To War Relief Parties

International Set Gives Summer Colony Exotic Flavor; Procopes Are Expected For Week-End; Chetwode Is Crowded

NEWPORT, R. I.

DEAR DRUDGE:

I am sitting with my feet in the Atlantic Ocean reading all about the heat wave in Washington. But cheer up, it's been warm even in Newport, and if you think it's humid where you are, you should sample our brand of three-day fog and dampness.

I've had my black tie on every night, which isn't much of a rest after the Washington season. There are dinners every evening, very much in the usual gold-plated Newport manner, but no balls as yet. War relief parties galore, as everybody feels guilty who doesn't donate party proceeds to the stricken of Europe.

Mrs. C. Oliver O'Donnell is carrying on the Red Cross work she did so energetically in Washington last winter. And Adelaide Whitehouse—you remember, she had a volunteer job with the Red Cross in the Capital until a short time ago—is chairman of a first-aid group of young people. The girls go to fire headquarters for demonstrations of rescue work in case of emergency, war or otherwise. Sylvia Szechenyi, Marjorie and Isabel Meuser, and Princess Francesca Rospigliosi are some of the Washington girls who are active.

International Set Gives Newport Foreign Flavor

Fugitives from the international set and Washington diplomats are giving Newport a big foreign tinge. The Finnish Minister and Mme. Procope arrive this week-end for a stay with Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. The Minister will be back at his desk in Washington on Monday as usual.

Mrs. Wallach Merriam is queening it at a table at Bailey's Beach every morning. Just as she does in Washington in the winter—remember?—when old and young come up to pass the time of day (or usually night) with her.

Chetwode, the enormous Astor place which Arthur Bradley Campbell has this summer, is always full of people. And you need a crowd in a big house like that, or you'd feel as lonely as Dorothy Thompson at a Bund meeting. The central hall is two stories high, the dining room big, with beautiful boiseries, and then, there's the handsome formal garden. Arthur is giving a dinner for 30 tonight. It started out as a small party, but by the time each one invited asked if he or she could bring a house guest, it ended up huge.

Clarence Hewes Is Planning Motor Trip to West Coast

Clarence Hewes has been been visiting Arthur, but returns to Washington today and from there, I believe, will go on to Hot Springs next week. He'll motor out to California, with a stopover at Glacier Park, before opening up his house on Massachusetts avenue in the early fall. His attractive niece, Ellen Flowerree, is spending the whole summer in her New Orleans house (air conditioned, fortunately), as her father is ill. If he recovers by fall, she will join her uncle again.

The Arthur Glasgows are staying with Mrs. Herbert Shipman, the war having driven them from London. Mrs. Edward Reed was here with Mrs. C. Mathews Dick, and Frank Holcomb, son of the Marine Corps commandant, recently put in at Newport on his boat.

So far, I haven't found anyone up here who's going to vote for Roosevelt. But, as you always say, I couldn't have picked a less typical place to spend two weeks. With love, BEACHCOMBER.

Off to Chicago for Visit

Bonnie Miss Peggy Lansdowne who, although she calls Washington home, is rarely here, was off again the other day for Chicago where she will visit Miss Lana Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Jelke, of Lake Forest, Ill. She has just completed a brief visit in Ruxton, N. J. She is the daughter of Mrs. John Caswell, of this city

Father to See His Daughter For First Time

Herbert Fales Arrives in New York From Vienna

A thrill is in store for Herbert Fales when he arrives in Washington this week-end to view his 4-month-old daughter, Willis Foster Fales, for the first time.

Having served in the United States Consular Office in Vienna for the last few years, he arrived aboard the S. S. Exochorda yesterday in New York City on leave. He was greeted by his wife, Mrs. Fales, who left Vienna last fall at the outbreak of the war.

The two plan to come to Washington where they will stop at the Georgetown home of Mrs. Fale's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hyde, of P street. Although their plans are naturally in the nebulous state still, Mr. and Mrs. Fales hope to leave soon for a month's stay in Pasadena, Calif., where they will visit his mother, Mrs. Alice Peck Wright. After their stay on the West Coast they will sail for Japan where Mr. Fales will serve as vice consul in Tokyo.

J. E. Horbetts On Bridal Trip

Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Horbett, jr., are in Asbury Park on their wedding trip. They will make their home in Jackson Heights, Long Island.

The marriage of the former Miss Anne Muriel Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Francis Kelly, of Jersey City, took place Tuesday afternoon in St. Aedan's Church, in Jersey City, with the Rev. Mr. Hennessey officiating. Mr. Horbett is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Horbett, of this city.

The bride wore a gown of white marquisette and a picture hat. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet. She was attended by Mrs. Herbert Stites, of Hillside, N. J., dressed in a printed chiffon gown with a matching picture hat. She carried a corsage of roses and blue delphiniums.

Thomas Bannigan, of Colorado, was best man. After the ceremony the bridal party, members of the families and a few intimate friends attended the wedding supper and reception at the Hotel Plaza.

The bridegroom is connected with the Jersey City office of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and was formerly in the employ of the Riggs National Bank of this city.

Eight and Forty Chairman Announces Seven Winners of $100 Scholarships; Beta Sigma Phi Program Committee Named

Mrs. Dorothy B. Harper, national scholarship chairman for the Eight and Forty (La Boutique Nationale, des Huit Chapeaux et Quarante Femmes), has announced seven awards, of $100 each, for "courage, health achievement and educational ambition," made by the organization this season.

Although Mrs. Harper believes it is the achievement that counts, no matter under whose direction it is made, she is gratified with the record of the second year of the scholarship program for rehabilitated tubercular children of deceased veterans. The awards go to young people 16 years old or over.

And here they are: Betty Jeanne Reynolds will enter the University of Nevada at Reno in September. Her scholarship money goes for registration, books and supplies. Dora Marie Mariano will follow her mother's profession as a laboratory technician and this fall enter St. Anthony's Hospital in Pocatello, Idaho, applying her award toward necessary expenses. Anna Cotton, of Massachusetts, in a sanitarium the last nine years, was discharged in June and her award will provide special training whereby she may earn her livelihood.

Anna Marie Carey will enter Mount St. Mary's College at Hocksett, N. H., her award going toward tuition, books and supplies; Carl Hobson Goad will apply his award toward expenses for his second year at Virginia Polytechnic Institute; Mary Elizabeth Marsh plans a music career and from the award will study trumpet and cornet with an instructor from the United States Marine Band. Her goal is to eventually lead her own orchestra. Janet de Neale English will apply her award toward tuition at the State Teacher's College, Farmville, Va., entering in September.

She and Mary Elizabeth Marsh will receive their awards at Le Marche Departmental (convention), 8 et 40, the evening of August 16 at the Washington Hotel Rose Room, when "Smiles" will be the theme song because of the happiness given through these scholarships.

Mrs. Ellen Louise Warren, of this city, is Le Chapeau National of the organization.

TO CONVENTION—Several Washington members of the W. C. T. U., headed by Mrs. Ida B. Ramsey, State president for the District, will attend the sixty-sixth annual convention, to be held in Chicago, August 9 to 14. They will include Mrs. Pearl Meadows, State secretary of the Youth Temperance Council for the District; Mrs. William Watt, director of speech contests; Mrs. H. O. Severance, delegate, and Mrs. Iva B. Stout, secretary of the Loyal Temperance Union.

Last year, when the national convention was held at Rochester, N. Y., a pilgrimage was made to Churchville, about 16 miles distant, where a memorial service was held at the birthplace of Frances E. Willard, founder of the organization. This year a pilgrimage will be made from Chicago to Rest Cottage, Miss Willard's home for many years, at Evanston, where she was the first dean of women and a professor of esthetics in Northwestern University.

Miss Willard was co-founder with Susan B. Anthony and May Wright Sewall of the National Council of Women in 1888, and was given the degree of LL. D. by the Ohio Wesleyan University in 1894. Sixty years ago she advocated an eight-hour day and courts of conciliation and arbitration. She is the only woman whose State (Illinois) has honored her by placing her statue in Statuary Hall in the United States Capitol Building.

SOROTRITY ACTIVE—Miss Elva Chandler, of Mount Cuba, Del., president of the Middle Eastern Area Council of Beta Sigma Phi, has announced a committee to plan programs for all council meetings for the coming year. It includes: Winifred Ericson, president of the D. C. Council, chairman; Mrs. Alice Roberts Koch, of Washington, and Miss Ruth Arnold and Miss Sue Myers, of Harrisburg, Pa.

At a dinner meeting recently held at the home of Miss Ericson, 3100 Eighteenth street northwest, three charter members of Delta chapter of Washington, Miss Virginia Bell, Miss Opha Thompson and Miss Dorothy Pedersen, were chosen to prepare a round-table discussion of the program outline for the first year of study, "Conduct, Expression and Purpose." It will be presented at the Middle Eastern Area Council meeting on Sunday, September 22, at Trenton, N. J. Mrs. Koch will direct the discussion.

Eta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will give a picnic at Rock Creek Park today from 3 to 6 p. m. Miss Ruth Reed will be in charge of plans and will be assisted by Miss Margaret Young, chairman of the social committee.

Gamma chapter will have a theater party on Monday, at 8:30 p. m. at the Roadside Theater, to see "Murder in the Red Barn." Miss Helen Buzzell and Mrs. Victoria Kay Strauch have charge of arrangements.

Norse Envoy To Aid at Bridal

The Minister of Norway, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, and the Rev. Duncan Browne of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Wianno, Mass., will officiate at the wedding August 10 of Miss Frances Baldwin Walker to Frederic Michelson Schaefer. The ceremony will take place at Wianno, near Barnstable, on Cape Cod, where Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne is summering.

The prospective bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Walker, of Concord and Osterville, Mass., and Mr. Schaefer's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Schaefer, of Pittsburgh.

A wedding reception at the Walker home will follow. Miss Barbara Walker will be maid of honor for her sister, and the bridesmaids include Miss Nancy Neil, of Boston, Miss Edith Moir, of Chestnut Hill, Mass., and the Misses Jane and Katherine Schaefer, of Pittsburgh. Clement D. Gile, of Pittsburgh, will be best man.

Dr. Rowe Returns From Cuban Parley With Dr. Manger

The Director General of the Pan American Union, Dr. L. S. Rowe, has returned to Washington after attending the conference of American foreign ministers at Havana. Dr. Rowe was accompanied by the counselor, Dr. William Manger, and the chief of the juridical division of the Pan American Union.

A. W. Vaseniuses On Wedding Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Walter Vasenius are on their wedding trip, following their marriage here Thursday, and upon their return will be at home to their friends at their apartment at 115 Flower avenue.

The marriage of Miss Lois Irene Osborne took place at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Andreasen in Takoma Park. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Jesse T. Osborne, of Maple Planes, Minn. Mr. Vasenius is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Vasenius, of Chisolm, Minn.

The Rev. Andreasen officiated before a small group of friends. The bride wore a beige crepe ensemble with a corsage of talisman roses and white gladioli. After the ceremony and reception Mr. and Mrs. Vasenius left for their wedding trip.

Both the bride and bridegroom graduated from the Maple Wood Academy in Hutchison, Minn., and later attended Union College in Lincoln, Nebr., where Mr. Andreasen was formerly president.

Richard Thompsons Honeymoon by Sea

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thompson are in Atlantic City on their honeymoon and upon their return will live in Washington.

The bride is the former Miss Dorothy Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milbourne Carter. The marriage took place on Sunday, July 28, in the Seventh Baptist Church, Baltimore. The Rev. Mr. Day, pastor of the church, officiated.

Consuelo Villa Is Engaged

At a large dinner given last night at Fairholme, their Newport villa, Count and Countess Alfonso P. Villa announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Consuelo V. L. Villa, to John T. Hamilton 2d, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Miss Villa, who has been a popular member of the Newport summer colony for several years, attended Miss Hewitt's finishing school in Florence, Italy, and made her debut at a brilliant ball given at Fairholme in August, 1936.

Mr. Hamilton prepared at Pomfret School and was graduated from Prnceton in 1934. He is a member of the Ivy Club and of the Racquet and Tennis Club of New York and of the New York Yacht Club and the Racquet Club of Chicago. He is now a vice president and director of the Merchants National Bank of Cedar Rapids.

Many From Here Attend Opening Of Music Festival

The opening concert of the seventh annual Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., Thursday night found many Washingtonians in the audience.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was there, and sat with Mrs. Norman H. Davis, wife of the American Red Cross chairman, in her box. Mrs. Davis' other guests included Mrs. Norman P. Davis, Mrs. John Clarkson Potter and Mrs. Robert Whiton Stuartt.

Alanson B. Houghton, of Washington, former Ambassador to Great Britain, and Mrs. Houghton were the guests of Prof. and Mrs. Philip Marshall Brown in their box. John D. Archbold, of Washingon, was among the guests of Princess Diane R. Eristavi, and her mother, Mrs. George Otis Rockwood, who gave a dinner beforehand at the Lenox Club.

D. C. People Flock to Beach

Miss Stellita Stapleton, who has been staying here this summer so as to continue her volunteer job at the Red Cross, left yesterday to visit Mrs. George Hamilton in New Hampshire. Miss Stapleton, who will be gone about two weeks, was accompanied North by Mrs. Rudolph Kauffman 2d, who will vacation with her mother-in-law.

Mrs. Daniel C. Stapleton and her sister, Mrs. Mae Hamilton, have returned after five days at the Cavalier Hotel, Virginia Beach. Miss Stapleton accompanied them on their trip South.

The Beach is a mecca for Washingtonians. Col. and Mrs. Edmund W. Starling, who accompanied the President on his recent visit to the Chesapeake fortifications, lingered on at the Cavalier for a few days after his departure.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur De Titta, refugees from France, and their evacuated canary, Coco, are staying at the Cavalier. Commander James H. Stevens, who is attached to the U. S. S. Wasp, now in Norfolk waters, and Mrs. Stevens, of Washington, are recent arrivals at the hotel.

Greenacres Wait In New York to Sail For Ecuador Post

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Alvord J. Greenacre are in New York to board a steamer for Guayaquil, Ecuador. Lieut. Comdr. Greenacre has been detailed as Naval Attache to the American Legation in Ecuador, with headquarters in Quito.

For the past month they have been visiting Mrs. Greenacre's parents, Prof. and Mrs. W. E. Olivet. They were accompanied by their three children, Francine Olivet, William Thomas and Catherine Miles.

The Post Regrets Error in Marital Announcement

The wedding of Miss Betty Strasburger, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Milton Strasburger, to Edgar Wall Warner, jr., will take place on Tuesday, August 6, and did not take place Tuesday of this week as reported on this page yesterday. The Post deeply regrets the error.

The couple will be married in the Chinese room of the Mayflower at 6 o'clock in the evening. The Rev. Max Currick, of Erie, Pa., will officiate, and a dinner will follow the ceremony. After their marriage Mr. Warner and his wife will make their home in Erie.

Virginia Kimball Becomes Bride

Mrs. Bartow Kimball announces the marriage at Newton Centre, Mass., on Thursday, of her daughter, Virginia Bartow, to Marcy Leavenworth Sperry, jr., son of Mr. Sperry, of Washington, and the late Mrs. Sperry.

The bride is a graduate of the Netherwood School, Rothesay, New Brunswick, Canada, and of the Erskine School, Boston.

Mr. Sperry is a graduate of Milton Academy and of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, class of 1933.

Prince Felix Leaves Capital

His Royal Highness Felix, Prince Consort of the Archduchess of Luxembourg, has returned to the estate of the Special Assistant to the Secretary of State and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies at Roslyn, Long Island, after spending several days at the Shoreham.

Prince Felix arrived at the Shoreham Tuesday, where he kept his presence more or less a secret, and spent a few days renewing acquaintances which he had made in Washington during his official visit to Washington last summer. During his brief stay in Washington last week, when he and his children were guests at the White House for luncheon, Prince Felix had little time to visit anyone, so he returned for a quiet visit.

During his stay here he was entertained by the Charge d'Affaires of Luxemborug and Mme. Le Gallais, who make their home at the Shoreham.

Lemlys Here

Col. and Mrs. William B. Lemly who have been spending several weeks at Ocean City, N. J., have returned to Washington and are in their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel.

Miss Ellen Mayl, Mr. Frelinghuysen Will Be Married

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Mayl, of Beverely Hills, Calif., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ellen Mayl, to Harry O. H. Frelinghuysen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Frelinghuysen, of Morristown, N. J.

The bride-elect attended Connecticut College for Women and the University of California. Her father is vice president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., at Los Angeles.

Mr. Frelinghuysen is the twin brother of Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, jr., whose engagement to Miss Beatrice Proctor, of New York, Palm Beach and Stockbridge, Mass., was announced last month. Both were graduated from St. Mark's School and Princeton, and are attending the Yale Law School.

Miss Grace Howard's Troth Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Howard, of Charlottesville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Grace Dyer, to Paul Edward Halberstadt, of Charlottesville, who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. William Level Halberstadt, of this city.

The wedding will take place on August 17 at the First Methodist Church in Charlottesville.

Secretary Hull To Give Luncheon For Dr. Salomoni

The Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, will entertain at a men's luncheon today in honor of Dr. Tomas A. Salomoni, Foreign Minister of Paraguay. Dr. Salomoni was among the delegates from South America to the recent Pan-American Conference at Havana.

Mrs. Hull, who returned from Cuba with her husband, says she hopes to take him on a vacation "whenever he can get away." Mrs. Hull reports that she thoroughly enjoyed the conference and the Cuban hospitality and was very much touched to find a large welcoming group back home on her arrival at Union Station. The greeters included Speaker of the House and Mrs. William Bankhead and the Tennessee delegation in Congress.

Thomas Hewes, Edna Hanlon Wed

Thomas Hewes, of Farmington, Conn., and Miss Edna Harriett Hanlon, of Hartford, Conn., were wed yesterday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Barrett Prettyman in Kenwood, Chevy Chase, Md. Thomas Chase Hewes, eldest son of the bridegroom, was best man. The ceremony took place in the presence only of members of the two families.

Mr. Hewes as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Special Assistant to the Secretary of State under the present Administration and is now associated with the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense in Washington.

Peruvian Envoy Is Back in Capital From Havana Talks

The Peruvian Ambassador, Manuel de Freyre y Santander, will return to Washington today from Havana, where he attended the Pan-American Conference.

The many friends of Carlos Mackenzie y de la Fuente, who knew him when he was Third Secretary of the Peruvian Embassy here in 1938, will be glad to hear that he has returned as Second Secretary. Since leaving Washington he has been in Lima at the foreign office as subchief of the protocol department, and was married at Lima several months ago.

This is Senora de Mackenzie's first visit to the United States. She has traveled in Europe and studied in England.

Juan P. Gallagher, who was Third Secretary at the Peruvian Embassy, has left for Panama City with Senora de Gallagher. He has been named Second Secretary to the Peruvian Legation there.

Miss Nancy Troxell To Be Wed in Fall

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar R. Troxell, jr., of Bonxville, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Nancy N. Troxell, to Blake Shepard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger B. Shepard, of St. Paul.

Miss Troxell was graduated from St. Lawrence College in 1935. Her sisters are Mrs. John P. Treadwell 3d, of Lima, Peru, and Miss Elizabeth C. Troxell, of Bronxville.

Mr. Shepard attended St. Paul's and was graduated in 1936 from Yale where he was a member of the Fence Club, Torch Honor Society and Skull and Bones. He is with W. R. Grace & Co., New York. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Engagement Announced

'Happiness Forever' Symbolized As Ethel Dyer, Mr. Bullen Marry

Bouquet Contains Springs of Scottish Heather, Which Were Brought Here By Bridegroom's Father Half Century Ago

An old Scotch custom was revived at the wedding of Mrs. Henry A. Bullen on July 26. Fashioned of white roses and gardenias, her bouquet had sprigs of Scottish heather from living plants which were brought from the Highlands by the bridegroom's grandfather half a century ago. According to old ballads of Scotland, the heather is a symbol of "happiness forever."

Mrs. Bullen is the former Miss Ethel Sallie Dyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross A. Dyer, of Arlington. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Bullen, also of Arlington. The couple was married in the Arlington Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Walter F. Wolfe officiating.

Father Gives Bride In Marriage

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white gown. Her bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Edith Annie Boulsh Dyer, who chose pink with a matching bouquet of roses and delphiniums. John Fox was best man.

A reception at the home of Colin Kerr Cameron, near Annandale, Va., followed. The following evening Mr. and Mrs. Bullen, sr., entertained for the couple.

Many Attend Both Parties

Among guests at the two parties were Mrs. Walter Wolfe, Miss Dorothy Bell, Miss Hilda Sprinkle, Mrs. John W. Fox and Miss Dorothy Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour G. Hensen, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Merchant, Mrs. Erle R. Kirby, Mr. and Mrs. Byron W. Hollenbeck, Mrs. T. H. Jefferson, Miss Mary Trice, Miss Marianna Trice, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Chaney, Miss Emma Bullen, Mr. and Mrs. Elgin F. Dyer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Merchant, Miss Dorothy Kirkland, Miss Ruth Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Symonds, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Flanagan, Miss Ruth Van Hart, Mrs. Charles Koch and Miss Edna Tanner.

Your Figure, Madame!

—By Ida Jean Kain

Hair and Nail Growth Aided By Protein Foods in Diet

IT SEEMS the ladies will go to any lengths to grow long fingernails—they are even willing to eat the right kind of food and are writing to ask for the list.

It's a list worth knowing, for the foods which help to keep the nails in the pink of condition also figure in the health of the hair. Nails and hair are modified skin, and protein is the element necessary to their structure. The complete protein foods—so called because they furnish all the essential amino acids—are meat, fish and fowl, milk, eggs, cheese and nuts.

The specific protein element utilized in the hair and nails is the amino acid methionine, which is changed into cystine. The cystine content of the hair and nails determines their quality. Scientific experiments show that the lower this content, the poorer their condition.

Don't Decrease Protein When Reducing

Neither methionine nor cystine means much to the average person. But all we need to know is that these important elements are contained in the complete protein foods and that our daily diet should supply a certain number of these. From every standpoint, protein plays a fundamental role. It is constantly needed for the building and repair of tissues, and whether you are on a restricted diet to reduce, are trying to gain, or to keep your weight at normal, at least one-tenth of your normal daily calorie allowance must be furnished by the complete proteins. Even on a reducing diet your protein intake should not be decreased. That shows you why you can't follow the haphazard plan of merely taking less of everything in order to lose weight.

Your daily protein requirement will be met if you have daily a liberal serving of lean meat, one or two eggs, one or two glasses of milk, skim milk or buttermilk—or a serving of cheese in place of one glass of milk. A small quantity but good quality protein is furnished by the other foods which complete the balanced menu. By adding to the protein foods fresh fruits and vegetables, whole grains and butter, you have a perfect diet.

Polish Does Not Affect Nails Adversely

When the diet is deficient in any respect, the less essential organs are the first to be affected. Broken nails and splitting hair may be a warning that you should check up on your diet.

You needn't worry about polish making the nails brittle. Apparently neither polish nor polish remover has any effect on the cystine of the nails. The things you have to watch—outside of your diet—are too hot water and alkali. When the hands are dipped too frequently into strong soap solutions the cystine is destroyed and the nails break easily. Also, washing the hair with strong soap causes it to split. The toenails are usually very brittle and thin because the warmth of the shoes affects their cystine content.

Beaver and Caracul—Two August Fur Offerings

Two of this year's really glamorous furs are being offered in local stores at substantial savings during the popular August sales. The furs pictured were displayed at two recent Shoreham Terrace fashion promenades. Spectators showed keen interest in these advanced fur silhouettes featuring dressmaker fullness in both front and back. Below is a handsome beaver in rich taupe tones done in a flaring skirt and nipped-in waist. Peggy Townsend wears this hardy fur with a tiny feathered sailor

Crochet Rugs From Stockings

SO HOMELIKE and colorful a crocheted rug will look in your room. And it costs next to nothing to make!

You crochet it from strips of old silk stockings, dyed in colors to harmonize with your decorative scheme.

The size is 27 inches in diameter and the colors are turquoise and gold. But jade green and beige, burgundy and black are attractive combinations, too.

To prepare stockings for crocheting, cut each into a long bias strip, starting at the top and going around spirally to the bottom. Thin stockings you cut about 3 inches wide; heavier ones you cut into narrower strips. Sew strips together and wind into balls and you're ready to begin crocheting.

The entire rug is in single crochet. Begin with three chain stitches, then join with a slip stitch to form a circle. Crochet 6 rows of turquoise, 1 gold, 2 turquoise, 5 gold, 8 turquoise and 4 gold. In adding a new color, sew it to the old.

So that your rug will lie flat be sure to add extra stitches on each row to enlarge circles.

Yes; rugs really make a house! Is anything more charming in living room or hall than a beautiful hooked rug in rich floral design? Is there a boy or man anywhere who wouldn't shout with joy over a hand-made Navajo rug for his own sanctum?

These handsome rugs are among the many given in our 40-page booklet, "New Ideas for Hand-Made Rugs." Has diagrams and directions for braided, hooked, woven and crocheted rugs. Includes Oriental pile, French knot, Colonial rag rug—many other pretty, inexpensive kinds.

Send 15 cents, in coins, for our booklet, "New Ideas for Hand-Made Rugs," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Hand Rejuvenation

LACKADAISICAL summer is a grand time to recondition the hands. A few minutes of exercise and massage (purloined from the siesta hour if necessary) will do wonders to ward off wrinkles.

Sometimes we let sun baths substitute for whatever we don't want to take time to do. But remember, while you're getting ultra-violet rays you're also drying out the skin on your hands. That's an invitation to wrinkles. After applying oil to the rest of the body leave some on the hands, while you loll in the sun. Almond or olive oil replenish natural oils that are depleted by heat.

Old gloves, freshly laundered, will keep hand cream where it does the most good. Wear the gloves when suntanning, telephoning or sleeping. Once a week is usually often enough to massage hand cream from the fingertips toward the wrists and in circular motion before donning gloves. Wash the hands with soap and water, afterwards scrubbing them with a brush.

While relaxing in sun or shade, give your hands this easy treatment to help make them more graceful: Rest elbows on sand or bed, then circle your hands from the wrist inwardly first, then with an outward motion. Alternate this by making a fist, then stretching your fingers far apart.

Susan Ertz Tells How Would-Be Writers Bombard an Author With Letters

SUSAN ERTZ, British novelist who has been visiting here, says she is bombarded with letters from would-be writers, asking for advice. Her theory about such correspondents is that if they really had talent they'd be busy creating, rather than penning letters to her. She feels that everyone could write one book—an autobiography. But few people have talent enough to go on from there. So she usually tries to discourage her questioners from taking up the writing trade.

Susan Ertz

"I would never advise even a talented person to give up a job so he could concentrate on his writing," she says. "That would be like throwing away a good solid plank from beneath your feet. And as a matter of fact, many people write better when they have another job; it keeps their mental machine in better running order."

One of her most amusing correspondents was "a gentleman locked up in Sing Sing who always signed his letters with a number." In each epistle he would express his admiration for Miss Ertz and for her books, then asked for an autographed copy of her newest work. "I later found that the gentleman actually was gathering a library," she explains. "About 20 of us shared his admiration; each of us in turn was his favorite author. . . . He must have quite a collection by now."

WATERGATE RIPPLES—One male music enthusiast at the Sunset Symphonies is highly allergic to women's hats. At the opening concert he said brusquely to a girl taking the seat in front of his, "Will you remove that hat, please?" She said she'd be glad to, when she'd had time to sit down. . . . A gruff customer who sounds like the same man was even more impatient at the "Faust" performance. A pair of Baltimore women, wearing leghorns, sat two rows ahead of him. "Would you mind taking off those hats," he shouted as the opera began, "or do you want me to knock them off?"

That brick building on the Thirty-second street side of Dumbarton Oaks will house art treasures of the Robert Woods Blisses. It has been under construction for nearly two years. The other day passersby noticed Mrs. Bliss herself doing her bit to hurry its completion. Playing foreman of the job, she was showing workmen how she wanted a plaster of Paris ornament to rest on one of the brick pillars beside the building. A large green cotton umbrella shielded her from the sun.

SECOND THE MOTION—"Don'ts" for beauty operators, as prescribed by the trade journal, Modern Beauty Shop:

"Don't gossip; discussing one patron with another is likely to result in the loss of both customers. Don't listen to gossip; conversation can easily be led into impersonal channels. Don't talk about yourself to your patrons; allow them to talk to you if they wish. Don't make conversation when a patron wants to relax. Don't criticize other operators or other shops. Don't make the prodigal patron feel uncomfortable upon her return to your fold. Don't use high pressure selling tactics; you may make a sale and lose a friend. Don't air your professional troubles before your patrons; keep the shop atmosphere pleasant at all times. Don't leave one customer in the middle of a service to attend to another. Don't be overly familiar with your patrons; keep your relations on a business basis. Don't practice the 'dearie' and 'honey' habit; customers have names; use them."

Salad Companions May Be Varied

A salad served without bread or rolls is like cake without icing. Hot rolls enhance any good salad. Try quick prune rolls with a fruit plate. Or, slice crisp French rolls an inch thick and spread with cheese. Toasted, these cheese slices are perfect with a tossed green salad.

Fruit salad and cheese cubes are a pleasant pair. Roll 1-inch bread cubes in a mixture of 2 tablespoons melted butter and 1 beaten egg, roll in grated cheese, then bake on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350 degree F.) until the cheese melts. Hot or cold, they are grand with summer fruits.

Cheese sticks, made of pie paste with cheese added, and cut into strips for baking, are crisp contrast to soft-textured salads.

Piano Again Finds Favor In U. S. Homes

Many New Designs Appear to Meet Revived Demand

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

FROM the times of the troubadours right down to the days when the parlor organ was the social center of the household, music seems to have been one of the most instinctive needs of man. For years, then, the piano became as important in the furnishing of the American living room as the sofa.

The piano, most of us recollect most fondly, is the old upright. Before it came hte square piano, a huge, handsome affair that presided in state through much of the nineteenth century.

The piano itself developed out of the clavichord, a keyboard instrument with horizontal strings struck by brass tangents operated by the keys. Prior to the clavichord there was the spinet. It was a form of the harpsichord which produced its tones by means of quills or leather points plucking the strings, and it operated by a keyboard. The melodeon, resembling somewhat the spinet in appearance, was actually a small organ with bellows worked by pedals.

Canned Music Wins Out

Strange it is to record that recent decade when music in interior decoration went "out." It was a unique circumstance in the history of civilized living. Once being the most important piece of furnitue in the average living room, the piano was rather suddenly banished altogether. Partly because the upright piano went out of style, and few homes had space for a grand, but mainly because we were swept off our feet by canned music and mechanical entertainment.

It was so new, so wonderful, and seemed so sufficient. 'Twas a barren decade before we came to and realized that home talent was not naive after all; that there was a very universal urge within man to make music, as well as listen to it.

Gradually here came a reaction. We began to buy pianos again. Not the uprights—we'd tired of them—nor the grands that seemed too big for our modern living quarters, but a new design scaled to our tastes and needs. We call it a vertical piano because that describes the action. Actually, it's a small model recalling some of the older forms of the piano in appearance, but embodying all the most modern developments in the musicianship of the instrument.

Musical Urge Returns

Some of these pianos have a full keyboard; others have a shorter keyboard. Then there is a graceful piano, built like a grand with horizontal action, charming to look at, called a spinet but resembling a small edition of the old square piano. Yet for the real musicians, the classic grand piano leads in demand.

Nowadays, while every American family clusters about the radio as they once gathered around the old base burner, we are stimulated once more to make our own music. This interest is reflected in the fact that the piano has again become important in the furnishing of our homes.

Table Tips

Well-Appointed Table Reflected In Service Detail

By Martha Ellyn

PERHAPS you have sat at a well-appointed table all of your life and never given special notice to the way the china, silver and glassware were placed. But if at some time you have to arrange your own table or instruct an inexperienced maid, then it will behoove you actually to know the correct arrangement.

The bread and butter plate is one service that is a great convenience. At formal meals no butter is served, therefore the bread-and-butter plate is used only for the informal meal. When this little plate is used, it should be placed at the tip of the fork, a little to the left of the service plate. The butter spreader should be placed across the right-hand side of the plate with the blade turned toward the center. Never allow the blade to rest in the plate.

Butter may be served in various forms. Butter balls may be made in quantity and kept in refrigerator containers, as no harm comes from piling them, but the fancy shapes should be made just before using, as it is necessary to handle them delicately. There are several implements for shaping molds. Usually, wooden paddles or molds are used. Butter curls are made with a butter scoop or crook, a steel utensil curved at one end with a serrated edge and having a wooden handle. When one is adept in handling the butter paddles, forms such as lilies, roses and rolls may be made. Such equipment may be bought in any household department of stores.

Movie Star's Salad Dressing

Summer is for salad dressings, the more the merrier. Here's a new one from the recipe book of Jonathan Hale. You've seen him play the inspector in RKO Radio's "Saint" pictures; he's also the most pjopular of Hollywood's cook-for-the-fun-of-it chefs.

This one is the real French dressing. (In France, says Mr. Hale, they never refer to French dressing; they call it "vinaigrette.") Make it this way: Dissolve a little salt and pepper in vinegar, add about five to six times as much oil as vinegar. Hale prefers a light Italian olive oil and a wine vinegar. If, however, your oil is heavy, use only four times as much oil as vinegar.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl Asks Tactful Means of Bringing Herself Once Again to Notice of Interesting Man Whose Earlier Invitations She Could Not Conveniently Accept

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Two summers ago I met a young man at a dance who was greatly attracted to me. I was very much interested in him, too, but because of other engagements, I was unable to accept his first two invitations—one of which was to spend the Fourth of July week-end with his parents and him in the mountains.

The following summer, during a slight lull in my affairs, I telephoned him and we chatted a while. A couple of days later, he called to ask for a date, but unfortunately I was unable to see him that evening, as I had made other plans. He never called again.

I don't know whether he got the idea that I was leading him on, to see how far he would go, and then turning him down, or whether he just wasn't sufficiently interested to make further efforts. But I would like to know him better, even as a friend, as I have never known a man whom I respected so much. He was the most decent, clean, religious, respectful and totally different man I have ever met. He has to be—to make me think of him as often as I do.

Is there any way I can renew our acquaintance without seeming ridiculous after all this time? Could I ask him to a cocktail party as one of a group, telling him (in a written invitation) to bring his best girl, or something of the sort? ZELDA.

Telephone Is Preferable Means of Approach

DEAR ZELDA: By all means ask the man to a cocktail party as one of a group, if you wish. But it would be more "fitten," all things considered, I think, to invite him by telephone rather than by note. An informally worded note has a more intimate aspect than a casual telephone call, and you just don't know him well enough to initiate a note-writing exchange.

Also, since you haven't seen him for a year, you don't know whether he is available or not. Thus, you might work yourself into a complete dither of bafflement, humiliation and suspense, if you were to receive no acknowledgment of a written invitation—when it might mean only that he was out of town or had misplaced the missive before he remembered to answer it.

So go after him by telephone. Find out where he is. If he is in town, get him on the line, and, with few preliminaries, ask him point-blank if he can and will come for cocktails on such and such a date. Say you are asking 10 (or a dozen, or 20) people, and that you do very much want him to come; that it would be awfully nice to see him again. Such remarks are but conventional courtesy, even if they happen to be the literal truth in your case—so by all means give voice to them. If he explains that he is obliged to decline your invitation, don't argue the point. Say how sorry you are, and "perhaps another time," and sign off sweetly.

But DON'T ask him to "bring his best girl." The implications of such a request are all wrong, however one takes them. In asking him, presumably you are conveying the thought that it is his engaging company you desire. That is the supposition that would make him happiest to accept—if he cares to come at all. Also it strikes a rather patronizing note—or perhaps a tone of "hail-fellow" familiarity. And it further suggests that you may be having difficulty padding out the guest list. It does not suggest that you are assembling a select company—but, rather, a rout. And, to a very subtle-minded chap, it might sound as if you were trying to discover just WHO his "best girl" is.

Then, too, even if he has a best girl and would be willing to fetch her, it isn't likely that she would care to come on the strength of a secondhand solicitation. Indeed, if they were two beautifully mannered persons, they probably would be somewhat startled by the off-hand inclusiveness of your attitude.

In conclusion, let me assure you that it isn't really necessary to give a large party just for the purpose of trying your luck with the man again. If you would like to see him, why not just ring him up and ask him to come for tea or cocktails a deux—and conversation, of course—one afternoon soon, say Tuesday at 5, or Saturday at 4. You might tell him that the fact that you two never were able to get together, last summer or the summer before, has always left him with a Man-of-Mystery flavor in your memory; and you are bound and determined to take another look at him and see if you can clear up the mystery.

Today's Health Talk

—By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Hay Fever Due for Return August 15; Now Is the Time for Treatment

Hay fever is the only malady, according to Dr. Lawrence Farmer, of New York (what's your allergy? Random House), that attains epidemic proportions without being either infectious or contagious. Wouldn't you be startled if someone said, "I have to give up my bridge games after August 15 because I am going to have my pneumonia then?" But they say it about hay fever.

Yes, the unhappy and dreaded date is approaching. And this is a warning that if you want to try to stave it off by preseasonal immunization, now is the proper time.

Henry Ward Beecher, who suffered greatly all his life from this annual pest, asked Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes for a satisfactory remedy. "Gravel is an effectual remedy," replied Dr. Holmes. "It should be about 8 feet deep."

We haye progressed since 1868 when this conversation is reported to have taken place. Hay fever is a specific immunity type reaction to the pollens of plants which fertilize by wind distribution—the ragweed family—beginning in August. This reaction occurs in the cells of the mucous membrane of the nose and eyes. There must be some reaction also in the blood. The best that medical science can do is to prevent this by shuting the reactors by the introduction of diluted solutions given in ever increasing strength.

Such immunity as is established in this way is temporary and lasts in most instances only through one season. So it has to be repeated every year. It is best to try to establish the immunity before the "season" opens. A gradually acquired immunity is more effective than attempting to build one up suddenly although coseasonal prevention is possible. So this warning about a month ahead of time should give the susceptible ones their opportunity.

The pollen extracts for preventive purposes are given hypodermically once or twice a week starting with small doses and getting stronger so that just before the date that the pollen takes to the air the strength of the injection is high enough to prepare the body for the onslaught.

Naturally it is desirable to get away from these eternal hypodermics. Pollen has been given by mouth. Reports differ as to its success. Rockwell reports that in ragweed cases (the August type of hay fever) the results were excellent in about 20 per cent of cases, and failed entirely in about 25 per cent of cases. In the rest the results were indifferent.

The Chicago Society of Allergy has come out with a statement that oral administration is very likely to lead to disappointment and economic loss. But then the hypodermic method may suffer from the same disadvantages.

For those who will not take hypodermic injections or find it inconvenient to report regularly for them, the oral method offers an experimental opportunity.

"My Cook Walked Out"

Here I am expecting a house full of company next week and the cook just up and left me. What can I do?

Answer:

By Gerald G. Gross

Nutrition may be the secret weapon of America's preparedness program. "Secret" in that such a small percentage of the population knows what a balanced diet is, and "weapon" because, according to medical authorities, no factor in national defense is more important than A-1 nutrition to the armed forces and civilians alike.

Developments in the last few days have demonstrated the mounting importance which is being attached to dietary deficiencies. Nutrition had a conspicuous place on the agenda of the conference held yesterday and Thursday at the call of Miss Harriet Elliott, member of the National Defense Advisory Commission. It will be the subject of a meeting of the National Research Council's committee on medicine which will be held here Monday.

Accordingly, The Post yesterday visited the nutrition laboratory of the National Institute of Health to be informed of progress and problems. It was there, in 1938, that the disease aribofiavinosis was discovered, a disease caused by a deficiency of Vitamin B2 (riboflavin) in the diet and characterized by mouth lesions and a serious eye condition known as keratitis.

Dr. W. H. Sebrell, head of the laboratory, explained that efforts are being pushed to discover new factors of the intriguing Vitamin B complex (five components have already been identified), to learn more of the known factors' effect on human beings and to explain the near-miraculous physiological effect which nicotinic acid has in preventing and curing pellagra.

"I can think of no more important factor in planning the defense of this country than good nutrition," said Dr. Sebrell, adding that the painstaking experimentation now under way, here and in other laboratories, is translatable into practical benefits to every man, woman and child.

In mechanized warfare particularly is the fatigue element important. And the soldier suffering from a diet deficiency is going to tire more quickly.

"But it is the civilian population who need the attention," Dr. Sebrell said. "Our Army and Navy are the best fed in the world."

The five known factors of the Vitamin B complex are thiamin, riboflavin, nicotiniet acid, pantothenic acid and pyridoxine. To date no human need for pantothenic acid has been found, although white rats must have it in their diet to stay well.

It would be convenient if the human body could store them up but it hasn't learned to do that, Dr. Sebrell explained. Vitamin A, on the other hand, stores very nicely.

Public and private research laboratories throughout the country, as well as the National Institute of Health, are striving to solve the many riddles of nutrition which still challenge them. Meanwhile, however, medical authorities believe that knowledge already gained should be applied in greater measure than ever before.

Orchids to You

Artist Sleeps With His Plants

TOMADELLI AND HIS ORCHIDS

Juan J. Tomadellio, of Washington, sleeps each night of the year in a room full of orchids.

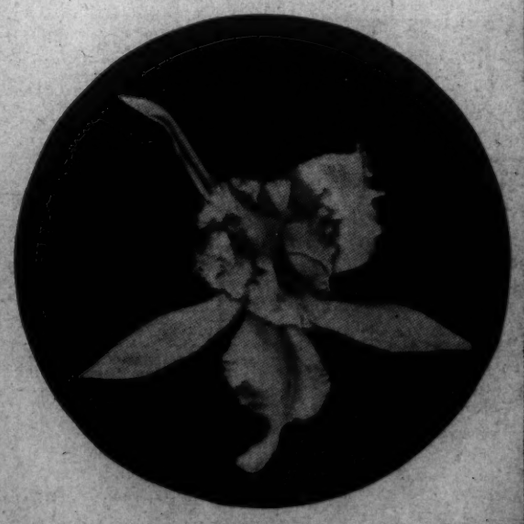

The florist industry isn't the winner. Tomadelli grows them, the rarest varieties, in his suite at the Shoreham Hotel and, frankly, he doesn't konw of anyone else who attempts so perishable a hobby—or, if attempting it, gets away with orchids.

He moved into the hotel when it was built and began setting in the plants, which were given him by friends in many parts of the world. Tomadelli began keeping his room temperature even and studying effects of temperature and sunlight.

He thinks the flowers grow peculiarly for him and more beautiful. Whether it is magic or simply that Tomadelli is just a natural-born horticulturist, he has something there by way of flowers that would make most any girl win the Easter parade.

In his suite are 18 varieties of orchids. Among them the Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mary, Ophelia and Cinrcia Hermora. And hard by them are some 47 varieties of cactus—a group believed by the owner to be more elaborate than that kept by the Agriculture Department horticultural branch.

Tomadelli is an artist. He has no worries except how his orchids grow. It plagues him when he leaves town, even briefly. But they never go bad on him.

Concert Postponed? Tune in and Find Out

Steps were taken yesterday to inform Watergate patrons about future concerts that may be postponed because of rain. The information will be broadcast over radio one-half hour in advance of the scheduled starting time, C. C. Cappel, manager of the National Symphony announced.

Arrangements for the broadcasts have been made with local N. B. C. stations. On Sunday nights prospective concertgoers may learn whether the program is to be played by tuning in Station WRC at 7:30 p. m. The same information may be obtained at the same time on Wednesday nights from Station WMAL.

Cappel said that when the heavy rain came an hour before the Flagstad concert Wednesday night the Watergate telephones were jammed with calls. So was The Post's switchboards.

Mrs. Jones Is Host To Women Lawyers

Members of the Women Barristers Association, all practicing attorneys in the District, were entertained last night at the Vienna (Va.) home of a colleague, Mrs. Nettie Young Jones.

Guests included: Nita Hinman, Virginia Diedel, Etta L. Taggart, Mrs. Norman H. Britton, Mrs. Gold Paregol, Edna Sheehy, Mrs. Marie Nold, Sylvia Kessler, Mrs. Jean Herwig, Ann Hedrick, Sophie Lasica, Norene Kloss, Nell Hinman and Mrs. Florence Ottman.

Woman, Hit by Skaters, Treated at Hospital

D. C. Businessman Sentenced for Contempt

Held in contempt of court by Justice Bolitha J. Laws, Edmund M. Cohn, president and general manager of the Kelly Furniture Co., Inc., 829 Seventh street northwest, was under sentence of 90 days in the District Jail yesterday.

Cohn may obtain relase by paying $700 counsel fees and about $500 back alimony to Mrs. Winifred B. Cohn, 2028 Thirty-seventh street northwest.

Mrs. Cohn, represented by Attorneys William E. Leahy and Lowell H. Ewing, sued for legal separation on October 19, 1938. She charged cruelty. Justice Oscar R. Luhring, of the District Court, granted her petition last May and fixed her alimony at $125 a month.

Pound to Get Fan For Hot Dogs

The heat has finally gone to the dogs.

Yesterday Poundmaster Frank B. Marks asked the District to give him an electric fan for the pups at the pound and indications are he'll get it.

"Fourteen puppies died from the heat," he lamented yesterday.

Meanwhile, 42 more dogs roaming the streets without a new tag were brought into the pound in Marks' only truck. It finally gave way in the middle from the weight of the animals. The pound will get a new bus with funds provided in the present appropriation.

Party to Tour Canal Parkway

An outing along the historic Chesapeake & Ohio Canal parkway near Seneca, Md., has been arranged for tomorrow by the National Park Service. Conducting the walk will be Naturalist Edward McHenry. The party will assemble at Seneca at 10:30 a. m., and the tour will include opportunities for boating and fishing. A special bus will leave from 1416 F street at 9:30 a. m.

Cabin to Be Presented To Boys' Club Tomorrow

A long cabin, built to accommodate ten boys and a councilor, will be presented to the Boys' Club of Washington tomorrow at Camp Reeder, summer resort of the Boys' Club, near Mount Victoria, Md.

A gift of the Lido Civic Club, of Washington, the cabin will be dedicated by Ugo Carusi, assistant secretary of the United States Attorney General. A dinner will be served at 1 p. m. and the ceremony will take place at 2:30 p. m.

Nearly 100 boys have been guests of the camp during each of the two-week camp periods held this season. The final camp session will be from August 12 to August 26.

Cries Turn to Smiles As Boys Go Home

James Richard Francis, 5, and William George Haines, 6, sat on the bank of the Tidal Basin yesterday and cried. They didn't know the way home.

A passerby took them to the boat house, and attendants there called Park Police. Sergt. John C. Statts, who answered the call and found that William knew his address —1316 Eleventh street northwest. James didn't, so the sergeant drove the boys around the Haines neighborhood until James recognized his own home, 1230 M street northwest.

Youth Wounded In Unique Mishap

Legion Urges Quick Passage of Draft Bill

Senate Opposition Bloc Importuned To Change Viewpoint

The District Department of the American Legion last night unanimously urged quick passage of the selective training and service bill to train a conscript Army for the defense of this country in a second World War.

More than 300 of the men who volunteered or answered a draft in 1917 also went on record "importuning the group in the Senate opposing this measure and placing obstacles in its way . . . to regard realistically the present situation of European nations who were unprepared . . . and reflect upon the fate of our own Nation."

Also approved was a resolution "indorsing the views of Sergt. Edley H. Grayson," Marine veteran of the World War, who threw an anticonscription meeting into an uproar Thursday night. Grayson rushed to the speaker's rostrum at the Raleigh Hotel and scuffled with Senator Rush D. Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, and Senator Gerald Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, who had expressed opposition to the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill.

The legion's selective training resolution also called upon Congress to "reflect upon the fate of sister republics in the Western Hemisphere," threatened by "ruthless and powerful totalitarian nations of Europe and Asia."

Further cementing their position for "trained and seasoned defensive forces" the legionnaires approved a motion favoring "immediate registration of the man power of our country available for national defense and that selective service conscription be used to draw therefrom a sufficient number of men for training . . . in the armed forces of the United States."

Expressly approved were provisions of the training bill compelling employers to return conscripted employes to their positions on their return from duty.

To "remove an injustice from the records of a great soldier—the late Gen. William Mitchell," who was court-martialed after criticizing Army methods, the department commended Representative John W. McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, who has introduced a bill exonerating the former Air Corps head.

After Department Commander William T. Slattery had called the meeting to order, and Departmental Chaplain Howard E. Snyder had pronounced the invocation, departmental trophies and parade awards were presented to Thomas Mason, jr., and Robert L. Duvall.

Edward L. Smyth, Former HOLC Aide, Dies at 44

Edward L. Smyth, 44, former chief special representative of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, died yesterday in Detroit. Ill for the last year, he left his residence here at the Dupont Circle Apartments for a visit only last week.

Mr. Smyth, son of Constantine J. Smyth, Chief Justice of the United State Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, had lived in Washington for the last 20 years. He was connected with the HOLC for five years, resigning because of his health about a year ago.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Constantine Smyth, of Omaha, Nebr.; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Burgess, Detroit, and Mrs. C. G. Fibbernsen, Omaha, and two brothers, Constantine, jr., of Philadelphia, and Bernard A., of Washington.

Mr. Smyth was a World War veteran, having served as a sergeant in the Tank Corps. The body will be brought to Washington for burial in Arlington Cemetery.

McKellar, Cooper Win in Tennessee Primary Election

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 2 (AP).—United States Senator Kenneth D. McKellar and Gov. Prentice Cooper were renominated in the Democratic primary yesterday by record-breaking majorities.

Unofficial returns from 2,012 of 2,279 precincts today gave the six-term Senator 91 per cent of the votes cast in the senatorial race while Cooper won 83 per cent of the gubernatorial ballots.

Both had the backing of the Shelby County political organization headed by National Committeeman Edward Hull Crump, of Memphis.

Their opponents in the general elections in November will be chosen tomorrow by the Republican State executive committee.

Address Remembered After Game of Numbers

A man who was injured in a fall from a bench in Union Station Wednesday morning and lost his memory was identified yesterday as Carey Cain, 46, of 750 Third street northwest.

Nurses at Casualty Hospital, where Cain was admitted, learned the whereabouts of his home after trying to have him recognize various street numbers. Yesterday they hit upon 750 Third street.

Month Without Typhoid Case Sets D. C. Record

The District hung up an all-time record last month when not a single case of typhoid fever was reported.

Dr. James G. Cummings, director of the bureau of communicable diseases, attributed the record to purification of the water supply, improved methods of handling food and better sanitary conditions generally.

Shortly after they arrived in the Capital yesterday morning for a visit with their aunt, two little girls from Rainelle, W. Va., went shopping. In a drugstore they purchased a comb.

Outside the drugstore they disagreed over the way home. Finally Margaret Spencer, 13, went one way; her sister, Marian, 12, the other. It took Marian an hour to reach her aunt's home at 629 G street northeast. Margaret didn't get home until night.

Margaret said she wandered from block to block all day long. She didn't know one street from another—"Rainelle only has one main street." And she was afraid to ask a policeman.

Finally, at Twelfth street and Montello avenue northeast, she talked it over with a cab driver. He took her to the Ninth Precinct Station. And there was her aunt, Mrs. Lynn Noland.

"Intelligent followers as well as intelligent leaders are urgently needed today, President H. C. Byrd told the 69 graduates at the University of Maryland's first summer school commencement yesterday.

"We should seek to develop a sufficiency of high intelligence in all people so they will accept intelligent leadership rather than follow false prophets," he declared.

After a program that featured patriotic music, Dr. Byrd awarded undergraduate degrees to eight students from Washington, eight from Baltimore, two from outside aryland and 51 from Maryland counties.

COLONEL'S CAR WRECKED—Col. Alonzo Gray's automobile, wrecked after ramming against the rear of a parked truck which burst into flames

Col. Alonzo Gray, 78, of 3901 Connecticut avenue northwest, who police said was driving the automobile, and Brig. Gen. George C. Shaw, 74, of 1801 K street northwest, were pulled from the blazing wreck by passersby. Col. Gray suffered injuries to the head and knees and Gen. Shaw was injured about the head, knees and right arm.

Hugh Neill, 14, of 3501 Texas avenue southeast, saw the crash from Thirty-fourth street and Pennsylvania avenue, pedaled his bicycle to Texas avenue and Thirty-fifth street and pulled a fire alarm box, bringing Engine Company No. 19. Both Gen. Shaw, who holds the Congressional Medal of Honor, and Col. Gray are veterans of the Spanish-American and World Wars.

Educators To Preach U. S. Ideals

Nation-Wide Drive To Stress Patriotism Will Be Mapped At Session Here

Sixty-one educational groups, cooperating with the Educational Policies Commission in their drive to revitalize the faith of youth in the ideals of American democracy, will meet here Monday to plan a Nationwide anti-fifth columnist program.

The meeting, held under the sponsorship of the commission, will begin at 9:30 a. m. in the Mayflower Hotel.

Belmont Farley, assistant secretary of the commission, yesterday said an appeal would be made to all Governors and State superintendents of schools to aid in this program.

Officials of the Board of Education, invited to participate in the project, are expected to attend Monday's meeting.

The commission, headed by Alexander J. Stoddard, was appointed jointly by the National Education Association and the American Association of School Administrators.

In their Nationwide program of patriotic education the commission will seek the cooperation of newspapers, radio, civic and patriotic organizations, along with public officials.

"Perhaps the supreme tragedy of the present epoch," said the commission, "is the fact that the friends of democracy in many lands, though holding in their hands the substance of man's most splendid and abiding hopes, have failed to present to their children a great and ennobling goal toward which to strive."

Declaring dictatorships have demonstrated that youth will respond to a challenge, the commission asserted the appeal of American democracy to youth is potentially far more powerful than that of any totalitarian leaders, and that the hope of a free Nation under the Stars and Stripes rests on the ability of the American people to realize these potentialities.

The program of education will be directed toward adults as well as children enrolled in school.

Air Board Decrees Pregnant Women May Not Be Pilots

After eight months' consideration of the problem, the Civil Aeronautics Board ruled officially yesterday that expectant motherhood is an abnormal condition and that American airwomen must choose between it and the full exercise of their prerogatives as pilots.

In announcing amendments to the civil air regulations which will become effective September 1, the five-man board announced that pregnant women are considered as "suffering a temporary physical disability which might make it dangerous for them to fly alone."

However, it cushioned the blow to the Ninety-Nines and other feminine flying groups, which have contended that expectant mothers are just as qualified to pilot planes as they are to drive automobiles or supervise the operations of complicated machinery in industry, by ruling that, when accompanied by a qualified pilot, they may operate airplanes and log sufficient "solo" flying time for the renewal of their pilot certificates.

Hay Fever Sufferers Unite Against Ragweed

New York, Aug 2 (AP).—Some 100 sniffers today formed the Hay Fever Sufferers Society of America and began mapping a campaign against Ambrosiaceae (the ragweed family) and some of its off-shoots.

Urging all midsummer kerchooers to attend the society's first annual convention August 7 at the Hotel St. George in Brooklyn, President Michael Dorfman sneezed and said: "We're getting sick of people saying 'gezundheit' every time we sneeze. It isn't American. If they want to say anything let 'em say: 'God bless you and America.'"

Roosevelt Off Today For Hyde Park Sojourn

President Roosevelt has made tentative plans to leave today for an indefinite stay at his home at Hyde Park, N. Y. He may be gone a week or ten days.

It was considered likely that he might inspect some defense areas in the State, but he told his press conference yesterday that he had no definite plans to do so.

PREPARING FOR MARIONETTE SHOW—Mrs. Thurman Arnold, at whose home a marionette show will be presented for the benefit of St. John's Episcopal Church, McLean, Va., August 15, looking at the marionettes with Herbert Stratton Price, supervisor of the recreation program for the District WPA, at the Lincoln Temple Training Center

"When a neighbor plants his morning glories on your side of the fence it tells something about the spirit abroad in the neighborhood."

Herbert Stratton Price, supervisor of the recreation program of the District Works Projects Administration, made this observation as he pointed to the vines within view of the playroom window of the training center at Lincoln Memorial Temple, Eleventh and R streets. They were planted by the man next door.

Behind the church building is an alley, from which all trash is cleared by the neighborhood children early each morning. It is marked off for paddle tennis. There is a ping pong table also and a quoits yard. An improvised shower is operated an hour each afternoon.

Two back yards along the alley have been converted into playgrounds. Tall sunflowers border the fence. A table for basketry work and other crafts is set up.

"There is no trouble keeping the children off the streets in this section," said Price.

A year ago in July the training center was opened. Price, finding that ample emphasis was being given to the physical side of recreation, planned to balance it with arts and crafts, and at the same time make a contribution to the neighborhood in which the project was located.

He secured the use of Lincoln Temple Parish House, which had then been used but one night a week for Boy Scout meetings. Now it is open day and night and is in constant use.

The WPA workers assigned to the recreation program received practical training as they began the preparation of the upper room of the parish house for the project. Floors, walls and ceilings were painted. Large hangings with designs showing sports activities were made from unbleached muslin dyed with chemicals and producing the effect of batik work. A little stage was built with equipment for both puppet and marionette shows; old brown settles were painted white; shelves and cases were built around the wall, adjoining rooms were equipped for instruction in block printing, basketry and the making of marionettes. Wicker shades for the lamps and boxes for flowers were made.

The marionettes have been used to present shows for various public institutions. Thursday night, August 15, Corrie Sisney, one of the colored women working on the project, will take them to the home of Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Falls Church, Va., to give a performance for the benefit of St. John's Episcopal Church, McLean, Va.

There are five in the "crew" at the center, all of whom have pooled their knowledge of various crafts.

Another alley program has recently been set up Snows court under Mrs. Sisney at the request of the neighborhood council there. A lot, used as a dump, from which ten truckloads of glass and other trash was hauled in three weeks, is the site. A swing, Jungle Jim and turning pole have been installed and the girls are being taught crafts. Street dances have also been held with music provided by the WPA. The result is improvement in the neighborhood and the keeping of children off the streets.

U. S. Building Workers Call New Strike

Rebellion in Ranks Produces Walkout On Social Security, Rail Board Structure

Rebellion in the ranks of an A. F. of L. union yesterday produced a new strike on the Social Security-Railroad Retirement Building project yesterday.

One hundred and eighty plasterers and cement finishers refused to show up for work on the construction job, which is classed as a national defense project, in spite of an order by their international union president that they refrain from striking.

A. F. L. Order Defied

"We are doing all we can to put an end to this illegal strike," said Herbert Rivers, secretary of the A. F. of L. building and construction trades department.

He confirmed a report that the union plasterers and cement finishers, engaged in a jurisdictional dispute with carpenters, walked out in defiance of an order by M. J. Colleran, international president, that they remain at their jobs pending adjustment of the quarrel.

The strike came in the wake of a decision by John P. Coyne, president of the building trades department, giving the disputed work to the carpenters. The job in controversy involves the installation of acoustical tile ceilings in the twin buildings.

120 Made Idle

"I am advised that officials in the American Federation of Labor are doing everything in their power to settle this situation so that work may be resumed at the earliest possible moment on these buildings," commented W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of the Public Buildings Administration, which has charge of construction of the Social Security and Railroad Retirement buildings.

Their early completion is urgently needed by the War Department and National Defense Advisory Commission, which are to occupy the buildings for the duration of the preparedness program at least.

The strike of the 180 plasterers and cement finishers resulted directly in idleness of 60 lathers and the same number of plasterers' helpers, who have no work to do as long as the other trades are out. Prolongation of the strike will lead to more layoffs in other trades, officials said.

Holbrook Farms' Bond Lowered By Justice Laws

Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the District Court yesterday reduced the bond required of Holbrook Farms Dairy, Brentwood, Md., from $20,000 to $12,000. The dairy was ordered to post the bond as surety that it would comply with terms of the Washington Milk Marketing Agreement if ordered to do so by the District Court.

The dairy is operating exempt from the agreement under protection of an injunction, pending trial of its contentions that it is not in interstate commerce and not subject to regulation by Federal agencies.

Dr. John R. Mohler Is Chosen Kober Lecturer for 1941

Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, has been chosen the Kober Lecturer for 1941, the executive board of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia announced yesterday.

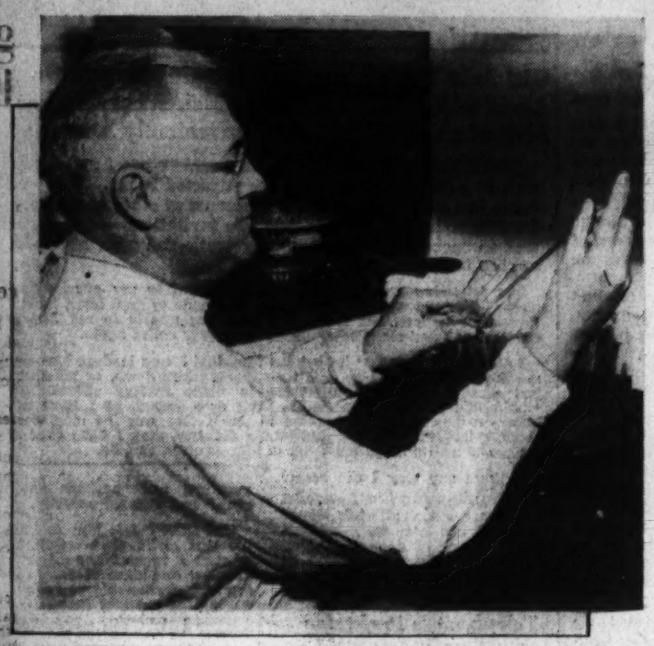

The lecture and award will be given at Georgetown University, which is trustee for an endowment fund established by the late Dr. George M. Kober. The fund, among other things, provides for the recognition of outstanding scientists.

Dr. Mohler, who initiated successful campaigns for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis, was requested to present a paper on "Undulant Fever."

Dr. W. H. Sebrell, head of the laboratory, explained that efforts are being pushed to discover new factors of the intriguing Vitamin B complex (five components have already been identified), to learn more of the known factors' effect on human beings and to explain the near-miraculous physiological effect which nicotinic acid has in preventing and curing pellagra.

"I can think of no more important factor in planning the defense of this country than good nutrition," said Dr. Sebrell, adding that the painstaking experimentation now under way, here and in other laboratories, is translatable into practical benefits to every man, woman and child.

In mechanized warfare particularly is the fatigue element important. And the soldier suffering from a diet deficiency is going to tire more quickly.

"But it is the civilian population who need the attention," Dr. Sebrell said. "Our Army and Navy are the best fed in the world."

The five known factors of the Vitamin B complex are thiamin, riboflavin, nicotinict acid, pantothenic acid and pyridoxine. To date no human need for pantothenic acid has been found, although white rats must have it in their diet to stay well.

It would be convenient if the human body could store them up but it hasn't learned to do that, Dr. Sebrell explained. Vitamin A, on the other hand, stores very nicely.

Public and private research laboratories throughout the country, as well as the National Institute of Health, are striving to solve the many riddles of nutrition which still challenge them. Meanwhile, however, medical authorities believe that knowledge already gained should be applied in greater measure than ever before.

'Blue Coats' Clown at Bald Eagle Hill

Orchids to You

Artist Sleeps With His Plants

TOMADELLI AND HIS ORCHIDS

Juan J. Tomadellio, of Washington, sleeps each night of the year in a room full of orchids.

The florist industry isn't the winner. Tomadelli grows them, the rarest varieties, in his suite at the Shoreham Hotel and, frankly, he doesn't konw of anyone else who attempts so perishable a hobby—or, if attempting it, gets away with orchids.

He moved into the hotel when it was built and began setting in the plants, which were given him by friends in many parts of the world. Tomadelli began keeping his room temperature even and studying effects of temperature and sunlight.

He thinks the flowers grow peculiarly for him and more beautiful. Whether it is magic or simply that Tomadelli is just a natural-born horticulturist, he has something there by way of flowers that would make most any girl win the Easter parade.

In his suite are 18 varieties of orchids. Among them the Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mary, Ophelia and Cinrcia Hermora. And hard by them are some 47 varieties of cactus—a group believed by the owner to be more elaborate than that kept by the Agriculture Department horticultural branch.

Tomadelli is an artist. He has no worries except how his orchids grow. It plagues him when he leaves town, even briefly. But they never go bad on him.

Concert Postponed? Tune in and Find Out

Steps were taken yesterday to inform Watergate patrons about future concerts that may be postponed because of rain. The information will be broadcast over radio one-half hour in advance of the scheduled starting time, C. C. Cappel, manager of the National Symphony announced.

Arrangements for the broadcasts have been made with local N. B. C. stations. On Sunday nights prospective concertgoers may learn whether the program is to be played by tuning in Station WRC at 7:30 p. m. The same information may be obtained at the same time on Wednesday nights from Station WMAL.

Cappel said that when the heavy rain came an hour before the Flagstad concert Wednesday night the Watergate telephones were jammed with calls. So was The Post's switchboards.

Mrs. Jones Is Host To Women Lawyers

Guests included: Nita Hinman, Virginia Diedel, Etta L. Taggart, Mrs. Norman H. Britton, Mrs. Gold Paregol, Edna Sheehy, Mrs. Marie Nold, Sylvia Kessler, Mrs. Jean Horwitz, Ann Hedrick, Sophie Lasica, Norene Kloss, Nell Hinman and Mrs. Florence Otiman.

Woman, Hit by Skaters, Treated at Hospital

D. C. Businessman Sentenced for Contempt

Held in contempt of court by Justice Bolitha J. Laws, Edmund M. Cohn, president and general manager of the Kelly Furniture Co., Inc., 829 Seventh street northwest, was under sentence of 90 days in the District Jail yesterday.

Cohn may obtain relase by paying $700 counsel fees and about $500 back alimony to Mrs. Winifred B. Cohn, 2028 Thirty-seventh street northwest.

Mrs. Cohn, represented by Attorneys William E. Leahy and Lowell H. Ewing, sued for legal separation on October 19, 1938. She charged cruelty. Justice Oliver R. Luhring, of the District Court, granted her petition last May and fixed her alimony at $175 a month.

Justice Laws held Cohn in contempt of court when the awards were shown not to have been paid.

Pound to Get Fan For Hot Dogs

The heat has finally gone to the dogs.

Yesterday Poundmaster Frank B. Marks asked the District to give him an electric fan for the pups at the pound and indications are he'll get it.

"Fourteen puppies died from the heat," he lamented yesterday.

Meanwhile, 42 more dogs roaming the streets without a new tag were brought into the pound in Marks' only truck. It finally gave way in the middle from the weight of the animals. The pound will get a new bus with funds provided in the present appropriation.

Party to Tour Canal Parkway

An outing along the historic Chesapeake & Ohio Canal parkway near Seneca, Md., has been arranged for tomorrow by the National Park Service. Conducting the walk will be Naturalist Edward McHenry. The party will assemble at Seneca at 10:30 a. m., and the tour will include opportunities for boating and fishing. A special bus will leave from 1416 F street at 9:30 a. m.

Cabin to Be Presented To Boys' Club Tomorrow

A long cabin, built to accommodate ten boys and a councilor, will be presented to the Boys' Club of Washington tomorrow at Camp Reeder, summer resort of the Boys' Club, near Mount Victoria, Md.

A gift of the Lido Civic Club, of Washington, the cabin will be dedicated by Ugo Carusi, assistant secretary of the United States Attorney General. A dinner will be served at 1 p. m. and the ceremony will take place at 2:30 p. m.

Nearly 100 boys have been guests of the camp during each of the two-week camp periods held this season. The final camp session will be from August 12 to August 26.

Cries Turn to Smiles As Boys Go Home

James Richard Francis, 5, and William George Haines, 6, sat on the bank of the Tidal Basin yesterday and cried. They didn't know the way home.

A passerby took them to the boat house, and attendants there called Park Police. Sergt. John C. Statts, who answered the call and found that William knew his address —1310 Eleventh street northwest. James didn't, so the sergeant drove the boys around the Haines neighborhood until James recognized his own home, 1230 M street northwest.

Youth Wounded In Unique Mishap

Legion Urges Quick Passage of Draft Bill

Senate Opposition Bloc Importuned To Change Viewpoint

The District Department of the American Legion last night unanimously urged quick passage of the selective training and service bill to train a conscript Army for the defense of this country in a second World War.

More than 300 of the men who volunteered or answered a draft in 1917 also went on record "importuning the group in the Senate opposing this measure and placing obstacles in its way . . . to regard realistically the present situation of European nations who were unprepared . . . and reflect upon the fate of our own Nation."

Also approved was a resolution "indorsing the views of Sergt. Edley H. Grayson," Marine veteran of the World War, who threw an anticonscription meeting into an uproar Thursday night. Grayson rushed to the speaker's rostrum at the Raleigh Hotel and scuffled with Senator Rush D. Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, and Senator Gerald Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, who had expressed opposition to the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill.

The legion's selective training resolution also called upon Congress to "reflect upon the fate of sister republics in the Western Hemisphere," threatened by "ruthless and powerful totalitarian nations of Europe and Asia."

Further cementing their position for "trained and seasoned defensive forces" the legionnaires approved a motion favoring "immediate registration of the man power of our country available for national defense and that selective service conscription be used to draw therefrom a sufficient number of men for training . . . in the armed forces of the United States."

Expressly approved were provisions of the training bill compelling employers to return conscripted employes to their positions on their return from duty.

To "remove an injustice from the records of a great soldier—the late Gen. William Mitchell," who was court-martialed after criticizing Army methods, the department commended Representative John W. McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, who has introduced a bill exonerating the former Air Corps head.

After Department Commander William T. Slattery had called the meeting to order, and Departmental Chaplain Howard E. Snyder had pronounced the invocation, departmental trophies and parade awards were presented to Thomas Mason, jr., and Robert L. Duvall.

Edward L. Smyth, Former HOLC Aide, Dies at 44

Edward L. Smyth, 44, former chief special representative of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, died yesterday in Detroit. Ill for the last year, he left his residence here at the Dupont Circle Apartments for a visit only last week.

Mr. Smyth, son of Constantine J. Smyth, Chief Justice of the United State Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, had lived in Washington for the last 20 years. He was connected with the HOLC for five years, resigning because of his health about a year ago.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Constantine Smyth, of Omaha, Nebr.; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Burgess, Detroit, and Mrs. C. G. Fibbernsen, Omaha, and two brothers, Constantine, jr., of Philadelphia, and Bernard A., of Washington.

Mr. Smyth was a World War veteran, having served as a sergeant in the Tank Corps. The body will be brought to Washington for burial in Arlington Cemetery.

McKellar, Cooper Win in Tennessee Primary Election

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 2 (AP).—United States Senator Kenneth D. McKellar and Gov. Prentice Cooper were renominated in the Democratic primary yesterday by record-breaking majorities.

Unofficial returns from 2,012 of 2,279 precincts today gave the six-term Senator 91 per cent of the votes cast in the senatorial race while Cooper won 83 per cent of the gubernatorial ballots.

Both had the backing of the Shelby County political organization headed by National Committeeman Edward Hull Crump, of Memphis.

Their opponents in the general elections in November will be chosen tomorrow by the Republican State executive committee.

Address Remembered After Game of Numbers

A man who was injured in a fall from a bench in Union Station Wednesday morning and lost his memory was identified yesterday as Carey Cain, 40, of 750 Third street northwest.

Nurses at Casualty Hospital, where Cain was admitted, learned the whereabouts of his home after trying to have him recognize various street numbers. Yesterday they hit upon 750 Third street.

Month Without Typhoid Case Sets D. C. Record

The District hung up an all-time record last month when not a single case of typhoid fever was reported.

Dr. James G. Cummings, director of the bureau of communicable diseases, attributed the record to purification of the water supply, improved methods of handling food and better sanitary conditions generally.

Shortly after they arrived in the Capital yesterday morning for a visit with their aunt, two little girls from Rainelle, W. Va., went shopping. In a drugstore they purchased a comb.

Outside the drugstore they disagreed over the way home. Finally Margaret Spencer, 13, went one way; her sister, Marian, 12, the other. It took Marian an hour to reach her aunt's home at 629 G street northeast. Margaret didn't get home until night.

Margaret said she wandered from block to block all day long. She didn't know one street from another—"Rainelle only has one main street." And she was afraid to ask a policeman.

Finally, at Twelfth street and Montello avenue northeast, she talked it over with a cab driver. He took her to the Ninth Precinct Station. And there was her aunt, Mrs. Lynn Noland.

"Intelligent followers as well as intelligent leaders are urgently needed today, President H. C. Byrd told the 69 graduates at the University of Maryland's first summer school commencement yesterday.

"We should seek to develop a sufficiency of high intelligence in all people so they will accept intelligent leadership rather than follow false prophets," he declared.

After a program that featured patriotic music, Dr. Byrd awarded undergraduate degrees to eight students from Washington, eight from Baltimore, two from outside aryland and 51 from Maryland counties.

COLONEL'S CAR WRECKED—Col. Alonzo Gray's automobile, wrecked after ramming against the rear of a parked truck which burst into flames

Col. Alonzo Gray, 78, of 3901 Connecticut avenue northwest, who police said was driving the automobile, and Brig. Gen. George C. Shaw, 74, of 1801 K street northwest, were pulled from the blazing wreck by passersby. Col. Gray suffered injuries to the head and knees and Gen. Shaw was injured about the head, knees and right arm.

Hugh Neill, 14, of 3501 Texas avenue southeast, saw the crash from Thirty-fourth street and Pennsylvania avenue, pedaled his bicycle to Texas avenue and Thirty-fifth street and pulled a fire alarm box, bringing Engine Company No. 19. Both Gen. Shaw, who holds the Congressional Medal of Honor, and Col. Gray are veterans of the Spanish-American and World Wars.

Educators To Preach U. S. Ideals

Nation-Wide Drive To Stress Patriotism Will Be Mapped At Session Here

Sixty-one educational groups, cooperating with the Educational Policies Commission in their drive to revitalize the faith of youth in the ideals of American democracy, will meet here Monday to plan a Nationwide anti-fifth columnist program.

The meeting, held under the sponsorship of the commission, will begin at 9:30 a. m. in the Mayflower Hotel.

Belmont Farley, assistant secretary of the commission, yesterday said an appeal would be made to all Governors and State superintendents of schools to aid in this program.

Officials of the Board of Education, invited to participate in the project, are expected to attend Monday's meeting.

The commission, headed by Alexander J. Stoddard, was appointed jointly by the National Education Association and the American Association of School Administrators.

In their Nationwide program of patriotic education the commission will seek the cooperation of newspapers, radio, civic and patriotic organizations, along with public officials.

"Perhaps the supreme tragedy of the present epoch," said the commission, "is the fact that the friends of democracy in many lands, though holding in their hands the substance of man's most splendid and abiding hopes, have failed to present to their children a great and ennobling goal toward which to strive."

Declaring dictatorships have demonstrated that youth will respond to a challenge, the commission asserted the appeal of American democracy to youth is potentially far more powerful than that of any totalitarian leaders, and that the hope of a free Nation under the Stars and Stripes rests on the ability of the American people to realize these potentialities.

The program of education will be directed toward adults as well as children enrolled in school.

Air Board Decrees Pregnant Women May Not Be Pilots

After eight months' consideration of the problem, the Civil Aeronautics Board ruled officially yesterday that expectant motherhood is an abnormal condition and that American airwomen must choose between it and the full exercise of their prerogatives as pilots.

In announcing amendments to the civil air regulations which will become effective September 1, the five-man board announced that pregnant women are considered as "suffering a temporary physical disability which might make it dangerous for them to fly alone."

However, it cushioned the blow to the Ninety-Nines and other feminine flying groups, which have contended that expectant mothers are just as qualified to pilot planes as they are to drive automobiles or supervise the operations of complicated machinery in industry, by ruling that, when accompanied by a qualified pilot, they may operate airplanes and log sufficient "solo" flying time for the renewal of their pilot certificates.

Hay Fever Sufferers Unite Against Ragweed

New York, Aug 2 (AP).—Some 100 sniffers today formed the Hay Fever Sufferers Society of America and began mapping a campaign against Ambrosiaceae (the ragweed family) and some of its off-shoots.

Urging all midsummer kerchooers to attend the society's first annual convention August 7 at the Hotel St. George in Brooklyn, President Michael Dorfman sneezed and said: "We're getting sick of people saying 'gezundheit' every time we sneeze. It isn't American. If they want to say anything let 'em say: 'God bless you and America.'"

Roosevelt Off Today For Hyde Park Sojourn

President Roosevelt has made tentative plans to leave today for an indefinite stay at his home at Hyde Park, N. Y. He may be gone a week or ten days.

It was considered likely that he might inspect some defense areas in the State, but he told his press conference yesterday that he had no definite plans to do so.

PREPARING FOR MARIONETTE SHOW—Mrs. Thurman Arnold, at whose home a marionette show will be presented for the benefit of St. John's Episcopal Church, McLean, Va., August 15, looking at the marionettes with Herbert Stratton Price, supervisor of the recreation program for the District WPA, at the Lincoln Temple Training Center

"When a neighbor plants his morning glories on your side of the fence it tells something about the spirit abroad in the neighborhood."

Herbert Stratton Price, supervisor of the recreation program of the District Works Projects Administration, made this observation as he pointed to the vines within view of the playroom window of the training center at Lincoln Memorial Temple, Eleventh and R streets. They were planted by the man next door.

Behind the church building is an alley, from which all trash is cleared by the neighborhood children early each morning. It is marked off for paddle tennis. There is a ping pong table also and a quoits yard. An improvised shower is operated an hour each afternoon.

Two back yards along the alley have been converted into playgrounds. Tall sunflowers border the fence. A table for basketry work and other crafts is set up.

"There is no trouble keeping the children off the streets in this section," said Price.

A year ago in July the training center was opened. Price, finding that ample emphasis was being given to the physical side of recreation, planned to balance it with arts and crafts, and at the same time make a contribution to the neighborhood in which the project was located.

He secured the use of Lincoln Temple Parish House, which had then been used but one night a week for Boy Scout meetings. Now it is open day and night and is in constant use.

The WPA workers assigned to the recreation program received practical training as they began the preparation of the upper room of the parish house for the project. Floors, walls and ceilings were painted. Large hangings with designs showing sports activities were made from unbleached muslin dyed with chemicals and producing the effect of batik work. A little stage was built with equipment for both puppet and marionette shows; old brown settles were painted white; shelves and cases were built around the wall, adjoining rooms were equipped for instruction in block printing, basketry and the making of marionettes. Wicker shades for the lamps and boxes for flowers were made.

The marionettes have been used to present shows for various public institutions. Thursday night, August 15, Corrie Sisney, one of the colored women working on the project, will take them to the home of Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Falls Church, Va., to give a performance for the benefit of St. John's Episcopal Church, McLean, Va.

There are five in the "crew" at the center, all of whom have pooled their knowledge of various crafts.

Another alley program has recently been set up Snows court under Mrs. Sisney at the request of the neighborhood council there. A lot, used as a dump, from which ten truckloads of glass and other trash was hauled in three weeks, is the site. A swing, Jungle Jim and turning pole have been installed and the girls are being taught crafts. Street dances have also been held with music provided by the WPA. The result is improvement in the neighborhood and the keeping of children off the streets.

U. S. Building Workers Call New Strike

Rebellion in Ranks Produces Walkout On Social Security, Rail Board Structure

Rebellion in the ranks of an A. F. of L. union yesterday produced a new strike on the Social Security-Railroad Retirement Building project yesterday.

One hundred and eighty plasterers and cement finishers refused to show up for work on the construction job, which is classed as a national defense project, in spite of an order by their international union president that they refrain from striking.

A. F. L. Order Defied

"We are doing all we can to put an end to this illegal strike," said Herbert Rivers, secretary of the A. F. of L. building and construction trades department.

He confirmed a report that the union plasterers and cement finishers, engaged in a jurisdictional dispute with carpenters, walked out in defiance of an order by M. J. Colleran, international president, that they remain at their jobs pending adjustment of the quarrel.

The strike came in the wake of a decision by John P. Coyne, president of the building trades department, giving the disputed work to the carpenters. The job in controversy involves the installation of acoustical tile ceilings in the twin buildings.

120 Made Idle

"I am advised that officials in the American Federation of Labor are doing everything in their power to settle this situation so that work may be resumed at the earliest possible moment on these buildings," commented W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of the Public Buildings Administration, which has charge of construction of the Social Security and Railroad Retirement buildings.

Their early completion is urgently needed by the War Department and National Defense Advisory Commission, which are to occupy the buildings for the duration of the preparedness program at least.

The strike of the 180 plasterers and cement finishers resulted directly in idleness of 60 lathers and the same number of plasterers' helpers, who have no work to do as long as the other trades are out. Prolongation of the strike will lead to more layoffs in other trades, officials said.

Holbrook Farms' Bond Lowered By Justice Laws

Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the District Court yesterday reduced the bond required of Holbrook Farms Dairy, Brentwood, Md., from $20,000 to $12,000. The dairy was ordered to post the bond as surety that it would comply with terms of the Washington Milk Marketing Agreement if ordered to do so by the District Court.

The dairy is operating exempt from the agreement under protection of an injunction, pending trial of its contentions that it is not in interstate commerce and not subject to regulation by Federal agencies.

Dr. John R. Mohler Is Chosen Kober Lecturer for 1941

Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, has been chosen the Kober Lecturer for 1941, the executive board of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia announced yesterday.

The lecture and award will be given at Georgetown University, which is trustee for an endowment fund established by the late Dr. George M. Kober. The fund, among other things, provides for the recognition of outstanding scientists.

Dr. Mohler, who initiated successful campaigns for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis, was requested to present a paper on "Undulant Fever."

Red Sox Outslug Pace-Setting Tigers, 12 to 9

Foxx, Cronin And DiMag. Clout Homers

Buck Newsom Routed In Fifth Inning; Bengals, However, Hold League Lead

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 2.—Boston's battering Red Sox stormed five Tiger pitchers, among them that daring man, Buck Newsom, for a 12-to-9 victory in a free-for-all slugging match today, but Detroit came out of the melee still the undisputed leader in the American League.

Thanks to the Yankees' triumph over the Cleveland Indians, the Tigers retained their one-game lead and got some consolation for a hard three-hour job in trying to stem the havoc from Boston bats.

Old Bobb, beaten by the Athletics last Sunday when trying for his fourteenth straight win, departed in the fifth today, the last shot against him being a homer by Jimmy Foxx, his twenty-third of the year. Four successors to Newsom were little better.

The Sox began their ill treatment of Newsom in the fourth when Charley Gehringer's error and a pair of singles scored two runs and Dom DiMaggio's four-master into the left field pavilion three more.

Young Earl Johnson, southpaw rookie from the Piedmont League, was shelled by Detroit for four runs in the first three frames and gave up for a pinch hitter in the fourth. Eventually Jack Wilson was returned the winning pitcher although lasting less than four innings.

Manager Joe Cronin put the game safely away for Boston in the eighth by homering off Archie McKain after Rog Cramer had tripled. Cronin collected a single, double, triple and four-bagger in five times at bat.

Cronin, who represents Newsom's latest peeve for the latter's failure to start in the all star game, had a personal duel with Buck. Joe tripled in the first and doubled in the fifth. Teammates failed to get him around in the first and Newsom caught him off second with a snap throw in the fifth.

Kuhel Stretches Out, but He's a Dead Bird Anyway

Wobbly Nats Topple Before Chisox, 10-2

Nationals Make Feeble Effort and Fall Back as 12,000 Ladies' Day Fans Jeer; Lee Hurls Two-Hit Game

By Shirley Povich.
Post Staff Writer

Comiskey Park, Chicago, Aug. 2.—With a crowd of 12,000 ladies' day guests jeering them on, the Nats pounded out two (2) hits today and were nosed out by the White Sox, 10 to 2.

Washington's slugging attack began with Buddy Lewis' single in the first inning and ended with Jimmy Bloodworth's home run in the fourth. There were not any other Washington hits. Thornton Lee saw to that.

The Nats were the perfect stooges today for Lee and the White Sox. They put only one man on base after the fourth inning. The White Sox, meanwhile, slugged out 16 hits against Sid Hudson, Alex Carrasquel and Joe Krakauskas. Joe Kuhel collected four.

Nats Go Hay-Wire

It was on the defense that the Nats made their presence felt. Gerald Walker dropped one fly ball and kicked another away to help the White Sox along, and Bloodworth tossed a third Washington error into the proceedings. But the Nats' errors were superfluous. In fact, so were the White Sox's last seven runs.

Hudson was no mystery to the White Sox. They started cuffing him around on the first pitch when Webb tripled into the rightfield corner. They assaulted him for 11 hits before he left the game under duress in the midst of a five-run uprising in the sixth inning.

All of a sudden in the fourth inning, Jimmy Bloodworth put the Nats in the ball game. With Lewis on base by a walk, and two out, Bloodworth banged his seventh home run of the season into the leftfield bleachers to tie the score at 2-2. But that was the Nats' last hit of the afternoon.

Left-handed Lee, long-time nemesis of the Nats, had brilliant support by his mates in the outfield in holding Washington to two hits, however.

Chisox Start Early

The White Sox had a run in the first inning before Hudson could get anybody out. Webb tripled to right and romped home on the next pitch—a wild one. In the third inning, Pitcher Lee saluted Hudson with a double and the Sox picked up another run. Thus it was 2-0 when Bloodworth tied the score with his home-run blast in the fourth.

Chicago untied it in the fifth, when Lee again was in the Nats' hair. Again he doubled to the left field wall. A bit later Mike Kreevich lifted his sevenhth homer of the year into the left field bleachers and the White Sox had a 4-2 lead.

Ten Sox went to town in their big sixth inning. Appling led off with a double to left and Rosenthal drew a walk from Hudson. Tresh beat out a hit to Bloodworth and a run scored. The first man out in the inning was Hudson, who was taken out in favor of Carrasquel. Kennedy greeted the Venezuelan with a single that scored the second run of the inning and Lee drew a walk. Webb's infield out produced the third run. Kreevich's long fly the fourth and Kuhel's third single the fifth.

Passeau Saves 4-3 Victory For Chicubs

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 2.—Claude Passeau, who is laboring both as a starter and as a relief pitcher these days, stepped to the mound in the ninth inning today and saved the Chicago Cubs a 4-to-3 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Larry French got credit for his eleventh victory, pitching six-hit ball up until the final inning. But he gave singles to two of the first three batters he faced in the ninth and Passeau was summoned. He gave up a single for one run, but struck out two men to end the game.

The Cubs chased Lefty Vito Tamulis out of action with three runs in the fourth inning, when they loaded the bases twice. A force out scored a run the first time, and after a walk filled the sacks again, Bill Herman singled for two runs.

A double by Stan Hack, the third of his four hits during the game, added the deciding run in the sixth.

The other Dodger runs came one in the sixth on two singles and a sacrifice and one in the seventh on a single and Joe Gallagher's triple.

Yanks Whip Indians, 10-2, Behind Russo

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 2.—The New York Yankees had one of their good days today and crushed the Cleveland Indians, 10 to 2, behind the six-hit hurling of Lefty Marius Russo.

The game was marred by nine errors, five by the Indians and four by the Yanks. As a result neither of the two runs scored against the rookie southpaw was earned.

The champions collected 13 hits off four Cleveland pitchers and tallied five times against Al Milnar in the second and third innings to tag him with the defeat.

Charley Keller led the Yankee attack, with three hits, but the bombardment was general and Babe Dahlgren drove in four runs. He doubled for one in the second, tripled with two on in the third and raised a long fly with the bases loaded in the fifth.

Joe DiMaggio remained out of action nursing injuries he received yesterday at Detroit when he bumped into the centerfield wall chasing a drive by Hank Greenberg. Likewise Ray Mack, of the Indians, was on the sidelines because of a muscle strained yesterday.

Dark Horse Gains Final With McNeill

High Wind Hampers Play in Meadow Club Semis; Cooke Also Bows Out of Action

By International News Service

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Bobby Riggs, national champion and winner of the club bowl for the past three years was the victim of an upset when hilarious Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., defeated him 6—4, 7—9, 6—4, 6—2, in one of the semifinal matches of the Meadow Club Tournament here today.

Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, second seeded player and fourth in national ranking, became finalist against Kovacs when he eliminated Elwood Cooke, Portland, Oreg., 6—0, 6—4, 6—1, in the other semifinal. They will clash in the final tomorrow.

Riggs suffered his last defeat here in 1936 when Frank Parker bowled him over.

Kovacs, unseeded and unranked, had encountered Riggs seven times before and although he came close to winning in a bruising five-set battle against the champion, in which he was at match point four times at Seabright last week, today's triumph was the first the self-declared next national champion ever registered over Riggs.

A roaring wind from the ocean raged across the court and played havoc with Riggs' game, which requires much finesse, while Kovacs' powerful smashing against the junior gale proved a potent weapon against Bobby.

Kovacs kept the swank crowd in good humor by mixing burlesque with great tennis.

He was his own official, tournament committee and one-man cheering section. He called the plays, ordered the ballboys about and playfully let his racquet twice fly from his hands.

McNeill, entirely recovered from an attack of oak poisoning and not a bit handicapped by the wind, breezed through Cooke, without much opposition from the latter.

Boston Battles Champions 12 Innings To Take Nightcap, Handing Cincinnati First Double Defeat of the Season

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 2.—The lowly Boston Bees snapped a nine-game losing streak today to cop a doubleheader from the pace-making Cincinnati Reds, crushing the league leaders, 10-3, in the first game behind six-hit pitching by Nick Strincevich and taking the nightcap, 4-3, in 12 innings.

Chet Ross, the outstanding Bee rookie, delivered the telling blow in the twelfth frame of the nightcap when, with one away and the bases loaded, he laced Joe Beggs' 3-2 pitch into leftfield to score Johnny Cooney with the winning run.

Cooney and "Bama" Rowell had singled in succession to drive "Whitey" Moore from the mound and bring in Beggs. Max West was purposely passed and then Ross forced Beggs down to the three-and-two count before connecting with his game-winning single.

Cincinnati, held hitless until the fifth by Manuel Salvo, started that frame with a double to left by Mike McCormick. Eddie Joost singled him home to equalize a first-inning tally by the Bees. Moore bunted to Sibby Sisti and both men were safe when an attempted double-play, Sisti to Miller to Buddy Hassett, missed connections by a whisker at both ends. Both advanced on Bill Werber's infield out and scored on a booming double by Linus Frey.

15 Crack Par As Milwaukee Open Begins

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 2.—Par took another bad beating today in the opening round of the first $5,000 Milwaukee Open golf championship, with the three low scorers collaborating in one of the greatest exhibitions of iron play ever seen on the game's money circuit.

No. 1 star in the first act of the 72-hole show was 30-year-old Frank Moore, of Detroit. Gamely fighting off the handicap of an attack of influenza which had him in bed only two days ago, he toured the rolling North Hills course in 65, six under par. Right behind him were roly-poly Ed Oliver, of Hornell, N. Y., and the husky Johnny Bulla, of Chicago, with 66 rounds to their credit.

15 Crack Par

In a day's play which saw 15 players crack the North Hills par of 71, the standout feature was the brilliant iron play of those three experts. Moore, out in 33, two under par, and home in 32, four under regulation figures, had an eagle and five birdies. He chipped in from 70 feet for an eagle deuce at the tenth and on three of his birdies had putts of less than 2 feet testifying to his chipping accuracy.

Oliver, winner of last week's St. Paul Open and one of the "hottest" stars of the summer, got three of his birdies after iron shots to within 2 feet of the cup as he went out in 33 and matched that figure coming home. Bulla was just as deadly around the greens, chipping 2 within 2 feet of the cup on three occasions. His nines were 32—34.

Snead, Smith at 69

Four players were in the 68 bracket. They were Charles Kocsis, of Detroit; Ralph Guldahl, of Chicago, twice winner of the National Open crown; E. J. Harrison, of Little Rock, Ark., and Al Favelli, of Litchfield, Ill.

48 Yearlings Sell For $37,075 at Saratoga Sales

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The "biggest gamble in the world," the Saratoga yearling sales, got under way for the twenty-fourth year in the little Fasig-Tipton auction paddock tonight.

Just 50 future racers were put on the block but two failed to bring any bids. The other 48 were sold for $37,075 for an average of $741 per head. A fairly large crowd failed to do any spirited bidding.

The distinction of paying tonight's top price, $2,500, was shared by two Long Islanders, Selby Burch and Israel Silberman, owner of the Paragon Stable. Burch paid that amount for a well-made bay son of Imp. Belfonds—Home Time, consigned by Colin MacLeod, who never sold here before. Silberman's chief purchase was a bay colt from the same group by another French stallion, Imj. Quatre Bras II, out of Tehani.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Chicago, Aug. 2.—The keen, direct eyes of 78-year-old Connie Mack seemed just a bit sad as he chaperoned his Athletics out of Chicago last night, and at least one of the reasons is no mystery. The seamy side of Mr. Mack's deal for Bennie McCoy has begun to reveal itself.

POVICH

Mr. Mack, you remember, outbid every other club owner in the land to hire the services of young McCoy last winter after the player was declared a free agent by Judge Landis. It cost him $65,000 to tug Second Baseman McCoy away from the other bidders—a cash bonus of $45,000 and a two-year contract for the player at $10,000 a season.

And the blunt fact is now that young McCoy is no big leaguer. Mack is stoical about his mistake and gives no hint of any dissatisfaction with his expensive rookie, but other baseball men in the league and men who are McCoy's teammates are not so reticent. McCoy, it seems, is a grade A flop.

He booted an important ball on the first day of the season, but Mack was patient with him. He told McCoy merely to play the best he knew how and that after the excitement of his expensive purchase had worn off, plays would begin to look easier to him, and he'd hit better. But it hasn't worked out that way. McCoy hasn't improved.

At the start of the season, Mack showed his faith in McCoy by delegating him to the important third place in the batting order. McCoy couldn't justify it. Mack moved him up to second place, where at least his ability to sacrifice would be important. It wasn't much use. Mack had him leading off. That didn't help. McCoy hasn't been able to get up a gallop at bat, and now for the past several weeks he has been hitting in seventh place where he can do the least damage.

The McCoy case is a fine example of how, every so often, ball clubs go crazy in bidding for talent. In his half season with the Tigers, McCoy looked like a good prospect but he was no brilliant stand-out, yet Washington bid as high as $30,000 for him, and the Dodgers and Reds went higher. When Clark Griffith learned that Mack was determined to hire McCoy at almost any cost, he dropped out of the bidding. "There was no sense in making Connie go higher than he should," said Griffith.

At the time of the purchase, Mack was highly satisfied. Not only had he exhibited his willingness to pay a high price for a ball player—quieting the charges of Philadelphia newspapers that he was hoarding his profits—but he honestly believed McCoy would be a huge help to his ball club. And the publicity attendant on the deal was not hard to take. Mack was advised—and ill-advised—that McCoy would be a drawing card for the A's.

What Mack's advisers forgot to tell him was that McCoy would be a drawing card only if he turned out to be a good ball player. He hasn't been a good ball player, and his presence on the club has scarcely pulled an extra dollar through the gate. The fact is that McCoy would have been benched long ago if Mack had any sort of a capable substitute.

The pity seems to be that McCoy, likable and popular, has not taken kindly to the attempts to coach him in the art of playing second base. He has his own theories about the job and has shown himself to be headstrong in them. One of his teammates was discussing that fact yesterday:

"McCoy insists on playing his position close-in, and there's nothing that can be done about it. We've tried to tell him that every good second baseman doesn't play as close, but he disagrees. He points to Charley Gehringer and says that Gehringer plays as close as he does.

"Sure, Gehringer plays close, but that is because he can't get around as well as he used to. The good second baseman can play deep and cut off a lot of those balls that go for hits. Fellows like Joe Gordon and Ray Mack and Bobby Doerr are almost back on the grass because they have the foot to cover wider territory. McCoy has the foot, too, but he has the wrong idea about playing second base, and it has been hurting this club."

At $10,000 a year, McCoy has been one of the most over-paid ball players in the league. He was a smart business man in insisting on a two-year contract. If the question of his 1941 contract were an open one, Mack would doubtless offer him no more than the $4,000 McCoy received with Detroit in 1939. And if McCoy balked at that figure, then Mack in his present mood would probably ask waivers on his $65,000 mistake—and get 'em.

Pittsburgh Beats Phils, 5-2, in Tenth

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 2.—Held to four hits in nine innings, the Pittsburgh Pirates bunched four hits for four runs in the tenth inning tonight to beat the Phillies, 5 to 2.

Joe Bowman, of Pittsburgh, hooked up in a 1-1 mound duel with Cy Blanton and Si Johnson for nine innings. Johnson relieved Blanton in the third when the latter injured his elbow.

Art Mahan's single in the third and Maurice Van Robay's homer in the seventh accounted for the only runs.

In the tenth singles by Frank Gustine, and Lloyd Waner; doubles by Bob Elliott and Arkie Vaughan, and two infield outs sent Johnson to the showers.

The Phils came back strong in their half of the tenth, scoring one run on Merrill May's single and filling the bases with one out. Danny Macfayden replaced Bowman at this point and got Joe Marty on a foul pop fly. With the count 2 and 2 on Bob Bragan, Macfayden protested a called ball by Umpire Bill Klem and was put out of the game.

Browns Beat Macks, 5 to 0; Avoid Cellar

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 2.—The Browns, fighting to retain seventh place and stay out of the cellar, smacked the Philadelphia Athletics for a 5-to-0 victory tonight.

It was the Brownies' first shutout this year.

Walt Judnich's nineteenth homer in the fourth inning was the first hit off Johnny Babich, but he hurt his own cause by giving out four passes in the next frame. In the midst of the walks, a wild throw at second base by Benny McCoy allowed two runs to cross the plate.

George McQuinn, Browns first baseman, also hit a four-bagger, his eleventh, in the seventh.

By winning, the Browns strengthened their slender hold on seventh place which they held before tonight's game by .002. Defeat would have dropped them back into the cellar.

Frank Filchock Balks at Redskin Salary Terms for Season

Quarterback May Be Lost To the Team

Passing Star Now Playing Baseball In Kentucky; Wilkin Missing

By Al Hailey
A Staff Correspondent

En Route to Spokane With the Redskins, Aug. 2.—The Washington Redskins tonight were speeding toward Chicago, the first stop on the great trek Westward to summer training quarters, confronted by the possibility that Frank Filchock, mainspring in the backfield all last season, will be lost to the team this fall.

The quarterback and passing star who led the National Professional Football League in the air last year is said to be suffering an acute attack of "holdout-itis" and to have indicated he will not play this year if the Redskin management refuses to comply with his financial demands.

Adding to the "acuteness" of the situation was that Redskins moguls have been unable to locate Wee Willie Wilkin, 265-pound tackle, to discuss contract matters.

Filchock, who has been playing baseball in the Kitty League at Fulton, Ky., is to meet the club in Chicago tomorrow, however, and General Manager Jack Espey is to have a final talk with him.

"We've made our last offer, which is a substantial increase over his last year's figure, and it's up to him now," Espey said.

Refused to Sign

He added that Filchock has refused to sign the contract for 1940. However, it's a 10-to-1 wager that Frank will be in the group of ten players who are to meet the Redskins' party tomorrow in Chicago.

Eleven players were herded onto the Liberty Limited at 5:10 o'clock in the afternoon in Washington for the start of the jaunt across the Nation.

"Herded" is just the word for as photographers had arranged the group for a final parting shot the engineer put the train in motion and a mad scramble ensued with Redskins, Pullman porters, red caps and railroad officials fighting either to get on or off the train before it was too late. A hasty poll revealed that every one ended up in the right place.

A month of work on formations old and new awaits the 45 aspirants in Spokane's made-to-order weather—including four exhibitions before the jaunt back East and home to open the campaign September 15 with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

As the football Redskins boarded their train yesterday word was flashed that they're going to meet the real thing in Mandan, N. Dak., in the form of a tribe of Sioux Indians.

The Sioux are "going after the scalp of none other than Charley Malone—fact is, they're going to go after Malone along with it and in quite a brotherly fashion.

Will Honor Malone

Charley, former Texas A. & M. star, will become an honorary member of the tribe with the special de luxe name of "Chief Flying Thunder." The Northern Pacific train will tarry long enough in Mandan for the ceremony to be "done up" in proper style.

Today, however, there's a luncheon awaiting the lads in Chicago. They'll be feted by the pro elevens of the Windy City and will be escorted out to Cominskey Park in the afternoon to see the Nats-White Sox game. After the arrival in Chicago, the club will be guest for the day at the Illinois Athletic Club and will resume the journey tonight at 11 o'clock.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 2.—"Here he comes now," one of the men near the door at Stillman's gym mumbled, and the place calmed down. Joe Louis came in the door, cool and collected looking in his tailored gabardine and his Hollywood straw hat. Mike Jacobs was with him. Louis looked around a moment, recognized Steve Dudas and went over and shook hands with him. "Ha' you?" Joe said. It broke the ice, and soon he was surrounded by managers, seconds, fighters and the fight fans who paid a quarter to see the day's workouts.

CONSIDINE

"Pastor's almost ready to work," Jacobs said to Louis. "Come on." Joe edged his way apologetically through the crowd, walked to the back of the place where fighters were skipping rope and doing their bending exercises, and sat down. The reporters sat down around him.

"I see where Johnny Ray says you're about through, Joe," one of them said. Ray manages Billy Conn.

Louis gave off a little chuckle. He took off his hat and ran a hand through his new crew cut. The reporter amplified, "Ray figures you're in the same spot now that Dempsey was before the first Tunney fight. You're champ and everybody thinks you're unbeatable, just as everybody thought Dempsey was. He thinks Conn's ready to take you."

Joe thought it over for a while. Then he smiled. "Billy Conn's a champ, too, ain't he? Maybe he's all through, too, and nobody knows it."

Pastor came up to Joe and extended his taped hand. "Ha' you?" Joe said. Pastor said, "Hello, Joe, how's it going?" Louis chuckled and said, "can't complain. Ha' you?" He took off his coat, smoothed his immaculate shirt and suspenders and climbed up on the ring apron to pose handing Pastor a water bottle.

When he came back he wanted to talk baseball. "Guess it's those Tigers. Tigers against the Cincinnati Reds," he predicted. "We beat them Yankees without Newsom and Bartell, so how can we lose now they're back? We got great subs. No matter who gets hurt, we got a sub."

A reporter, looking at Louis' smooth brown face, said, "funny thing about you, Joe. I guess you're about the only fighter who never got cut in the ring."

"Knock on wood," Joe said. "But I been cut. Lookit this." He parted the hair of his left eyebrow and unearthed a white scar perhaps two inches long. "My brother cut me with a hoe," he explained. "We were livin' down in Alabama then. Hoeing potatoes. He was hoeing and I was pickin' them up. Well, something happened. I got too close and bang, he cut me bad with that hoe."

Somebody marveled that the cut had never opened under some of the blows he has taken in the ring.

"Yeah," Joe mused. "She sure healed good. We didn't have nothin' then. No doctor or anything like that. Didn't have it stitched or anything. She just healed up." He thought a while, then added, "If something like that happened today, I guess they'd get me nine doctors."

Louis had a stock reply ready concerning the Pastor-Conn fight. "It's gonna be close, good fight," he said. But as he watched Pastor and a sparring mate slapping and slugging in the ring he strayed from the script. "Pastor's got a good chance. He's had more hard fights than Billy Conn. Knows more, I guess. But maybe those hard fights took something out of him. If that's so, Conn will win. He's a little sharper puncher and blocks better. But you can't tell until the fight. Maybe those hard fights didn't take much out of Pastor. Maybe they made him tougher. You can't tell, just lookin,' this is a funny business."

His mind went back to Ray's prediction. "Wonder why he say that?" He asked. "I never was in better shape in any fight than I was for Goodoy. Y'could see my ribs stickin' out. Even for Paychek I was in good shape. Good as for the second Schmeling fight. I take care of myself," he said, with a faint trace of pride.

Winchester Club Retains State Title In Trapshooting

By the Associated Press

Winchester, Va., Aug. 2.—The five-man team of the Winchester Gun Club retained its State title without opposition today as the forty-first annual tournament of the Virginia Trapshooting Association got under way.

The team, despite the lack of opposition, fired away to break 234 out of 250 targets. Members are E. E. Cuthbert, Carl J. Renner, Ruth Cuthbert, F. W. Pingley and W. F. Anderson.

Renner also regained his State doubles championship, lost last year to Tracey Lewis, of Keene, Va., by outshooting W. F. Anderson in a 24-target shoot-off. The two local shooters had tied at 87 each.

Joe Heistand, of Hillsboro, Ohio, and Karl Maust, of Columbus, Ohio, won most of the open and nonresident events. They are considered among the best trapshooters in the country.

Dot Bundy, Gracyn Wheeler Are Net Upset Winners

By the Associated Press

East Hampton, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Two major upsets, perhaps the most remarkable pair ever seen in the Maidstone Club tennis tournament, today sent husky Dorothy May Bundy and slim Gracyn Wheeler, both of Santa Monica, Calif., into the final round with conquests over two topflights stars.

Miss Bundy, daughter of the former national champion, May Sutton Bundy, gained a grueling 11—13, 6—4, 6—3 triumph over Sarah Palfrey, of Reno, Nev., the top-seeded player and ranked third nationally. Miss Wheeler conquered second-seeded Pauline Betz, of San Francisco, 6—4, 6—4. Neither of the finalists was seeded in the tournament.

Miss Bundy and Miss Wheeler both have held high national rankings, but they seldom have played any better than they did today. Miss Bundy outsteadied and outgamed the girl who took over the third ranking that Dorothy had held in 1938. Miss Wheeler's victory over Miss Betz, now ranked eighth nationally, was bitterly fought but the outcome never was in doubt.

Printer Golf Entries Will Register Today

Get Together Scheduled At Mayflower Hotel Tonight at Eight

Entries to the seventeenth annual golf tournament of the Union Printcraft International Golf Association being held here for the first time starting Tuesday at Beaver Dam will register today at the Mayflower Hotel. A get-together is scheduled there at 8 p. m.

Tomorrow many of the contenders are expected to test the Beaver Dam course preparatory to the four-day 72-hole tournament which has drawn entries from points as distant as California, Texas, Florida, Boston and Canada. About one-quarter of the field, however, will be made up from Washington and Baltimore golfers. The tournament is open to printers, bookbinders, photo-engravers and mailers.

The women's division of the tournament will be held Tuesday.

Experts predict that a 72-hole score of 306 or better—an average of 75—will be necessary for victory in the men's event, since Beaver Dam's Joe Balestri, one of the favorites, has been consistently under 75 this summer.

Aces, Standard Linen Win in Twin Bill

The Arlington Aces girls softball team registered its fifteenth consecutive victory last night in the first half of a double bill at Ballston Stadium beating Little Tavern, 8-2. Leila George gave up one hit and fanned ten.

In the nightcap Standard Linen defeated Carr Brothers and Boswell, 4-1, behind the three-hit hurling of Ace Stewart. Dave Singer led the attack with a pair of hits.

Barney Welsh Defends Title In Open Tennis

70 Players to Compete In D. C. Championship At Edgemoor Club

By Jack Munhall

Seventy players, largest field to compete in a tennis tournament here this season and one of the largest in many years, today undertake the task of keeping Barney Welsh from walking away with his ninth straight District Open men's championship at Edgemoor Club.

When the draw was released last night without the name of a single outstanding out-of-town contender the tournament again assumed the aspect of Welsh against the field. It is again as it has been for the last eight years, with not more than two players accorded a chance to upset the lanky Rockville Rambler.

Only Davie Johnsen, youthful George Washington University star and conqueror of Welsh in this summer's Middle Atlantic championships, can be given more than an outside chance for the title. Hugh Lynch, veteran Edgemoor star who never has beaten Welsh outside a club tournament, is the second player who possibly may crash through in an upset.

The last-minute withdrawal of Dever Hobbs, Baltimore men's champion and two other strong Monumental City racquet swingers—John Beck and Alex Keiles—has removed some of the edge from the tournament. The trio was signed up, but withdrew because of the sudden scheduling of the Baltimore doubles championship, according to Strand Johnsen, referee for the D. C. championships.

Willie Herbert Meets Mrs. Keever in Finals

Top-Seeded Player Defeats Peggy Smith In D. C. Net League Tourney at Rock Creek; Unranked Racqueter Downs Charlotte Decker

Top-seeded Willie Herbert and unranked Margaret Keever won semi-final matches in the D. C. Women's Tennis League tournament at Rock Creek yesterday to set the stage for a repetition of the finals round match of the recent Public Parks women's championships.

Mrs. Herbert, who defeated Mrs. Keever in straight sets for the parks title, advanced by overpowering Peggy Smith, while Mrs. Keever duplicated her public parks upset of second-seeded Charlotte Decker, this time by scores of 6—3, 6—2.

The doubles finals bracket was completed as second-ranked Frances Rowan and Miss Decker rallied to eliminate unseeded Eleanor Voith and Helen Levy, youthful upset specialists who Thursday won two hard-fought matches.

The Herbert-Keever match is scheduled at 11 this morning, with the doubles finals at 3. The other doubles finalists are top-seeded Frances Carter and Joan Bransford.

Mrs. Herbert, near here best form for the first time this season after proving a disappointment in the City of Washington and District championships, will be the heavy favorite over Mrs. Keever. The newcomer from California, however, can be expected to offer good opposition since she is a smart and steady player whose game varies but little from its high standard.

Mrs. Kane Captures Kenwood Golf Prize

Mrs. A. D. Kane was the first-flight winner in Kenwood Country Club's miniature golf tourney yesterday, with Mrs. Woodleif Thomas a close second.

Second-flight honors went to Mrs. J. DeFarges, with Mrs. D. L. Hoffman runner-up, and Mrs. H. McClellan took the third-flight prize just ahead of Mrs. M. W. Roberts.

Giants Split With Redbirds; Young Homers

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 2.—New York and St. Louis divided a double-header today, the Giants winning the first, 5 to 4, and the Cardinals nabbing the nightcap, 3 to 1.

In the first half of the ninth, the Cards rallied with three runs to tie the score. Jack Russell, who replaced starting pitcher Mort Cooper, was in the game only long enough to dish up a "gopher" ball to Young and be charged with the defeat.

Locals Lose 3 Golfers For Sunday

Bogart, McCarthy, Nolan Unable to Compete Against Baltimore Team

The not-too-pleasant prospect of being on the short end of the odds for the first time in three years faced the District golf team which will meet Baltimore's representatives Sunday when it was announced yesterday that Ralph Bogart, Parker Nolan and Martin McCarthy would be unable to compete.

Winner of the annual intercity event each of the past two seasons, the District contingent will now be without the services of the District titlist in young Bogart, the Maryland State champion in Nolan and a brilliant veteran of tournament play in McCarthy. Absence from the city or illness has accounted for withdrawal in each case.

In an attempt to fill the vacancies, Volney Burnett, nonplaying captain of the locals, immediately revised his line-up. Into the breaches went Frank White and Billy Houghton, of Capitol Country Club, and Louis Fuchs, of Manor.

The Washington pairings for the matches at Terra Mariae Country Club thus are: Roger Peacock and Claude Rippy, Harry Pitt and Willie Shea, Bob Brownell and George Miller, Jerry Hart and John Olmstead, George Molloy and Houghton, White and Earl Skinker, Eddie Bean and Jimmy Gipe, and Fuchs and Dick Melvin. Alternates now will be Johnny Berglin, of Kenwood; George Vass, of Kenwood; Maury Nee, of Columbia, and Earl McAleer, of Congressional.

The possibility still remained that Pitt, perennial favorite on local links, would be forced to join Bogart, Nolan and McCarthy on the sidelines. Still further shifts would then be necessary, cutting Washington's hopes even more.

Mrs. Schlossburg Wins Weekly Ladies' Tourney

Army Navy Club's weekly ladies' golf tourney, featuring 12 best holes with a two-thirds handicap, was won by Mrs. R. T. Schlossburg, yesterday with a 51—9, 42.

Second prize in the play was captured by Mrs. E. B. Kunkel, with a 56—11, 45. Third went to Mrs. M. J. Torlinsky, who shot a 55, minus 8 handicap, for a 47.

Mrs. Beavers, of Manor Club, won the guest prize with a 58 minus 9, 49.

Tuesday ten ladies from Army Navy will travel to Quantico to play ten ladies of the club there.

LIKE TENNYSON'S BROOK:

Alice Marble Keeps on Winning

Tennis Queen Says Her Game Is Getting Better Day by Day

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 2.—Any of you young ladies who hope to be national tennis champion had better not count on it too heavily before 1945.

For Alice Marble, who hasn't lost a match since she was beaten in Wimbledon in 1938, hasn't any thought of abdicating, doesn't feel any remorse about battering her opponents senseless and thinks her game, if anything, is getting better.

Resting here between her last triumph at Seabright and her expected one at the Eastern grass courts, opening tomorrow at Rye, the pretty queen of the world's tennis courts has some interesting slants on how it feels to be so "durn" good you never lose.

"No, I don't get tired of winning all the time," she said. "That is why I've spent so many years in hard practice—so I can win. I love it, and though I've beaten everybody and am pretty sure my game is getting better, I still get tremendously excited over each match. It's a lot harder staying up on the pinnacle than it ever was getting there."

The very femnine Alice doesn't look like a killer, yet she says she has developed the same instinct that made Dempsey a champion in boxing. She has such a horror now of losing that she's made a vow she'll never be beaten—and it begins to look as though she never will!

The Marble dominance hasn't hurt tennis, as you might think, Alice said. Instead it has made every one of her foes swear that she pay—and dearly——for the thumpings she's given them.

The girls, however, are different. Right off, Alice names Muriel Magnuson, young Minneapolis ace, as a coming star and thinks Louise Brough, of California, is another grand prospect.

Longshot Lucky Jean Wins Bel Air Purse in Driving Finish

Mare Hangs Nose Defeat On Sail By

Danny Shea's Charge Ridden by Jockey A. Vesseli; Salian Third in Field of 10

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Bel Air, Md., Aug. 2.—Maryland racing fans are beginning to believe they know the identity of "yoohooty." He is being designated as the little man who makes longshots run badly just before they win. Take Lucky Jean, winner of the Gunpowder Purse, featuring today's program. This 6-year-old mare was beaten off 17 lengths in her previous start, perhaps while under the influence of radio's mythical character. But today she had all the energy of a Kentucky Derby candidate and drove up on the outside to hang up a nose defeat on Sail By.

About the only change in Lucky Jean was the appearance in her saddle of Jockey A. Vesseli. The change in riders might have worked the miracle and could have served to draw a scattered play that found her a $24 shot after the favorite players had torn up their tickets. Third in the limit field of ten was Salian.

Lucky Jean performed in the colors of Danny Shea and left no doubt as to her ability by running the five furlongs of the Bel Air course in 1:00 3-5, just one-fifth of a second over the track record set at this meeting by Buddy Al.

With the exception of Salian there wasn't a well-played horse in the field that ran a nickel's worth. The contention was confined to the three money horses from the start. Lucky Jean had the lead early, was eased back while Sail By raced Salian into defeat and then came under Vesseli's strong handling to be up in the final jumps.

J. S. Kelly, of Washington, D. C., saw his colors reach the winner's circle for the first time in the first race. With Willie Obert, America's oldest active jockey aboard, Strolling In drove home at a $32.30 mutuel. The 2-year-old filly paved the way for a $280.40 mutuel in the daily double. Lucky Light, no relation to Lucky Jean, won the second event by five lengths and paid an individual mutuel of $8.10.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STROLLING IN, $32.30, $9.30, $6.90; SHOTAGIN, $3.50, $3.30; UNA H, $8.10.

STROLLING IN, steadied while in close quarters early, came to outside for racing room and withstood long drive to win going away. SHOTAGIN was closest to pace in early running, was hard ridden and closed gamely. UNA H. saved ground and came with good energy in closing test. CANTERLIN, slow to begin, moved up with bold rush approaching stretch and weakened gradually thereafter.

SECOND RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 2:42½. Off 2:44½. Winner, Philip Needles' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LUCKY LIGHT, $8.10, $5.80, $3.80; GAY BRIDE, $5.80, $3.60; WELSH LAD, $2.80.

LUCKY LIGHT went wide going to first turn, came around horses boldly to take command, ran out entering stretch and drew out to win with speed in reserve. GAY BRIDE saved ground in early stages, worked way to contention and closed willingly. WELSH LAD was shut off directly after start, saved ground, was blocked while attempting to go through on inside at half pole and closed with good energy. PICKLE MOOD was well placed early and tired.

Daily Double, STROLLING IN and LUCKY LIGHT, Paid $280.40

THIRD RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $600; steeplechase, long course. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post 3:12. Off 3:17. Winner, Walter Wickes' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCURRY ALONG, $5.40, $4.00, $3.30; THORNY ROSE, $6.70, $5.30; FLYING CLOWN, $9.20.

SCURRY ALONG, steadied while close up for turn of field, went to front when asked, drew out and won with some speed in reserve. THORNY ROSE, allowed to race on own courage early, saved ground to get to front and was eased up while holding place safe. FLYING CLOWN made bad landing at second fence and raced well thereafter. LEICESTERSHIRE was in thick of early contention and weakened badly.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $500; allowances. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:50. Off 3:52. Winner, George A. Garrett's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KAMPORT, $6.90, $5.70, $3.80; THOA, $28.10, $10.10; KITTIWAKE, $5.40.

KAMPORT, steadied while close up going to first turn, was carried out badly by HIGH BUD, rallied gamely after recovering and withstood long drive. THOA escaped trouble while saving ground at first turn to take command, opened long lead and came again after dropping back. KITTIWAKE came to outside for racing room while bettering position, moved up menacingly between leaders and weakened suddenly. COTILLION was bothered at first turn and rallied mildly.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:23. Off 4:24. Winner, D. Shea's br. m. (6), by Incantation—Wings of the Wind. Trained by L. Crain. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:00⅗.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LUCKY JEAN, $24.00, $10.80, $7.50; SAIL BY, $19.40, $11.00; SALIAN, $4.90.

LUCKY JEAN, rated while keen forward factor early, came to outside for final drive and wore down SAIL BY in concluding strides under strong handling. SAIL BY set and pressed pace, assumed command in midstretch, but could not resist winner while kept to hard drive. LULA KHAYYAM was pinched back on inside going to turn, rallied in midstretch and weakened right at end.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:53. Off 4:54. Winner, R. George's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL DOT, $7.00, $4.40, $3.70; SCARLET FLAME, $4.40, $3.30; SNUGGLE, $4.20.

ROYAL DOT assumed command at once, saved ground while setting pace and held sway through stretch while under pressure. SCARLET FLAME, sluggish early, saved ground to better position at first turn and held on gamely in closing test. SNUGGLE was messed about going to first turn, went wide for racing room and closed gamely. BUD'S GIRL, slow to begin, moved up with bold rush and tired in closing eighth.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:25. Off 5:27. Winner, Mrs. G. Armstrong's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SARANITE, $18.40, $9.70, $6.90; FLAGETTA, $7.80, $6.00; ASTERISK, $15.80.

SARANITE, under steadying restraint on outside while within striking distance, came around leaders to take command entering stretch and drew out while kept to drive. FLAGETTA worked way to contention on outside, lugged in stretch run and was weakening right at close. ASTERISK improved position after opening quarter and closed full of run. ARBOREAL set good pace and tired after three-quarters. QUICK VINE could not get to front and tired badly.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Win driving; place same. Went to post 5:59. Off 5:59½. Winner, A. A. Leith's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE SWAGMAN, $10.90, $6.40, $4.70; UNLAWFUL, $11.60, $7.10; STEPPING IN, $4.20.

THE SWAGMAN, going in best form, improved position steadily on outside, lugged in through stretch and drew out. UNLAWFUL, well placed from start, responded when shaken up and closed gamely. STEPPING IN was forwardly placed from start and closed willingly under pressure. KENNER set good pace to midstretch and weakened suddenly. ABBOT'S LARK was hard ridden while close up for half and faltered.

Feature Taken By Baby Booties

Salem, N. H., Aug. 2 (AP).—Baby Booties fought off a desperate closing rush by Quaroma to win by a nose today in the photo finish of the 1 1-16 miles Jackson Purse, Rockingham Park feature. Iron Bar was third, a half a length back.

B. N. Kane's Boy Baby set a fast early pace in the race, with the winner, Quaroma and Iron Bar rushing up to challenge on the final turn. The last three came down the stretch together and Baby Booties finally managed to edge ahead under some superb riding by Jockey Maurice Berger and nipped Walter Lee Taylor and Quaroma at the wire.

The time was 1:48. Baby Booties paid $19.40, $7.40 and $4.80, while Quaroma returned $4.80 and $3.40. Iron Bar paid $4.60.

Selections at Bel Air.

Dear Al:

I was talking to an owner of horses who has been prominent in half-mile and smaller tracks racing. He says he is going out of the game for the reason that there are too many horses around. He points out that one of his horses was able to get into action only once and then was in a position that he did not choose. In several instances at this meeting horses were put in the entries as many as eight times without getting action. Today's entries, the final for the meeting, shows Albert D and Counora on the "also eligible" list. Unless there are scratches, these horses will have been unable to get into a race. Owner D. Veneziano caused a laugh when he posted the following notice on the bulletin board yesterday morning: "For sale—The horse Albert D and seven stars." The stars mean that the horse was entered seven times without getting eligible. Racing Secretary Eddie Brennan has arranged a good closing day card. The Elray Farm Handicap, the feature, has drawn the best distance horses on the grounds, but many of the contenders are far down the list and doubtful starters. Benningites and Washingtonians are expected to show keen interest in the seventh race. In the line-up the Galt Davis' Yankee Lad, Peg Hana's Chief Evergreen and Bennings Stable's Clymene. If Clymene beats Yankee Lad, Davis is going to throw a fit. If Chief Evergreen beats Clymene, I'm going to throw a fit. If First Fling wins, we'll all throw a fit. Given a cool day tomorrow, this track may break all records for small-track betting. The present record is $205,390. Channing's wakeup last Thursday brought action from the stewards. The horse's entry was banned for the remainder of the meeting. This was because that is the end of the authority of the stewards here. The officials also announced that Apprentice R. Sisto had been fined $25 for "cutting over too sharply" in Thursday's eighth race. Sisto was riding Bellthorn. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—Buckle Up turned in a good race last out and appears suited by conditions in this field. Needs only the right handling. Stadium won early in the meeting on an off track and is dangerous. Miss Neptune's last was encouraging and she should give a good account of herself.

Second race—Providing the track is fast, I'm going to take Autumn Echo on general good form. However, if the oval is off, I'm going to put Dacotah on top. Netta Wood gets in with a feather and is a threat.

Third race—Axacan, winner early in the meeting, appears capable of turning back the opposition in the best steeplechase of the meeting. I'm going to string along despite the heavy assignment. Fire Light downed cheaper company impressively. The Bosley entry of Le Passadou and Leicestershire will be formidable if taken off the reserve list.

Fourth race—War Scare has shown enough to warrant a top selection in a field of this sort. With a share of the racing luck, this one should take down the chief end of the purse. More Poise and Lady Solace appear best of the other eligibles. The reserve list is alive with possibilities.

Fifth race—The chief contention in this field is among the "also eligibles." Oversight, Royal Business and Cherry Trifle are the class, but are doubtful starters. If this trio fails to get in, I'm taking Red Wrack, Nilon and Squabble.

Sixth race—Oddesa Frank closed like the wind in a shorter affair. This mile and a quarter suits, and I'm going to string along. Never Idol won impressively here and will be prominent if the track is fast. Extra Good for the show end.

Seventh race—I'm going to stick to the Bennings Stable's Clymene in this event. She is fit as hands make horses. The Davis entry of Yankee Lad and Ace of Trumps must be beaten, however. First Fling for the minor award.

Eighth race—Summer Stock, coupled with Artist, seems to have a lock and key on the final of the day and meeting. Needs only a share of the racing luck. Furr Buckle is in with a feather and is dangerous. Mamie's Lad and Last Revue are longshot possibilities.

Best bet—Oddesa Frank.

Piquet Takes Big Saratoga Filly Event

Long Shot Pays $44.20 In Close Triumph Over Fairy Chant

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Those fickle fillies were at it again with the sixteenth running of the Test Stakes of 7 furlongs here this afternoon. Longshots showed the way home, the $3,050 lion's share of the purse going to Mrs. Payne Whitney's Delaware Oaks winner, Piquet, a $44.20 for two shot. Giving her popular stable and Jockey Eddie Arcaro two straight scores on the card, Piquet barely got up to nose out William Dupont, jr.'s Fairy Chant in 1:24 2-5.

R. L. Gerry's Inkling was third, two lengths behind, with War Beauty leading home the other six 3-year-old lassies.

The big disappointment of the race was G. D. Widener's recent winner Rosetown. The favored daughter of Jamestown never got close. Nor did Damaged Goods, heroine of the Coaching Club Oaks and Acorn Stakes.

The Test serves as a sort of preview of Alabama Stakes candidates. Those in today's event eligible for the coming filly fixture were Piquet, Fairy Chant, War Beauty, Rosetown, Damaged Goods and last year's juvenile filly champion, Now What.

Piquet, well beaten in Fairy Chant's Gazelle Stakes at Aqueduct, a race that was run in a blinding storm, came from next-to-last place to win today. Arcaro gradually improved his mount's position and the St. Germans filly's dying bid was just in time. Fairy Chant ran over Teacher and Now What at the head of the stretch. She then opened up a wide lead, only to falter suddenly when Piquet challenged. Inkling was well up all the way.

John Remon, Dr. Gill and Harry Smith to Attend Miles River Yacht Club Races Today

John A. Remon, chairman of the President's Cup Regatta committee, and Dr. Bache Gill and Harry Smith, two other local regatta enthusiasts, will attend the nineteenth annual Miles River Yacht Club classic at St. Michaels, Md., today. They will be there for the express purpose of rounding up talent for the President's Cup Regatta over the Potomac, September 27, 28 and 29.

Meanwhile, sailing enthusiasts received good news yesterday with the announcement from Arthur H. Clephane, chairman of the sailing division of the regatta, that a new national class of one-design boats will make its debut during the sailing races September 14-15.

This class is the fast-growing 19-foot sloops known as Lightnings which stages it second annual national championships this month on Long Island Sound. In the last year several hundred of the boats have been built in this country, and due to their growing popularity will be included in this year's regatta for the first time.

These Lightnings, along with ten other local and national sailing classes, will provide two days of competition.

It was also announced by Chairman Clephane that C. Lindzey Nicholson 2d, of Syracuse, N. Y., president of the Lightning Class Association, had been named to the race committee. Herbert L. Stone, of New York, editor of Yachting Magazine; Dr. John Eiman, president of the Comet Class Yacht Racing Association; Oscar S. Tyson, of the American Canoe Association; L. Corrin Strong, commodore of Gibson Island Yacht Squadron, and Paul G. Tomalin, former commodore of the Potomac River Sailing Association, are others on the committee.

Rifted Clouds Wins Feature at Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP).—Rifted Clouds, of Woolford Farms, won the 6-furlong feature at Washington Park today, going the distance in 1:10 4-5, two-fifths of a second off the track record.

The victor's trophy was presented to Trainer Ross Higdon by Al Jolson, stage and screen actor after whom the race was named. B. F. Masterson's Busy Morn was second by a length and a half with C. E. Hagyard's Rude Awakening third.

Rifted Clouds paid $4.00, $2.60 and $2.20. Busy Morn returned $3.00 and $2.20 and Rude Awakening paid $2.40.

Gabe Menendez Confers With Mike Jacobs

Turner's Matchmaker To Line Up Better Future Bouts Here

Gabe Menendez, Joe Turner's dapper matchmaker, is in New York today for what he called an "important mission" in connection with the 10-round match at Griffith Stadium between Georgie Abrams and Cocoa Kid Monday night, August 12.

Menendez is slated to confer with Promoter Mike Jacobs at Jacobs Beach this morning. He will talk with the Mighty Mike regarding matches for Washington which would involve the following: Henry Armstrong, the welterweight champion; Lew Jenkins, the lightweight ruler; Cocoa Kid, ranked No. 1 welterweight; Abrams, leading middleweight contender, and Holman Williams, Joe Louis' protege, No. 3 welterweight.

The local matchmaker also intimated he plans to see both Chris Dundee, Abrams' manager, and George Shepherd, Cocoa's pilot, for two reasons: (1) To attempt to tie up their contracts binding them over to him for future fights, depending on the outcome of their August 12 match and his conference with Jacobs; (2) straighten out the matter of weights for the Abrams-Cocoa fight.

Thus far there is nothing definite regarding the weight at which Abrams will come in for Cocoa. The colored fighter wants Abrams to shed weight to 158, while Abrams says that is asking too much, and contends 160 is "comfortable."

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

The man who takes the undisputed lead in the Man Of The Month contest for August is Jimmy Bloodworth, the only player who merited any points yesterday in the 10-2 debacle at Chicago.

To Bloodworth, 6 points, because he made one of the Nats' two hits—a home run with a man on base that tied the score temporarily at 2-2 in the fourth inning.

That is all.

Exchange Market

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—The open-market rate of the Canadian dollar dropped half a cent, in terms of the American dollar, today. Dealings in the "free" rate remained small, with most business done at official quotations under war-time controls.

The British pound open-market quotation likewise was off half a cent following a sharp run-up in previous sessions. Trading at the free rate was largely restricted to purchases and sales of Americans, since overseas transactions were handled at the fixed official quotations.

Stocks Edge Higher Without Enthusiasm; Many Uncertainties Slow Trading Pace

New York, Aug. 2.—While share prices advanced a little today it was without enthusiasm. The trading pace slowed down to near last week's 22-year low levels. Confused ideas about the future on both home and foreign questions were accounted an explanation for failure of the public to take hold of securities after indications had been given over several sessions that the market was coming out of the rut.

Domestic industrial developments were again highlighted by defense contracts and plans for plant expansions and improvements. The trader groups and market analysts, however, were called upon to digest details of the excess profits tax proposals submitted to the House Ways and Means Committee by the Treasury and by the staff of the joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

These were available for the first time and will be subject to close study over the next few days by Wall street groups as well as corporations in all parts of the country. Apparently the levies are to be drastic, including retroactive provisions to the beginning of the year, and no doubt will be a deterrent to speculation if not to investment.

Utilities, Steels Gain

Gains in stocks were largely confined to a selection of utilities, steels, equipments and manufacturing specialties and last prices, on the whole, were well above the lows for the day. Coppers eased a little. The composite price of the 100 key stocks was 0.05 point net higher on sales of 296,840 shares.

International Paper issues led the paper group to moderately higher levels on a steady dribble of buying. Steel common, most active in its group, was ¼ point up at the finish. While most of the oils were steady, Texas Corporation again featured on the selling side. It was the fourth most active issue on the big board, and lost 1⅝ points net on sales of 5,600 shares. The company has been in the news for alleged aid or courtesies to a representative of the Hitler government.

Standard of California was among oil shares which firmed, although West Coast said that it was one of two companies fined under Sherman Act proceedings in nolo contendere cases. Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey was active and unchanged.

Some of the steel centers estimated a further advance in production rates next week.

Bonds Are Irregular

Small and irregular changes were the rule today in the listed bond market, which had a turnover of $3,430,000. A few issues showed sizable variations, however, in the speculative foreign and domestic classifications. Best rated investment media were dull, with United States Treasury obligations hardly changed at all. New York City transit unification bonds dipped fractionally.

Norwegian bonds were marked another point or two higher, as traders pondered the implications of the recent statement on debt service. French and Danish bonds also were firm, and some of the southeastern European issues likewise improved. German issues were soft on the British claims of immense damage to cities in that country, while Australian and Canadian loans were uncertain. Latin-Americans merely continued their slow downward drift.

Speculative railroad bonds in the domestic section were irregular, gains and losses being about equally numerous.

Lead and Tin

Straits tin futures 25 to 30 lower. Sales, 33,600 pounds.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP).—Corn prices, which tumbled almost 2 cents a bushel, led a general decline of grain values today in a reaction apparently based on improved moisture conditions in the North Central States and Canada as well as lagging domestic and international trade.

With commercial and speculative activity restricted by uncertainty as to the war situation, values were permitted to drift lower under the pressure of comparatively small selling orders. Some hedging of wheat was in evidence and corn belt rains, with forecast of continued showery conditions, attracted attention, but traders also watched price movements of other commodities, particularly the lows registered by sugar and coffee futures.

Corn closed at the lows of the session, or 1 to 1¾ lower than yesterday, September 60⅜@60½, December 56⅞. Wheat was ¼ to 1⅛ down, September 75½@75⅝, December 76@76⅛; oats ½ to ⅝ off; soybeans ⅝ down; rye ¾ lower and lard 10 to 13 lower.

Just before the close the British food ministry announced an agreement for purchase of 100,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat in the crop year ending July, 1941, but traders regarded this type of intergovernment operations as not surprising. They pointed out the amount involved represents less than 25 per cent of the Canadian exportable surplus expected to be available after harvest.

Important corn-producing sections east of the Mississippi River in the Ohio Valley were missed by overnight rains, but in some localities in Iowa moisture was said to be more than ample and in the spring wheat belt dry weather is desired for grain maturity and harvesting operations. Recent rains and cooler weather have checked deterioration in Canada, according to reports, and some recuperation is expected. Cutting has started in Manitoba.

Weakness of grains and hogs depressed lard.

Uneven Trend Continues in Commodities

Wheat, Corn Weaken; Cotton Is Irregular; Sugar Advances

By the Associated Press

Plus and minus signs were well scrambled yesterday in the commodity futures price range.

Wheat and corn at Chicago sold off without an accompaniment of significant news. The former closed ¼ to 1⅛ cents a bushel down, while corn lost 1 to 1¾ cents.

New York cotton futures continued in a narrow track, ending 1 point up to 1 lower. On the down side were straits copper, tin, lead, cottonseed oil, silk and hides.

On a small run of cattle, making the week's total receipts the lightest in 25 years, cattle prices strengthened with fed steers and yearlings moving strong to 25 cents higher. Top hogs, however, dropped to $6.60 on a steady to 10-cent lower market. Spring lambs and yearlings were 15 to 25 cents higher.

N. B. C. Directors Elect Mullen As General Manager

Frank E. Mullen, associated with radio since 1923, was named vice president and general manager of the National Broadcasting Company by its board of directors yesterday.

MULLEN

He takes over the post left vacant July 12 when Miles Trammell, whose radio career also dates back to 1923, was elected president of the chain to succeed Maj. Lenox R. Lohr.

Mr. Mullen, whose birthplace was Clifton, Kans., had been vice president in charge of advertising and publicity of the Radio Corporation of America, parent company of N. B. C. From 1934 to 1939 he was head of the R. C. A. department of information. Before that he was director of agriculture for N. B. C. and in 1926 organized the network's Farm and Home Hour.

Mr. Mullen is a member of the National Press Club. He lives in Connecticut and is a frequent visitor in Washington.

Postal Receipts Continue Rise

Postmaster Vincent C. Burke reported yesterday that postal receipts here in July totaled $622,009, a new record for the month and an increase of 8 per cent over the same month last year.

July Deficit Of Treasury Is Half Billion

Expenditures Exceed 830 Million in First Month of Fiscal Year

By the Associated Press

The Treasury disclosed yesterday that it had started off the biggest peacetime spending year in history with a deficit of nearly a half billion dollars.

In July, the first month of a fiscal year in which national defense expenditures alone are expected to be several billion dollars, the Treasury spent $830,598,844 and took in $331,220,815—a deficit of $499,378,029.

In the same month last year both expenditures and receipts were slightly lower, and the deficit was $499,479,186. In July, 1939, however, the Treasury had to make some extraordinary bookkeeping charges which did not appear this year.

For the first time, the Treasury revenue figure excluded Social Security taxes going into the old-age reserve fund. If these taxes had been added in as formerly, revenue would have been larger and the deficit smaller by $35,842,715. Deduction of these taxes, however, did not affect comparisons with July 1939, because no additions were made to the reserve fund in that month.

New defense taxes, although generally effective July 1, also did not enter materially into July receipts, but are expected to start showing up in August.

Meanwhile, the Federal debt, the limit of which was raised from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000 to enable financing of defenses expenditures, reached a new record high of $43,770,544,600. This was an increase of $803,013,562 in one month, due mostly to the sale of $650,000,000 worth of long-term bonds to replenish Treasury cash.

Business Highlights

Prepared for The Post by Standard Statistics.

The Oil Plague

Some idea of the extent to which actual or potential oversupplies plague the California oil industry is to be had from the fact that the potential production of the new wells brought in 1939 alone is 25 per cent or so in excess of 600,000 barrels per day the State consumes. And there not only has been no let-up in drilling, but the number of producing wells brought in in the first five months of 1940 was about 17 per cent larger than the comparable 1939 figure. Although potential production of the 1940 discoveries was less, on the average, than in the case of the 1939s, the net result was an increase of about 322,000 barrels in potential daily production. It is not too much to say that the statistical position of the California oil industry leaves a lot to be desired.

Auto Replacements

Production of 2,388,000 new passenger cars and trucks is required in the United States each year just to keep units in use at the present level. That is the average number of vehicles scrapped annually during the last ten years, according to the Automobile Manufacturers Association. In the same ten years the average number of new cars and trucks sold at retail in the United States was 2,807,666. Thus, the replacement of scrapped vehicles in the years 1930-39, inclusive, has represented 85 per cent of sales of new units.

The Gold Threat

The Axis powers are currently voicing an intention to establish a new world order in which gold will not play a part. A so-called labor currency is to take its place. These threats to leave us with $20,000,000,000 of "worthless" gold should not be taken too seriously. If anyone believes that gold will suddenly become valueless even outside of this country, his understanding of human nature is not very penetrating. Gold for centuries has always been readily exchangeable for other commodities in all parts of the civilized, and most of the uncivilized, globe. No law or decree of mere man is going to alter that willingness to accept the metal.

Wallet-Scorched U. S. Again Faces Hot Issue of War Loans

By Merryle S. Rukeyser
Economic Commentator

A savant, with a gift for felicitous phrasing, observed that the lesson we learn from history is that we learn nothing from history. Having had our hands burned with war loans during the first world war, we firmly resolved not to make this mistake agan. But there is already quiet agitation to remove the inhibitions to foreign loans to Great Britain in the Johnson Act and the "cash and carry" provisions of the amended Neutrality Act.

This is in accord with the forecast made in this column last fall when the amendments to the Neutrality Act were under discussion. I then pointed out that circumstances in Europe will lead to a demand to substitute "credit and carry" for "cash and carry."

An inkling of the shape of things to come may be gleaned from a recent editorial in the London Economist, which, with the utmost candor, points out:

"Clearly, many of the implications of American policy still require to be thought out on the other side of the Atlantic. The basic fact that wars, even nonbelligerent ones, cannot be fought without doing distasteful things has yet to be learned. There is still no sign, for example, that the restrictions of the Neutrality and Johnson Acts are to be removed; until they are, though the American people say that they intend to give us all the material assistance they can send, what they mean is that they intend to sell us all the material assistance we can pay for. These hesitations and inconsistencies will disappear; events can be relied upon to bludgeon them out of existence.

"As has so often been pointed out in these columns, it is not the direction in which American policy is evolving, or even the goal at which it will arrive, that is in doubt, but only the speed with which it is moving. The great gain from (recent) events (Willkie's nomination) is that we, Britain and America alike, are not now faced with the hideous danger of a six-month hiatus, during which the underlying unity of purpose might be obscured by the formalities of a rigid Constitution. If he (Willkie) and the President between them, while preserving their domestic antipathies, can now give some formal expression to their unity on foreign policy, they will be doing no more than their duty to America and to the cause in which they both believe."

This, of course, is a far-cry from the prewar British epithet of "Uncle Shylock," when our officials went through the formalities of collecting the debt accruing from the last war.

This writer has long believed that both Great Britian and France seriously weakened their national defense when they impaired their credit over here by default on the war debts. The material savings on interest were infinitesimal compared with the damage done to their credit.

Hitler, of course, has been quick to take full advantage of such weaknesses among his adversaries, and, in contemplating now the possibility of a reversal of American foreign lending policy, we should not underestimate the tendency of a dominant element in American opinion to weigh decisions in the scales as to whether they hurt or help Hitler.

Of course, the time element will be the determinant. Unquestionably, Great Britain has enough cash and liquid assets to pay for the full output of American factories available for shipment to Great Britain. Thus, the matter of cash versus credit is an issue for the future, rather than for the present. However, it is not unlikely that the first move will be to seek a modification of the restriction against making delivery of war supplies in American bottoms. The trend of European events has made shipping of increasing importance to the British Isles.

These issues may not have to be faced if the war comes to a sudden end, but, if it should outlast the coming autumn, then Americans will again be confronted with the obligation of making these crucial decisions.

Cotton Futures

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Cotton churned sluggishly in a small range today as the trade awaited word on crop loan policy for the new yield. The bulk of the small demand represented price fixing for Southern mill account. Most offerings came from the South, including considerable hedging.

Exports, Thursday, 14,569 bales; season so far, 14,569. Port receipts, 9,126. Port stocks, 2,438,132.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Scattered business was transacted in gray goods at steady prices. Sales of print cloths this week are estimated at triple the current production. Some interest was shown in sportswear fabric specialties made from spun rayon, but business as a whole was disappointing. Woolen piece goods purchases remained slow with scattered buying of tropicals. Cutters in the pure silk trade inquired more freely for dress materials.

Textile Review

Boston, Aug. 2 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: "The market for wool has reached a slightly higher level this week on the finer wools but that appreciation is threatened by reports of a plan for the importation of some 250,000,000 pounds of Australian wool to this country for storage against an emergency. The Government confirms the report, although no details of the plan are announced, and assures the wool growers that their position will be safeguarded.

"Such a program could not be effected for many months and is deemed unlikely of fulfillment in its entirety, so that there need be no effect on the current domestic clip.

"Meanwhile, Government orders are about the only basis for business at the mills, although a little civilian business makes its appearance now and then."

Auto Production Expected to Hit Bottom Next Week

Detroit, Aug. 2. (AP).—Reporting nearly all plants closed for changeover operations, Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., today estimated this week's assemblies of cars and trucks at 17,373, compared with 34,822 last week and 33,550 this week a year ago.

The survey said the bottom point for the year probably would be reached next week. "Thereafter," it added, "the rise from the narrow valley in the seasonal line will be rapid and sustained, through the rest of August and all of September."

Mobile&Ohio R. R. Sold for $13,411,915

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 2 (AP).—Properties of the bankrupt Mobile & Ohio Railroad were sold at public auction yesterday for $13,411,915, with all but $15 worth of it going to the road's bondholders' reorganization committee.

The committee will convey the property to the smaller Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad, and the two will be merged into a 2,007-mile major trunk line to be known as the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio.

I. B. Tigrett, of Jackson, Tenn., is slated to head the new road which will start business with a $31,870 000 funded debt and annual charges of $1,399,920, about one half the two roads' present fixed charges.

Southern Railway owned 94 per cent of M. & O.'s common, and the merger wipes this out. Southern will get 93 cents on the dollar for $7,839,000 worth of M. & O. bonds.

Suez Canal Co. Halts Interest on Securities

Cairo, Aug. 2 (AP).—Suez Canal Co. reporting "difficulties caused by the war," has suspended payment of the interest due August 1 on the 500-franc stock obligations.

Building-Loan Units Disburse $457,000,000

Extent of Turnover In 6 Months Cited By League Head

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Helpfulness of the building and loan industry here and elsewhere is demonstrated by the fact that during the current half year nearly $457,000,000 went back from savings, building and loan associations of the country to persons who have been placing their money in these institutions.

Word received by District of Columbia Building and Loan League from national headquarters indicates that while new money was being invested at the rate of about $2 for every $1 withdrawn, millions of shareholders were profiting from their thrift by having these funds available to meet emergencies, or as capital to finance business opportunities or make down payments on homes.

President George W. West, of the United States Savings and Loan League, reports approximately $407,000,000 of the total which savings and investing members received from January through June represented money actually paid in, while about $40,000,000 represented dividends paid the first of the year on savings and loan lump-sum investments. Around $10,000,000 is estimated to represent cash loans obtained on security of share accounts, which practice is frequently used instead of withdrawal to prevent interruption of systematic saving programs.

Mr. West explains that ratio of turnover is about that of normal times as it has been for several years.

Acacia Conference

Members of the field advisory committee of Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co. have been in the city conferring with William Montgomery, president, and other company officials on matters of interest to the field personnel. Members of the committee are E. M. Barr, manager, Youngstown (Ohio) branch; R. G. Snyder, West Virginia manager; La Noue Matta, manager, Los Angeles branch, and W. B. Vennard, manager, Houston (Tex.) branch. Directly assisting Mr. Montgomery in the conference with the committee was Samuel E. Mooers, field vice president.

Purely Personal

President Robert V. Fleming of Riggs National Bank will spend the month at his summer home at Rehoboth Beach, Del.

Irving Zirpel, secretary of Union Trust Co., returned this week from vacation at his summer home at Tall Timbers, Md.

Members of Washington Loan & Trust Club recently enjoyed a day's outing at Salona Farm, near Langley, Va., as guests of William Sothoron Smoot. Arrangements were made by the clubwomen's committee headed by Jeanette Fuchs.

Chauncey G. Parker, A. Chester Flather and Harold G. Patterson, of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath, are recent vacationists.

Herbert B. Lord, assistant secretary of National Savings & Trust, is vacationing in Massachusetts and will return in about three weeks.

President E. C. Graham of Hamilton National Bank is taking his vacation at Arundel-on-the-Bay, Md.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP).—General hog trade today moved steady to 10 cents lower, with spots off more on butchers scaling 250 pounds upward and packing sows. The top was 6.60. Fed steers and yearlings were strong to 25 cents higher. Spring lambs and yearlings moved 15 to 25 cents higher.

Hog receipts totaled 10,500 with 1,300 direct to packers. Best wholesale pork loins advanced ½ cent to 16½ cents a pound.

As cattle receipts for this week hit the lowest level in 25 years, buyers operated for numbers. Fed heifers were stronger. Cow trade was mostly steady and about 25 cents higher for the week. Bulls and vealers were also steady.

Sugar Futures

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Domestic sugar futures gained 2 to 4 points on sales of 140 lots today.

National sugar refining followed the price cut of other refiners in Southern territory but traders said the market was encouraged by the stability of prices in New York metropolitan district.

The local refined market held at 4.20 to 4.35 for fine granulated. No. 3 contract:

Boston Wool Market

Boston, Aug. 2 (AP) (United States Department of Agriculture).—Very little wool was moving on the Boston market today. Demand was mostly for small quantities of fine territory wool in original bags. Some inquires were being received for country graded three-eighths and quarter-blood bright fleeces at 37@38 cents, in the grease, but it was reported to be difficult to secure good wools at this price.

Packard-Miller Sandlot Loser Will Drop Lead

4 Teams at Present Tied for Top; 11 Games Scheduled Tomorrow

Another club will join Klein Tavern nine, first-half winner which bowed out of title consideration in the second half last week, tomorrow as the National City Sandlot League observes an 11-game schedule.

This time it will be either Packard-Washington or Miller Furniture. The pair comes to grips on the South Ellipse. The loser drops from the four-team tie in Section A, which includes J. C. Flood Plumbing and District Grocery Stores.

Legion Nines Open 3-Game Series Today

Cooley-McCullough, Sergt. Jasper Battle At Griffith Stadium

The first action in a three-game series for the American Legion Junior League title of Washington will be undergone today at Griffith Stadium, where Cooley-McCullough Post and Sergt. Jasper Post representatives clash at 2:30 p. m.

The second battle will take place at the West Ellipse tomorrow, and in the event a third meeting is necessary, it will be held at Walter Reed Hospital grounds Tuesday.

On the outcome of the series hinges the most coveted prize of junior legionairres—a trip to Wilson, N. C., for the regional American Legion tournament. Teams of Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina will compete there, starting August 15, with the winner entering the national tourney shortly afterward.

In previous competition, Washington's representatives have failed to survive the regional test. But with two of the strongest teams in the recent history of the local league going into today's playoff, legion fans envision a berth in the national event.

Going to the mound for Cooley-McCullough today will be young Clarence Kuldell, winner of seven games during the regular season and loser of only one. A starting pitcher for Sergt. Jasper had not been decided upon last night, but it was thought a "dark horse" would go to the mound. Able pitchers ready to see action are Bob Hill and Dave Wilkerson, each of whom has won five and lost one during the season.

Records of the two teams are almost identical. Cooley-McCullough, winner of the first half, has a total of 10 and 2 in league games while the Jaspermen have 9 and 3.

G. A. O. Defeats Interior by 3 to 2

General Accounting Office increased its lead over the second-place Interior Department nine yesterday when it eked out a 3-2 judgment in a 7-inning Departmental League game. One run in the final inning decided the contest.

Hoff and Jewett staged a pitcher's battle, each allowing seven hits and four bases on balls. Hoff, however, struck out 10 to Jewett's four.

Maybe a Touch Of Insanity Helps Baseball Playing

Chattahoochee, Fla., Aug. 2.—Doctors at Florida State Hospital for the Insane recommended organized sports to improve the mental and physical condition of patients.

Arlington Man Drowned When Rowboat Capsizes

George H. Robertson, 26, of 4440 North Glebe road, Arlington, Va., was drowned in West River late yesterday at Shady Side, Md., when a rowboat he was in capsized.

ROBERTSON

He was accompanied by Ethel Lightner, of 1314 Thirty-sixth street northwest Washington, who swam ashore but was unable to rescue Robertson, according to police.

Robertson had lost an oar and was attempting to retrieve it when the boat overturned, Miss Lightner said.

A Galesville police detail, under Officer Lyn Bussey, was grappling in the river last night in an effort to recover the body. Robertson, for the past six years, had been a driver in the Cherrydale Fire Department. Yesterday was his day off.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Robertson, and a brother, Leroy Robertson. Also surviving are five sisters, Mrs. Evelyn Coleman, of Gaithersburg, Md., and Mrs. Frances Payne, Mrs. Paul Stephensen, Lucille Robertson and Bertha Robertson, all of Arlington.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. M. Barry Hopper et al., plaintiffs, vs. Robert Simpson Hopper et al., defendants. Civil Action No. 7390. Order of publication. To Robert Simpson Hopper and to all whom it may concern: You will take notice that your brother, M. Barry Hopper, and your sisters, Jeanette O. Thompson and Celina Orme, have filed in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia a complaint in Civil Action No. 7390, pursuant to an Act of Congress, approved April 8, 1935, alleging that you disappeared from the District of Columbia in the year 1914, that you were last heard from in April, 1928, since which time you have not been heard from, and by said complaint your said brother and sisters as your heirs at law and next of kin seek a decree for the appointment of a receiver to take possession of certain moneys alleged to be due you and the Liberty National Bank holds said money in the form of a Cashier's Check made payable to you as shown by its answer filed herein. Accordingly, it is by the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia this 17th day of July, 1940, ordered that you, Robert Simpson Hopper, and all whom it may concern shall appear in said Court in this cause on or before AUGUST 30, 1940, to show cause, if any you have, why a receiver of the aforesaid moneys should not be appointed to hold and dispose of the same as provided by said Act of Congress and prayed by said complaint, provided that a copy hereof shall be published once a week for three consecutive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and in The Washington Post newspaper, otherwise the said Court will proceed with the disposition of said fund in the manner provided by said Act of Congress and as prayed by the complaint. A PROPOSED NEW Chevy Chase, D. C., apt. hotel (lot contains 72,202 sq. ft.). A hotel license permits concession that will give this hotel apt. site probably double the income that it would receive if zoned first commercial. The present planned parking facilities (400 cars in the building) will exceed any hotel apt. in Washington. The hotel license also permits drug store, restaurant, cocktail parlors, night club, beauty parlor, barber shop, delicatessen, newsstand, dentist's and physician's offices and other valuable privileges. The late U. S. Census reports Washington and its metropolitan area the fastest growing big city of its kind in the U. S. This property is offered to investors who desire a generous income with safety. FULTON R. GORDON, 1427 Eye st. nw. District 5230. Brokers attention.

Today's Radio Highlights

9 a. m., WRC—Victor Moore, bless him, plays an addle-pated Mr. Fixit for the Lincoln Highway sketch.

12 noon, WJSV—David L. Cohn has written a fascinating book on the old Sears, Roebuck catalogues, "The Good Old Days." He talks with Vesta Eales.

12:30 p. m., WJSV—Add to your army terminology: Hell Cats. They're the chaps who wake up you civics and are part of the new United States Army Recruiting program, continuing as a series from West Point with Ray Perkins and the West Point Band.

12:30, WMAL—Deems Taylor, the composer, who has found a new avocation in Information Please, chats with Ilka Chase during her luncheon at the Waldorf.

1, WRC—Igor Sikorsky, Russian-born aeronautical genius who became an American citizen in 1928, appears on the I'm an American program.

3, WRC—The Budapest String Quartet begins a series of Saturday concerts in the Library of Congress: Mozart's quartet in F (K. 590); two sketches for string quartet based on Indian themes by Charles T. Griffes, and Beethoven's quartet in F minor, Op. 95.

6, WJSV—David Cushman Coyle, R. McLean Stewart, George H. Houston and Randolph E. Paul discuss the financial problems involved in our defense program on the People's Platform.

7, WJSV, WMAL, WRC and WOL—A gigantic hook-up links 500 stations of the Nation under the auspices of the World's Fair of 1940 in New York and the Golden Gate International Exposition in observance of Broadcasting Day. A message from the President is read by Stephen Early of the White House secretariat. How all the names are going to be squeezed into the confines of the single hour is impossible to imagine. The program will conclude with a blending of voices from both fairs singing an unannounced patriotic song. A few of the notables are Chairman James L. Fly of the Federal Communications Commission, Kate Smith, Rudy Vallee, Lowell Thomas, James Melton, H. V. Kaltenborn, Frank Black, Alfred Wallenstein, Ted Husing, Lanny Ross, Harvey D. Gibson, Marshall Dill and Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters.

8:30, WOL—Alfred Wallenstein's refreshing hour of unfamiliar music falls into the hands of an operatic "pop" concert series under the baton of Cesare Sodero.

9:30, WRC—Bill Gottlieb's Men with Batons is heard two hours later than usual, shifted ahead by the special hour show from the two fairs.

Vesta Eales, WJSV's purveyor of information about the book world, has been batting .500 lately in having major literary lights of the day as guests on her Saturday program. Last week it was Dr. Eugene de Savitsch, Washington author of the extremely popular autobiography, "In Search of Complications." Today it is David L. Cohn, writer of the nostalgic volume, "The Good Old Days," which has been on the best seller lists for many weeks.

Cohn used to work for the Sears, Roebuck Co. He found it great amusement, whenever he got the opportunity, to look through their old catalogues and compare the manners and customs exemplified there with those of the modern-day. Eventually it occurred to him that these old catalogues, with their quaint and sometimes hilarious advertisements, were really a museum of American life for the years they represented. If he was so interested, he reasoned, so would everyone else be. So he wrote the book quoting copiously from them and reprinting lots of the pictures—and has had his theory very nicely proved. He'll tell the story at noon today on the program.

Incidentally Miss Eales was given a two-column story on her program in "Publishers Weekly" last week.

Contract Bridge

Knaves or jacks or jakes can create a deal of trouble, as today's hand, contributed by G. C. McL., indicates. North and South relied too heavily upon these mercurial honors and heavy disaster was the result. Doubled and vulnerable at four spades, North and South lost 1,700 points. Here is what the contributor says:

"When kings rely on knaves to help them out of their difficulties the results may be ruinous. Here is a king-jack hand which went all to pieces, owing to the aces and queens being consistently on the wrong side.

"East led the six of diamonds. West finessed the queen and led a small spade, enabling East to draw three rounds of trumps. North had to take the third round and he led a heart to South's king, followed by South's singleton club. East won with his queen and drew two trumps for one. North now led his ace and a small heart, hoping to give South an extra heart trick. Winning the round with his queen, West led the ten of clubs, and North's king was overtaken by East, who returned a diamond, and West took the remaining tricks.

"Declarer was six down, doubled, having made only two heart and two trump tricks."

Catholic Layman Will Open Series Of Talks Tonight

George P. Ratte, well-known local Catholic layman, will open a series of talks tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Franklin Park, Fourteenth and K streets northwest. His opening message will be on "The End of Man," and during subsequent Saturdays this month he will discuss "The Rosary."

RATTE

Deeply interested in religion, he is a member of the Laymen's Retreat League of Washington and of the American Legion. He and three brothers served in the World War.

Ratte, who has been speaking in local parks for several years, became interested in public speaking a few years ago when employed in Baltimore.

Rep. Poage Sees Little Support For Gas-Tax Rise

Representative Poage (Democrat), of Texas, disclosed yesterday that there appears to be little support for a proposed increase in the District gasoline tax as he prepared to hold public hearings beginning at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in the House District Committee room.

Officials of highway and revenue departments of Maryland and Virginia will be heard at the first session. Poage said he wishes to question them as to whether highways leading into the National Capital will be improved if the District gasoline tax is raised.

Unless proponents of the gasoline tax increase make out a good case, Poage said, the special committee will not hear the opposition and the whole matter will be dropped.

Annual Outing Of Presbyterian Group Tomorrow

Christian Endeavorers of Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church will make their annual trek to Sugar Loaf Mountain, near Frederick, Md., tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

After a hearty supper, a devotional service will be led by Milton Chase, popular editor of the Christian Endeavor District Union monthly publication, and the Rev. Kenneth Lyons, pastor of Mount Tabor Methodist Church, Georgetown, will speak.

Music will be provided by guitarist-singer Harrison Messerole, of River Road United Presbyterian Church, and the Essex twins—Errol and Elaine, and the Rev. Arthur G. Slaght, the last named singing the Lord's Prayer.

The District Christian Endeavor Union meeting will be held on Monday at 8 p. m. at Ninth Street Christian Church, Ninth and D streets northeast.

Prominent Endeavor leaders of the Middle Atlantic region will meet in Atlantic City on August 10 and 11 to discuss plans for the forthcoming regional conference here on November 8, 9 and 10. Miss Pauline Shoemaker, local Endeavor Union president; Mrs. E. C. Green, local intermediate counselor, Chase and others will represent Washington at the shore pow-wow.

East will meet West on next Saturday as young adults of the East and West Washington districts stage a gala picnic at Rock Creek Park—all for 25 cents.

The outing, with softball, volleyball, badminton, horseshoes, archery and other recreation promised, will take place—if the weather man smiles—in picnic area No. 24, close to Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest. If the rains come, the picnickers will hie to Hamline Methodist Church, Sixteenth and Allison streets.

Hamline Methodist youths will hold their Bright Hour Devotional Service tomorrow at 7 p. m. at the home of Miss Helen Stevens, 1610 Varnum streets northwest.

Calvary Methodist young people will meet tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. with the Misses Edith and Jane Hargrave, 1357 Newton street northwest. Miss Fern Gilroy is handling arrangements.

MILTON CHASE

In lieu of their regular meeting on Tuesday, the Mount Vernon (Methodist) Players will stage a picnic at Hains Point. The Francis Asbury Methodist youths will have another "game night" on Wednesday at 8 p. m.

Young people of Reformation Lutheran Church this afternoon are entertaining Luther place youths at Kensington Cabin, beginning at 3:30 p. m.

The Epworth League devotional service will follow the fellowship tea and social hour tomorrow at 6 p. m. at Foundry Methodist Church.

Edward H. De Groot, jr., president of the board of directors of Central Union Mission, will address services in Lincoln Park at 4 p. m. under the sponsorship of the Central "Y" and the Inter-Church committee. William R. Schmucker will be song-leader, and Mrs. Margaret R. Moffat, organist. More than 20 churches will cooperate in the services.

All Saints Church

Protestant congregations of Chevy Chase will hold their weekly joint service tomorrow night on the lawn of All Saints' Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase Circle, with the Rev. Henry Teller Cocke, host church rector, speaking.

N. Y. Minister Will Preach At Metropolitan

The Rev. Curtis H. Jones, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Baldwin, N. Y., will be guest preacher tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, discussing "Great Expectations."

Westminster—The Rev. Harry V. Porter will conduct the morning worship service and administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The subject of the communion meditation will be "Living in Harmony With God."

Christian Science Topic

"Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday School is at 11 a. m. All are cordially invited to attend services, including the Wednesday evening meetings at 8 o'clock.

The Golden Text is from Psalms 63: 1, 3. "O God, thou art my God . . . Because thy loving kindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee."

Rep. Johnson to Teach

Representative Jed Johnson (Democrat), of Oklahoma, will teach the Darlington Berea Bible Class tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. at Fifth Baptist Church.

Dr. John E. Briggs, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. on "A Most Unhappy Absence" and at 7:30 p. m. on "Contrasted Conversions." The Rev. J. Herrick Hall, junior minister, will be soloist at both services.

Sermon Topic

The Mount Rainier Christian Church choir, directed by Mrs. Hayward Baker, will sing at tomorrow's 4 o'clock vespers at the Little Church of Fort Lincoln, Bladensburg road and District line. The Rev. Dale Crowley's sermon theme will be "Where Soul Goes at Death."

'Walking About Zion'

Dr. Stephen Gill Spottswood's sermon themes for tomorrow morning and evening at John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church will be "Shall Not Perish" and "Walking About Zion."

Rev. Gingrich's Subject

"A Rainbow About the Throne" will be the Rev. Albert E. Gingrich's sermon subject for tomorrow at 10 a. m. at Potomac Heights Community Church.

Rev. M. S. White to Talk

Communion will be celebrated tomorrow at 11:15 at Capitol Heights Congregational Church, with the Rev. Maurice S. White preaching.

Guest Preacher

The Rev. Clinton L. Rogers will be guest preacher tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. at Second (colored) Baptist Church.

Church of the Week

Eastern Presbyterian's New Pastor Circled World 4 Times

Rev. W. N. Vincent Lauded for Youth Work in Indiana

By Robert Tate Allan

The Rev. William Nesbit Vincent, new pastor of Eastern Presbyterian Church, Sixth street and Maryland avenue northeast, is a widely traveled and scholarly person.

Native of Litton, Iowa, he was taken at the tender age of 1 to Siam by his parents, pioneer missionaries there, remaining 14 years, and tutored by his mother, who has since died.

He traveled around the world four times with his parents and, after a period at Greenbriar Military School, Lewisburg, W. Va., he sailed to study as a Rockefeller Foundation scholar at Yen Ching University, in Peking, now Peiping, China.

8 Years at Fort Wayne

He returned to America for further study at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Chicago, and Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. His first pastorate was in Coldwater, Mich.

During his following eight years as pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, of Fort Wayne, Ind., the Rev. Mr. Vincent, fourth in direct line of Presbyterian ministers, distinguished himself in both the religious and civic life of the community.

He rode with police in scout cars to scenes of raids to get first-hand information on crime conditions, counseled first offenders, and cooperated with the Juvenile Court and other agencies in his efforts to help youths find themselves.

"Fine Possibilities" Here

He was so highly respected by the Fort Wayne Police Department that two detectives from that city, here on a visit last week, dropped in at his home, 611 Maryland avenue northwest, with a letter from their chief to the local police officials, lauding the cleric's work.

While he is just feeling his ground at present, having arrived here only a month ago as successor to Dr. Alfred E. Barrows, the pastor is hoping to devote much attention in the fall to boosting the youth organizations at Eastern Presbyterian Church.

"There are fine possibilities for youth work in this section of the city," he said.

He and Mrs. Vincent have two children—Nellie Marie, 14, and Howell Bruce, 7.

The Eastern Presbyterian congregation, which is planning a formal installation service and reception for the new minister in the early fall, boasts many live-wire youth and other organizations.

They include the senior and intermediate Christian Endeavor groups, led by T. R. Sherman and James E. Huddleston, jr., respectively; Scout Troop 13, of which William Armstrong is scoutmaster, and Sea Scouts.

Malcolm S. Shepherd is superintendent of the active church school, which has 19 teachers; Horace E. Wilcox is clerk of the session; J. P. Hunnicutt, church financial secretary; Archibald Smith, treasurer; J. P. Alexander, president of the board of trustees, and George W. Sterling, chairman of the board of deacons.

REV. WILLIAM N. VINCENT

The Winslow Men's Bible Class, of which the late Senator William H. Borah was first teacher, is now taught by J. C. Rundels, while A. C. Giles serves as president. Miss Edith Funston teaches the Goodwill Women's Bible Class.

Worship services tomorrow at 11 a. m. will find Miss Nellie Sacrey again at the organ console, where she has presided for many years. Eugene Dahl, soloist, will sing "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death," by Mendelssohn." The Rev. Mr. Vincent's sermon theme will be "An Ancient Inferiority Complex."

Chapel Built in 1876

Worshipers subsequently used the residence of William P. Betts at Ninth and G streets northeast. Betts, 79, and his brother, Edward H. Betts, 77, of Lanham, Md., are among the few living charter members.

A chapel was built on Eighth street between F and G streets northeast in 1876, with the Rev. George B. Patch, first regular pastor, conducting services. Other previous pastors, in addition to Dr. Barrows, have been Dr. Thomas C. Easton, the Rev. Thomas N. Neibel, the Rev. Eugene Peck and Dr. M. M. Cornelius.

Dr. Barrows, now pastor emeritus, came from Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1913 to assume the Eastern Presbyterian pastorate.

Rev. F. A. Gray to Lead People's Evensong Rites

The Rev. Francis A. Gray, rector of King and Queen's Parish, southern Maryland, will be guest preacher at the Washington Cathedral people's evensong rites tomorrow at 4 p. m. Canon Edward S. Dunlap, of this city, will speak at 11 a. m.

Guest preachers at other evensong services this month will be the Rev. W. Curtis Draper, rector of Port Tobacco Parish, August 11; the Rev. E. N. Macony, rector of St. Mary's Parish, August 18, and Dr. T. F. Opie, rector of St. Bartholomew Parish, Laytonsville, August 28. All are of Maryland.

Transfiguration Topic

Closing his sermon series on the theme of "Dramatic Scenes in the Life of Jesus," Dr. R. W. Brooks will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Lincoln Congregational Temple on "Jesus on the Mount of Transfiguration." Holy Communion will be observed; music will be rendered by the Cantorn group.

The pastor, who is attending summer sessions at Union Seminary, will leave for his vacation after the services.

C. N. Howard to Speak

Clinton N. Howard, general superintendent of the International Reform Federation, for five years chairman of the World Peace Commission, and editor of "Progress," will fill the pulpit of the Non-Sectarian Tabernacle, 6440 Piney Branch road northwest, tomorrow.

He will speak at 11 a. m. on "Christ—the Cure for War," and at 8 p. m. on "The Possibility of Peace."

Philadelphia Pastor To Preach in District

The Rev. Gerald L. Stover, pastor of the Washington Baptist Church, Philadelphia, and former athlete at Otterbein College, Ohio, will be the featured speaker at the coming week's tent evangelistic services at Rock Creek Park and P street northwest, under the auspices of the Laymen's Evangelistic Association of Washington, Inc.

The Rev. Stover directs the Northeast Bible Training School in Philadelphia, and is a graduate of the Philadelphia School of the Bible. The revival meetings under the tent are being conducted all summer through September 1. Church choirs of the Washington Metropolitan area have been providing music for the meetings, held daily, Saturdays excepted, at 7:45 p. m.

Two Baptist Churches List Special Music

Pastor Returns From Vacation to Lead Brookland Services

Back from a month's vacation, the Rev. M. C. Stith will occupy his Brookland Baptist pulpit tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Special music will be rendered and the Lord's Supper observed at the former service. The pastor will lead a Bible conference hour on Thursday at 8 p. m.

First—"When Peter Remembered" will be the topic of the communion meditation to be presented by Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden tomorrow at 11 a. m. The day will be the first anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Hall's services as ministers of music and, at the pastor's request, they will sing, "The Lord Is My Shepherd," by Smart.

At the evening service Dr. Pruden will speak on "An Enemy's Compliment" and the quartet from the choir that is to sing at the Virginia Baptist Assembly at Massanetta Springs will sing, "O Sing Unto the Lord," by Hassler.

This will be the last Sunday at which Dr. Pruden and the Halls will participate until the second Sunday in September. Prominent visiting ministers will fill the pulpit during the intervening four Sundays.

Chevy Chase—The guest minister tomorrow at 11 a. m. will be the Rev. Charles J. Bowen, of Good Hope, Ohio. The regular monthly communion service will be observed. Evening services will not be held during August.

Calvary—The Rev. Edwin H. Tuller, assistant minister, will preach tomorrow morning on "Does God Really Care?" The Ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the close of this service. Mr. Tuller's subject at the evening service will be "The Purpose of Living."

Mission to Hold Last Services at Present Site

The Volunteers of America Relief Mission at 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, where a half million men have worshiped at 2,000 services in ten years, will be used for the last time tomorrow at 2 p. m., when Maj. W. O. Ulrey will speak on "Redemption and Release."

The group will move during the coming week into a new home, the old Scottish Rite Cathedral at 433 Third street northwest, which they have leased, with an option to buy.

Luther Leagues

Luther Leagues of Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, will hold a vesper service at Hains Point tomorrow, cars leaving the church at 6 p. m. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, pastor, will address the 11 o'clock worship services on "Barriers to the Kingdom." The Rev. Carl Folkemer, assistant pastor, will preach at 8:30 a. m.

'Where Is Thy God?'

Just returned from a brief vacation at Ocean City, the Rev. William E. La Rue will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Takoma Park Baptist Church on "Where Is Thy God?" The Lord's Supper will follow.

Petworth Methdoist

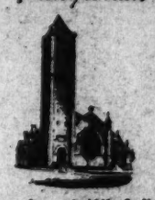

Dr. Douglas Chandler, of Western Maryland College, will be guest preacher tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Petworth Methodist Church. He will discuss "The Mind of Christ." Young people will conduct the first half of the evening service at 7:30 p. m. in Fellowship Hall.

"NOW THE DAY IS OVER"
S. BARING-GOULD

Night is drawing nigh;
Shadows of the evening
Steal across the sky.

Jesus, give the weary
With Thy tend'rest blessing
May our eyelids close.

This soothing evening hymn was written by the Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould for his Sunday School children. It was inspired by the verse from the Book of Proverbs, "When thou liest down, thou shalt not be afraid, yea, thou shalt lie down and thy sleep shall be sweet."
